POLICE ARREST THIRD MAN AS 'HATLESS' THUG

Jack Ross, 22, Seized for Capital Authorities Near Richmond.

NAMED BY 2 OTHERS, JAILED HERE, AS AID

Pistol, Claimed His, Will Be Examined for Link With Jaynes Murder.

A man who, police believe, may be connected with the slaying of Mrs. Elizabeth Jaynes in the Garden T Shoppe and who is named as the third member of the "hatless trio" of bandits, was arrested in Deep Bottom, Va., yesterday by detectives.

In his possession, when arrested, according to police, was a .25 caliber automatic, which will be given ballistics tests to determine if it fired the bullet that killed Mrs. Jaynes.

The man arrested yesterday is Jack Ross, 22 years old, who is said to live near Richmond, Va. He was taken into custody by Detective Sergeants Robert J. Barrett and Dennis Murphy.

The Youth Partially Identified.

Nicholas Vasilion, 22 years old, another of the trio, was last night partially identified as one of the three men who held up two employes of the Peoples Drug Stores on April 1 and stole $6,500. The holdup occurred near the company's warehouse near First and Decatur streets northeast.

When Ross is brought here, Vasilion, Ross and Peter Sala, 23 years old, of Newark, N. J., will be scrutinized by nine witnesses who saw the bandits loitering near the People's company warehouse.

Ross, according to police, answers the description of one of the participants in the Jaynes killing. Sala and Vasilion have named Ross, according to police, as the third member of the band and admit five holdups here in the past three weeks.

Ross Lived on Boat.

Ross had been living on the houseboat of a man named George Moore, about 10 miles east of Richmond, on the James River. Capt. Fred Bates, chief of police of Henrico County, Va., said last night. He had been there a week.

Washington police accompanied Bates to the spot early yesterday morning. Ross was out hunting. They questioned Moore, then went back to Richmond for reinforcements. On their return they found Ross lying on the bank of the river, a rifle about 10 feet away from him.

Arrested without a struggle, he was removed to the Henrico County Jail in the Richmond City limits, where he passed last night. Detectives Barrett and Murphy will bring him to Washington about 8 o'clock this morning, where the .25-caliber automatic found in his possession, will be examined for markings in the efforts to link it with the Jaynes slaying.

Admits Knowing Men Held.

Police said Ross admitted he knew both Sala and Vasilion.

Vasilion and Sala were arrested Thursday by Alexandria police after an allegedly stolen automobile in their possession turned over on Hunting Creek road. A .32-caliber revolver found near the wreck yesterday is claimed by Vasilion as his property. He said he bought it from a man in Philadelphia.

Vasilion and Sala, according to Capt. Kelly, of the homicide squad, left here Tuesday night after having held up Leon Goodwin, owner of a delicatessen store at 1039 Bladensburg road northeast.

They were returning to the Capital when the automobile overturned.

Baptist Pastor Admits Pulpit Hanging Is Hoax

Dallas, Tex., June 19 (A.P.).—B. F. Brown, supply pastor of the North Dallas Baptist Church, went before members of his congregation tonight and confessed he had trussed himself from an electric fan in the church early Thursday.

Brown previously had told officers four masked men had abducted him, stripped him of his clothes and hanged him to a church chandelier as a result of factional strife in the congregation. He was only slightly injured.

Nautilus Stalled; Escort Stands By

Submarine Crew Works to Start Motor; Tow Ring Is Pulled Out.

(Associated Press.)

The polar submarine Nautilus and the battleship Wyoming were stalled last night in midocean, while heavy seas wreaked further damage upon the Wilkins exploring vessel.

At 8 p. m. the Wyoming reported to the Navy Department they had been halted since noon at latitude 49:35 and longitude 14:49, about 240 miles from Queenstown, Ireland, to which port the disabled submarine is being towed.

The dispatch said: "Nautilus stopped since noon. Battened down. Not communicating. Saving battery. Trouble with fuel oil and air compressors. Starboard engine, port motor and periscope damaged beyond ship repair. Bridge and bow towing ring gone. Crew working to start port engine. Sea rough."

Attache's Son Flees Home in Battered Car

Ivan Perez, Fearing School in Spain and Liking America, Heads West With Two Companions, Police Are Told.

Because of his fondness for the American style of education and his companions at Central High School, and fearing that his father, commercial attache at the Cuban Embassy, intended to send him to school in Spain, Ivan Perez, 18 years old, with two friends, set off for California, intending to make the trek across the continent in a battered flivver.

The trip apparently started Thursday morning. Yesterday frantic parents enlisted police aid in an attempt to stop the cross-country adventure. A check between two perturbed households revealed that the total capital for the venture probably was not more than $120.

With Perez went Kenneth L. Smith, 17 years old, of 418 Shepherd street northwest, son of Mrs. Grace W. Smith, a clerk in the Census Bureau, and another youth, whom Senora Perez and Mrs. Smith know only as Hughes.

Two weeks ago, Ivan's father, Don Luis Marino Perez, was ordered to London on a diplomatic mission for his country. He planned to take his family with him, and despite the boy's protest, Senora Perez proceeded with plans to leave for England early next month.

Ivan feared he would be sent to school in Spain, and he didn't want to leave America, anyway. He was having too much fun. In company with the other boys, he had purchased the hard-used "tin lizzie," one of those rattly types, so popular with college and high school students.

He hinted that if plans were pushed for the London trip he would run away, but no one paid much attention to him. California appeared to be his objective.

Thursday Ivan failed to appear at his father's home, 1434 Webster street northwest, for supper, and a check revealed that Kenneth Smith also was missing. Mrs. Smith feared the worst, because her son had asked her for $20 early that morning and was secretive about what he wanted to do with it.

Mrs. Smith last night refused to discuss the two runaways, beyond

SCREAMS RECALLED IN FAITHFULL DEATH

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press.)

New York, June 19.—Mrs. Iallard Valentine, who lives in an apartment back of the home of Starr Faithfull's family, at 12 St. Luke's place, said tonight she heard "blood curdling screams, the most unearthly screams" in the neighborhood Friday afternoon, June 5.

That is the day Starr Faithfull vanished, starting an inquiry whose startling revelations and suggestions have aroused the news-reading public.

Mrs. Valentine's statement to a United Press correspondent came during a period in which the Faithfull family and Inspector King, of the Nassau County force, were mysteriously missing from the Faithfull home and the Mineola headquarters.

They had left headquarters hurriedly after witnesses who expected to testify before the grand jury had been excused. Inspector King had announced he looked for "a break in the case that either would solve the mystery or put investigators right back where they started.

"I know the screams were Friday, some time between noon and 5 o'clock, to the best of my recollection. I'm certain about the day," Mrs. Valentine said, "because I, too, keep a diary."

She volunteered the information that the diary was one her husband could read, if he liked.

"It was the most unearthly cry I ever heard," she said.

"Then some woman cried out: 'She must no do that.'

"And another added: 'She mustn't do that.'"

There was no indication a woman was being choked, or that her voice was in any way being muffled, Mrs. Valentine added.

This latest figure in the Faithfull mystery is a woman about 30 years old, who has a home in Westchester County, and reported she was leaving Saturday for Provincetown with her child, leaving Mr. Valentine in the Greenwich Village home at 52 Morton street.

Earlier this week Stanley Faithfull and members of the family were questioned about reported screams in the neighborhood. They defied they heard any.

They then were questioned about a reported visit to the roof of the apartment house. Faithfull admitted taking a mattress to the roof for airing some time that day. He is a

RUSSO-BERLIN PACT AWAITS SIGNATURE

Ambassador Is En Route to Moscow Bearing Treaty Assuring Amity.

Berlin, June 19 (A.P.).—The German Ambassador to Soviet Russia, Herbert von Dirksen, started for Moscow tonight with the Russo-German treaty in his pocket, which is to be signed by Foreign Minister Litvinoff early next week.

The treaty is virtually a renewal of the so-called Berlin treaty of amity signed by the late Foreign Minister Stresemann and Soviet Ambassador Krestinski April 4, 1926, except that the Berlin pact expired after five years, while the present text provides for indefinite continuance unless canceled on one year's notice.

The treaty of Rapallo of 1922 remains the basis of the relations between the two countries, which agree to keep in friendly contact in order to facilitate agreement on all questions of political or economic nature affecting both.

If one of the contracting parties, despite peaceful conduct, be attacked by a third power, the other contracting party will remain neutral.

Should, as a result of a conflict with a third power or at a time when neither of the contracting parties is at war, a coalition be formed for the purpose of establishing an economic or financial boycott against one of the contracting parties, the other will not join such a coalition.

France Will Lend Spain $12,000,000

Short-Term Deal Is Made Until Assembly Can Vote Reforms.

Paris, June 19 (A.P.).—The ministry of finance tonight confirmed that the Bank of France has promised to loan 300,000,000 francs, about $12,000,000, to the Bank of Spain against a gold guarantee to be deposited in London.

Negotiations for the deal have been in progress for several days and final agreement is expected to be signed tomorrow. The arrangement will permit coverage of a $15,000,000 loan consented to for Spain by the Bank for International Settlements, due the latter part of this month.

The Franco-Spanish loan will be for a short term to cover the period until monetary reforms are voted by the forthcoming Spanish Assembly.

Miss Earhart Reprimanded; Marion Aviators Penalized

Noted Aviatrix Held Careless and Using Bad Judgment in Autogiro Crash; Flier Who Disturbed Hoover Grounded; Four Face Fines.

(Associated Press.)

Punishment for aerial misbehavior was meted out by the Commerce Department yesterday to the distinguished girl aviator, Amelia Earhart, and the five pilots who disturbed the dedication of the Harding Memorial at Marion, Ohio, Tuesday.

Miss Earhart received a reprimand for her crash in an autogiro at Abilene, Tex., two weeks ago, on the ground she was careless and used bad judgment.

License of Frank Byerley, of Detroit, was suspended for 60 days and penalties of fines were determined upon for John C. Corrodi, Joseph C. Mackey, Harold Distelhorst and Grant C. Melvin, of Cleveland. Amount of the fines has not been fixed.

President Hoover requested that the fliers be disciplined after the noise of their motors had disturbed the Marion ceremones in which both he and Calvin Coolidge participated.

The five pilots have been under temporary suspension pending an investigation. Secretary Lamont said yesterday all had expressed "sincere regrets and were very apologetic for having contributed to the discomfort of those present."

Miss Earhart, who was the first woman to cross the Atlantic Ocean in an airplane and who now is an executive of an air transport line, struck a landing light when taking off, officials said.

The machine was overturned and one of the blades of the "windmill" struck an automobile. The plane was so badly damaged it could not be flown and another machine was sent to Abilene so she could continue her trip.

At Tulsa, Okla., she replied to the reprimand yesterday with an assertion that she had used her "best judgment."

PROTEST FILED IN PHONE ISSUE OF $7,000,000

OPPOSITION IS SEEN AS RATE-CUT MOVE

Chairman of Citizens' Group Objects to Stock; Suggests Bonds Instead.

Despite the protest of William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Public Utilities Commission is expected to approve the petition of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to issue $7,000,000 worth of common stock.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, declined to comment on the objection until he had reviewed the communication filed yesterday.

Though the commission approves the stock issue, the actual issuance may be blocked, however, if the telephone company seeks to sell the stock to its parent company, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., as the latter would be considered a violation of the Lafollette antimerger law.

Rate-Cut Fight Seen.

While Mr. Clayton's petition was seen as the first move in a long-contemplated campaign for reduction in telephone rates, it was a personal, rather than an organization, protest in that the Federation of Citizens Associations has never taken action on the matter.

Moreover, the organization does not meet again until next October. Consequently, little is likely to be accomplished in the immediate future.

The petition outlined the development of the present status of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., viz., the lack of a valuation of property and the lack of official sanction of the rates of the company. Mr. Clayton criticised the utilities body for not acting on the problem for the past two years. The communication recalls that the federation applied for a phone rate reduction in 1924.

Valuation Request Granted.

The company replied with a request for a valuation, which was granted, and in 1925 a rate base was established by the commission. The telephone company obtained an injunction, however, and blocked the valuation and rate reduction.

In 1927 an agreement was reached between the commission, the people's counsel and the company's lawyers, whereby the rates determined in 1925 would go into effect for two years. This agreement expired on June 1, 1929, and since then there has been no approved rate schedule.

Mr. Clayton also objected to the stock issue, on the grounds that the Chesapeake & Potomac Co. has no bond issue outstanding. He suggests that the proposed $7,000,000 stock issue should consequently be replaced by an equal amount in bonds.

RHEEM FUNDS PROBE BALKED PENDING RULE

Decision Is Deferred by Referee on Howar's Accounts.

FURTHER SUBPENAS WILL BE REQUESTED

Former Head of Bankrupt Firm Testifies as to Stock Holdings.

Efforts to delve into the personal finances of A. Joseph Howar, local builder, associated in a number of transactions with Edmund B. Rheem, vice president of the defunct Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., met with a temporary check yesterday at creditors' hearings.

Alvin L. Newmyer, counsel for Howar, objected when ledger sheets and deposit slips covering Howar's accounts at two local banks were produced by bank officials. He claimed Howar was in no way a party to the proceedings.

Referee in Bankruptcy Fred J. Eden deferred ruling on the issue, despite contention of Marcus Borchardt, attorney for noteholders, that Rheem had a blanket authorization to "act for Howar" and in at least one instance had access to his accounts. Earlier in the hearings Borchardt had charged an "unusual" financial relationship between Rheem and Howar.

Rheem asked permission to "make clear" that power of attorney granting him access to Howar's accounts was given him only during Howar's four-months absence from this country two years ago.

Rheem's Records Produced.

Records covering Rheem's personal financial dealings with Riggs National Bank, the Federal-American Bank and the Security, Savings & Commercial Bank were produced at the hearing, but examination of their contents was delayed until attorneys for creditors have had an opportunity to examine them.

Further subpenas seeking new light on Rheem's personal finances will be sought today, The Post was reliably informed. One will be directed to Rheem personally, while others may be served on other Washington banking houses, it was intimated.

Rheem, questioned briefly yesterday on the nature of his stock holdings, disclosed that he owns 100 shares of Riggs National Bank stock, 30 shares of Federal American, 10 shares of National Savings & Trust Co., 100 shares of Tri-Continental, some Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. shares and some country club stock.

The majority of the Riggs stock has been left with the National Savings & Trust Co. as collateral on a loan, he said, while the Tri-Continental has been left with Riggs for the same purpose.

Denies Owning Bonds.

He said he had no bonds, and no industrial stocks, although later,

Varied Plans Offered To Raise Silver Value

Debasement of Metal Started in 1816 With Britain Adopting Gold Standard; India Helped to Drug Market.

Editor's note—The silver question has become an international problem and, with the movement under way here for a conference of governments to stabilize the value of the metal, is constantly in the limelight. Alexander R. George, of the Associated Press Washington staff, has written a series of three stories, presenting the many phases and background of the situation. The first of these interesting and informative stories appears herewith. The second will appear tomorrow.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE.

(Copyright, 1931, the Associated Press.)

Not since the late William Jennings Bryan made his famous "Cross of Gold" speech and campaigns for the Presidency on the 16-to-1 issue has the silver question been so much in the limelight.

In Bryan's heyday it was largely a domestic question. Today it is an international problem tied closely to world business depression.

Leaders of the movement in this country for a conference of governments seeking stabilization of the value of silver include Senators Pittman, of Nevada, and King, of Utah.

Deeply interested also in finding a way to increase the price of the white metal are other political leaders and business men of the silver producing States and of the Pacific Coast, where trade with the silver-minded Orient has been hard hit.

Senator Smoot, of Utah, advocates a conference of delegates of the International Chamber of Commerce, or of other experts, instead of official delegates from the interested nations. Advices here are that the executive committee of the international chamber may call a conference at its meeting in Paris early in July.

For centuries, silver and gold cofunctioned as monetary standards. They circulated in the ratio of their production, approximately fourteen ounces of silver being equivalent to one ounce of gold. Debasement of the white metal may be said to have begun in 1816, when Great Britain adopted the gold standard.

The United States and Germany went to the gold standard in 1873, other countries following suit. Most countries continued to use silver coinage, but in the last ten years various governments reduced the silver content of their coinage or replaced it entirely with other metals. Silver from this source greatly enlarged the world supply and was a factor in making the metal a drug on the market.

In 1926 the Indian government, committeed to the gold standard, launched a 10-year program of reducing its silver reserve. Disposal of this huge store of silver surplus is held partly responsible for "wrecking" the world market.

Contending it was a calamity to demonetize silver, bimetallists now advocate a return to the copartnership of silver and gold at a given ratio. The dumping of an oversupply on the market with the resultant fall in price as a commodity has paralyzed, they say, the buying power of China, where American investments probably total more than $200,-

PLAN TO AID GERMANY IN FINANCIAL CRISIS IS SURVEYED BY HOOVER

London Hails Chance Of U. S. Help Abroad

Hoover Move in Calling Parley on Germany Held Epochal.

London, June 19 (A.P.).—A sensation was caused in newspaper circles in Fleet street tonight by the brief news of President Hoover's statement in Washington regarding American efforts to "strengthen the situation in Germany."

Word that the President had called congressional leaders into conference about the economic situation in Europe arrived too late for official comment from leaders of the British government who, with a week-end recess of Parliament, had begun to scatter from London to the country.

Close observers of the swift-moving events in Europe, however, said the far-reaching effect of President Hoover's statement was apparent.

It was declared that America, by taking steps to aid Germany, would at the same time indirectly strengthen all Europe and the world at large. This action was said by some to be an "epochal development."

The visit of Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, to Great Britain was assuming an importance tonight comparable to that of the recent Anglo-German conversations at Chequers at the forthcoming trip of Prime Minister MacDonald

Berlin Regards Step As Highly Important

Berlin, June 19 (A.P.).—The announcement of President Hoover's statement that conversations were being held in Washington "particularly directed to strengthening the situation in Germany" reached Berlin just in time tonight to be published in the late editions of morning newspapers. The statement, however, will appear with little editorial comment.

Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius and other cabinet members could not be reached at the late hour for discussion of the announcement. Others in official circles withheld comment until more could be learned of this latest development, which, on its face, was considered of greatest importance.

Most of the dailies displayed the Hoover statement under large headlines, such as "America Takes a Hand," "Hoover Seizes the Initiative" and "Hoover Wants to Help Germany."

President Confers With Leaders in Congress Over Situation.

SEEKS TO IMPROVE WORLD ECONOMICS

No Tangible Step Announced but Many Suggestions Are Considered.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

President Hoover moved yesterday to evolve some plan to help Germany out of its present financial plight, and thereby to improve economic conditions, not only in Europe but in this country as well.

The President devoted his entire day to the European crisis, calling in Democratic, as well as Republican, members of Congress for conferences.

He was scheduled to see representatives of the press at 4 o'clock, but instead, through his secretary, Theodore Joslin, issued the following statement:

"Since my return from the Central West yesterday, I have conferred with those leaders of both political parties who are present in Washington with respect to certain steps which we might take to assist in economic recovery, both here and abroad.

Finds Response Gratifying.

"These conversations have been particularly directed to strengthening the situation in Germany. No definite plans or conclusions have yet been arrived at, but the response which I have met from the leaders of both parties is most gratifying.

"Any statement of any plan or method is wholly speculative and is not warranted by the facts."

There was no intimation either from the White House or from Capitol Hill as to what possible steps the President has in mind. There was, however, plenty of speculation.

It was suggested that the President might be considering American participation in an international conference for the purpose of working out a new scheme for the payment of German reparations and the payment of allied war debts to the United States.

It is reported in Europe that the British government has asked all European foreign ministers to be present at a meeting of the European Union Commission on July 13, and it was considered within the range of possibility that the United States might have a representative at that gathering.

War Debt Moratorium Hinted.

Under the Young reparations plan, Germany is obliged to pay the allied nations something like $27,000,000,000 up to 1988. In the same period, the allies are scheduled to pay the United States about $20,000,000,000 on their war debts.

Right now, the United States is receiving about $239,000,000 a year on the debts. The reparations payments which Great Britain receives are about equal to what she pays the United States. France, Italy and Belgium, however, are getting from Germany about $150,000,000 more a year than they pay to the United States, with France receiving the larger share of this difference.

It was suggested yesterday that President Hoover might have in mind a two-year moratorium on both reparations and debts—that is, a moratorium whereby the United States would be willing to forego allied payments on war debts for two years, if the allied nations would agree to a two-year holiday on German reparations payments.

Communist Revolt Feared.

This would give Germany a chance to emerge from the financial crisis in which she now finds herself, a crisis which some Germans fear might result in a revolution that would put the Communists in power.

There is a clause in the debt settlement agreements between the United States and the nations of Europe which provides for a two-year moratorium, and there is a similar provision in the Young reparations plan.

Another suggestion was that the United States might allow a moratorium on the payments which Germany is now making directly to this country. These are to cover the cost of the American Army of Occupation and the awards of the Mixed Claims

VANDERBILT FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Action Brought in Reno to Be Fought to Finish, Wife's Attorney Asserts.

Reno, Nev., June 19 (A.P.).—The Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr.-Peter Arno affair came to a sudden climax here today when Mr. Vanderbilt filed suit for divorce from the former Mary Davidson Weir Logan, and she as quickly announced she would fight the case to a finish.

"If there is to be any divorce in this case, it is going to be granted Mrs. Vanderbilt. We will fight every inch of the way," said William Woodburn, her attorney.

His announcement, which denied absolutely that Mrs. Vanderbilt had had an affair with Peter Arno, noted caricaturist, and that this had led to her separation from the young au-

Trio of Bankers Is Found Guilty

New York Jury Unable to Agree as to Guilt of Fourth Defendant.

New York, June 20 A.P.).—Three of the four officers of the closed bank of United States, on trial for misapplying funds, were convicted by a General Session jury at 2:15 a. m. today after deliberating twelve hours. The jury disagreed in the case of Henry W. Pollock.

The three convicted were: Bernard K. Marcus, president of the closed institution; Saul Singer, vice president and chairman of the executive committee, and his son, Herbert, a clerk.

They had been specifically charged with misapplying the funds of the Municipal Safe Deposit Co., a subsidiary of the bank. The trial was one of the longest in courts here, having started March 31.

RECALL OF MARINES SOUGHT BY HAITIANS

Legislative Chamber Adopts Report Demanding End of U. S. Policing.

Port au Prince, Haiti, June 19 (U.P.).—The legislative chamber today demanded that President Stenio Vincent act to end the "dangerous and illegal" occupation of Haiti by the United States.

The chamber's report, adopted by unanimous vote, declared the treaty with the United States permitting occupation has been nonexistent since May, 1926.

The presence of the American military force in Haiti is unnecessarily vexing and dangerous, in view of the fact that a stable government now has been established by election, the report to the president said. The president was asked to take immediate steps through regular channels to end the occupation.

"The convention signed September 16, 1916, expired May 3, 1926," the report said. "The additional act of May 28, 1917 (providing for extension of the occupation), is null and should be considered nonexistent.

"The Haitian executive should act diligently in the name of the republic to achieve suspension as soon as possible of the effects of the convention and the American military occupation."

The United States Marine occupation in Haiti has continued since 1915, when troops were landed to restore order after a revolution and massacre which was the climax of a long series of outbreaks on the island.

A treaty went into effect the next year legalizing the occupation and pledging the government to aid in establishment of an orderly government.

The United States also assumed part control of the nation's finances.

There was an outbreak in protest against the Marine occupation in 1929, which resulted in bloodshed, but President Hoover's commission for investigation of political condi-

Youthful Harvard Crew Beats Yale 2 1-2 Lengths

Elis Collapse After Drawing Even With Crimson Eight in Last Quarter of Dramatic Race; 50,000 Crowd Lines Course on Thames.

By ALAN GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor).

New London, Conn., June 19 (A.P.).—Harvard's great varsity crew broke the blue-bordered spell of rowing domination on the ancient Thames this evening with a smashing victory over a Yale crew that fought itself out in a gallant challenge to the Crimson eight.

In as dramatic a finish as the classic four-mile race has witnessed in many years, Harvard flashed through the fast gathering dusk at Bartletts Cove with a victorious margin of two and a half lengths, more than half of which was gained as the Elis virtually collapsed in the last quarter mile from the strain of their bid to overhaul the Crimson stalwarts.

Harvard's powerful young eight sprinted into a decisive advantage of more than a length within the first few hundred yards after the getaway over the upstream course and held at least a length's lead most of the way, but the drama of the long pull was packed into the last few hundred yards.

The Crimson had repulsed every Eli bid as they rowed bow to stern for fully three miles of the race through colorful, shrieking lanes of pleasure craft but the Blue oarsmen mustered the strength for one final surge going into the last half-mile. Foot by foot they closed the gap. Both hit up their beats. Both coxswains were exhorting their men like youthful maniacs. They were no more than a half-length apart with less than a quarter-mile to go, in the drive shoreward to the Cove.

Here the greater weight and power in the Harvard shell, paced by the mighty strokes of 19-year-old Gerard Commission. The payments are to be $18,000,000 a year for 37 years, and $9,700,000 for fifteen years thereafter.

Loan to Germany Suggested.

It was further suggested yesterday that the United States might advance Germany a loan to tide her over the present depression.

Another scheme that was heard in the speculation was one whereby the United States would scale down the British debt payments to the level of the payments being made by other allied countries, Great Britain to reduce the German reparations payments accordingly.

A scaling down of reparations payments and debt payments also was suggested, but this suggestion, like the others, was simply part of a general flurry of speculation that followed the White House announcement.

It is entirely possible, of course, that the President has no particular scheme in mind; that he is now casting about for one, and that his statement yesterday was for the purpose of stirring up a discussion that will result in the formulation of one.

Assailed Europe's Armaments.

Recently, in a speech before the International Chamber of Commerce, President Hoover assailed the tremendous armaments in Europe. He described Europe as a veritable armed camp, and cited the huge expenditure involved, something like $5,000,000,000 a year.

This speech, one of the most vigorous the President ever made, was widely interpreted as his answer to the agitation for cancellation or revision of Europe's debts to the United States.

There were some, however, who saw in the speech a hint that the United States might be willing to modify its debt policy in some way if the nations of Europe would agree to cut down their armies.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, is on record as saying that "If Europe would reduce armaments and disarm to a large extent, then I will be willing to cancel the war debts."

French Press Urges Arming.

However, there is a large section of the French press which sees no connection between armaments and reparations and debts. The stronger Germany becomes, it is argued, the more the need of a well-armed France.

Yesterday's revelation that President Hoover was grappling with the problem presented by the European economic crisis served to add a great deal more importance to the presence in England of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon and to the forthcoming European tour of Secretary of State Stimson.

Secretary Mellon has been insisting that he went to England simply to visit his son at Cambridge, but his talks with Prime Minister MacDonald and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, have convinced European observers that his visit is in connection with reparations and war debts.

Germans Opened Negotiations.

After Secretary Mellon had visited the House of Commons, it was announced that Premier MacDonald and Mr. Norman would visit Berlin on July 17 and confer with Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, whose recent trip to London served to reopen the question of reparations and war debts.

While the two Germans were in London, a manifesto was proclaimed which read as follows:

"The government is conscious of the fact that the direly menaced business and financial position of the Reich calls imperatively for alleviation of the unbearable reparations obligations. The economic recovery of the world also depends upon it."

Like Secretary Mellon, Secretary of State Stimson insists that his forthcoming visit to Europe has no special official significance. In view of the White House statement of yesterday, however, and in view of the fact that Secretary Stimson plans to call on the foreign ministers of several European countries, it will be difficult to make his tour seem no more than a vacation.

Stimson Talks With Hoover.

Secretary Stimson was the first man in a veritable parade to the White House in connection with the European situation. The President had him over to the White House Thursday night, not long after the presidential party returned from the Midwest.

Yesterday morning the President began his conferences at breakfast, calling in as his guests Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, ranking Republican on the Senate finance committee, and Representative Tilson (Republican), Connecticut, the majority leader of the House.

Then, in the course of the day, two influential Democrats were asked to call at the White House—Senator Glass, of Virginia, a former Secretary of the Treasury, and a prominent figure in the debt settlement negotiations, and Senator Thomas Walsh, of Montana, a member of the foreign relations committee.

Other Leaders Called In.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills and Assistant Secretary of Commerce Klein also were called to the White House by the President.

Others who conferred with the President in the course of the day were Senator King (Democrat), Utah; Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, and Representative Bacharach (Republican), New Jersey, a member of the House ways and means committee.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, chairman of the Senate finance committee, and the administration's main reliance in all financial matters, is scheduled to arrive in Washington today, and it is expected that he will have a lengthy conference with the President. There is reason to believe the President has summoned him here.

Honduran Federalists Kill 98 Insurgents

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, June 19 (A.P.).—The government announced tonight that 98 rebels and 30 federals had been killed in a battle against the revolutionary leader, Gen. Gregori Ferrena, during the last few days.

The statement said that Col. Emilio Lorenzo was among the 56 insurgents killed in severe fighting in the Jaral and Yojoa zones. There were also many wounded on both sides.

Woodcock to Visit New Orleans.

New Orleans, June 19 (U.P.).—Amos W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, will arrive in New Orleans Monday morning, it was learned here today. He is coming here to confer with local prohibition chiefs regarding the liquor situation in New Orleans and its environs.

Panama to Appeal to Hoover.

Panama City, June 19 (A.P.).—President Alfaro today cabled Minister Harmodio Arias in Washington to appeal to President Hoover as a last resort in an effort to retain for Panamanian cattle raisers the right to sell beef in the Canal Zone, which amounts to approximately $500,000 annually.

DEFICIT MAY BE CUT BELOW $900,000,000

Payments of Income Taxes for Single Day Amount to $89,910,855.

(Associated Press.)

Tax payers yesterday seemed determined to prove even the President can be wrong about Federal finances.

Recently, President Hoover estimated the deficit would stand at about $950,000,000 when the financial year closes June 30. The Treasury was then deeper in the red than since 1919.

But the deficit was tumbled abruptly below the Chief Executive's predicted figure yesterday by second quarter installment payments on 1930 incomes.

Judging by past records, Treasury officials believed the year would close with expenditures exceeding receipts by less than $900,000,000.

Large Drop Is Recorded.

The deficit stood at $945,956,020 at the close of business June 17, yesterday's tabulation showed, as compared with a preceding day figure of $1,017,241,877.

On the credit sheet for the day were income tax payments of $89,910,855, a total which exceeded payments on March 17 by $1,000,000.

In estimating a last-day deficit of less than $900,000,000, officials had placed June income tax collections at $290,000,000. Tabulations to date show $165,807,977 of this sum is already in Government coffers.

Another explanation of the declining deficit was found in the expenditures column. Earlier estimates had placed the fiscal year aggregate at about $4,435,000,000, while, with only a dozen days remaining, Government expenses are running nearly $350,000,000 below this sum.

Income Revenue Is $1,730,000,000.

For the financial year to June 17, the Treasury had collected $3,140,884,200 in revenue, of which income taxes supplied $1,730,436,800, customs receipts $365,045,300 and other internal revenue taxes $549,087,500.

In 1930 the corresponding total revenue figure was $3,925,885,700, with income taxes coming to $2,223,674,800, customs receipts to $561,271,000 and miscellaneous internal revenue to $605,039,300.

Departmental expenditures were still running ahead of last year with an outlay of $2,315,379,700, as compared with $2,110,442,300.

The largest increases in outgoing funds were found in the postal deficiency, Federal Farm Board and payments on veterans' bonus certificates. The postal deficiency allotment was $48,000,000 larger on June 17 than on that day last year, the Farm Board outlay $70,000,000 larger and the veterans' expenditure $112,000,000 larger.

Balchen Will Get Citizenship Papers

Norwegian Pilot's 5-Year Residence Will Be Up on June 23.

Newark, N. J., June 19 (A.P.).—Bernt Balchen, modest Norwegian aviation technician and pilot, soon will become an American citizen.

Mr. Balchen apparently became mixed up in his dates about a month ago, when he applied for his final papers of citizenship. The application did not go through, resulting in a report that citizenship had been denied the man who flew across the Atlantic and to the top and bottom of the world.

Harold P. Woertendyke, divisional director of naturalization, today said that Mr. Balchen's five-year period would not be up until June 23, when he may legally apply for the final papers. He said all time spent with Rear Admiral Byrd would count in the five years, because the applicant was under the flag of the United States during the long months in the Antarctic.

Californians Launch Hoover Election Boom

San Francisco, Calif., June 19 (A.P.).—A campaign to reelect Herbert Hoover President in 1932 was under way in California today. The campaign was launched last night by a meeting of Republican leaders of this vicinity at a banquet. A telegram was sent to the President. It read:

"The Republicans of San Francisco and the bay area in an enthusiastic meeting fired the first gun for the 1932 Hoover camtpaign. On to a greater victory than 1928 is our slogan." It was signed by Marshall Hale, chairman of the Republican State central committee; United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Representative Florence P. Kahn and others.

Navy Conference Secrecy Ordered

Adams Approves Effort to Prevent Leaks From Official Parleys.

(Associated Press.)

To prevent leakage of information, Navy officials have been directed to maintain silence concerning matters discussed at departmental conferences.

A report that such an order had been issued a week ago was verified yesterday by Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations. He denied any particular occurrence had caused its issuance and said it was done "as a matter of good business."

Pratt added that when he was assistant chief of naval operations during the World War he found it expedient to have a similar policy in force in the interest of efficiency. The order was drawn by Admiral Pratt June 10 and approved by Secretary Adams June 12. It said "occasionally the conferences which have been held by various offices of the department are not treated as executive in character."

2 Workers Dead, 5 Hurt In Bridge Scaffold Fall

Carthage, Tenn., June 19 (A.P.).—Two bridge workmen were killed and five others injured near here today as scaffolds on a span under construction over the Caney Fork River collapsed.

Five other workers leaped to safety as the mass of concrete, timbers and steel beams crumpled under them.

EVANS ESTATE ACQUIRED AS PARK SITE

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

This property once known as Acclimation Park, the site of Victor J. Evans' private zoo, was purchased yesterday by the National Park and Planning Commission as part of the fort drive project which will link the Civil War forts which circle the city. Some of the animals in the collection which was willed to the local zoo are seen grazing in the foreground, the zoo not yet having completed housing facilities for the collection.

PARK BODY ACQUIRES EVANS ESTATE LAND

13 Acres Are Obtained as Link in Fort Drive Project for District.

Another link in the Fort drive project was forged yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission with the acquisition of thirteen acres of the estate of the late Victor J. Evans, prominent patent attorney. The land is the site of Mr. Evans' famous private zoo and is only a part of the estate.

The Fort drive project will lead to the Civil War fortifications which encircle Washington. The land adjoins Fort Kimble, one of the historic batteries of the '60s, and fronts on Chain Bridge road along Maddox Branch.

Tenative plans are to make part of the thirteen acres a recreational center. Tennis courts and other facilities will be provided in the future to take the place of those taken from the residents of Wesley Heights and that vicinity. Plans for developing the area will not be undertaken immediately, however.

Zoo Was Evans' Hobby.

The old zoo house, which was substantially constructed, will probably be used as a recreational building under the tentative plans.

The Zoo was a hobby of Mr. Evans. He had a number of valuable animals there, and his collection of birds was said to have been one of the finest owned by a private individual. The children of the neighborhood were always permitted to play on the zoo grounds, and friends estimated it cost Mr. Evans $20,000 a year to maintain his hobby.

National Zoo Benefited.

His will bequeathed most of the animals to the National Zoo, but a few of the animals are still left at the estate, Acclimation Park, while officials at the National Zoo arrange places to keep them.

The Park and Planning Commission discussed playground and park sites at the meeting yesterday and the members later inspected the new Mount Vernon Memorial highway. Officials were instructed to prepare estimates on the cost of suggested changes at the approaches to the Highway Bridge.

One proposal would involve extension of Fifteenth street, and construction of a new bridge across the Tidal Basin.

Two Efforts to Form Austrian Cabinet Fail

Vienna, June 19 (A.P.).—Dr. Ignaz Seipel, former chancellor of Austria, announced tonight he had failed in two attempts to form a new cabinet.

After an unsuccessful effort to form a concentration Government, with Socialists included, he also failed to get together a Pan-German and agrarian cabinet.

Split With Spain Held Unnecessary by Pope

Madrid, June 19 (A.P.).—It was learned in reliable Catholic circles tonight that the recent papal note to the Spanish government vigorously protested against the expulsion of Cardinal Segura, primate of Spain, but did not deem necessary a break of relations betwen the Vatican and Spain.

It is believed that Papal Nuncio Tedeschini will remain in Madrid.

Plea for Cow Grazing Hits Postoffice Delay

Boston, June 19 (A.P.).—Permission to graze cows on the site of Boston's new postoffice, with the assurance they would in no way interfere with workmen, was sought today by Mayor James M. Curley.

The mayor, who has often voiced his disapproval of what he described as lack of progress in the erection of the building, sent his letter to Postmaster General Brown.

He also included a photograph of the site, depicting what he said was the progress being made on the building, authorized in 1929. It was a daylight picture of the foundation, still in the process of construction, and showed not a single workman on the scene.

WORLD WAR AIDS HOLD SESSION HERE

Reconstruction Groups Join in Dedicating Pillar at Red Cross House.

The second national convention of the World War Reconstruction Aids Association opened yesterday morning at the Carlton Hotel with a business session lasting from 9 o'clock until noon.

The association is composed of physiotherapists and occupational therapists who served both in this country and overseas in Army hospitals during the World War.

At 12:30 o'clock a buffet luncheon was served in the Carlton patio. Following this, the entire group went to the new Red Cross Chapter House, where a simple ceremony was held to commemorate the dedication of the World War reconstruction aids' pillar, while music was furnished by the Marine Band.

At 3:15 the aids gathered in Arlington National Cemetery, where Miss Louisa Lippitt, national president of the association, placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

After the ceremony at Arlington Cemetery, the association paid a visit to Walter Reed Hospital, where many of the aids formerly served.

The convention will close this evening with a banquet at the Carlton Hotel. The morning and afternoon will be taken up with business sessions.

Pat Harrison Opposes U. S. Tax On Gasoline

Gulfport, Miss., June 19 (A.P.).—Opposition to any form of Federal taxation on gasoline or automobiles was expressed in a statement today by Senator Pat Harrison, Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the Senate finance committee.

"There is no reason thirteen years following the war for a war tax to be continued or imposed," he said. "Taxing gasoline and automobiles ought to be exclusively the function of State government."

OFFICIALS TO PLAN 5-DAY SHOP WEEK

Southern Railway and Union Heads Will Soon Confer on Accepted Cut.

(Associated Press.)

Labor representatives and officials of the Southern Railway System plan to meet within a few days to complete arrangements for Southern shop employes to begin working on a five-day-week basis.

The shopmen have already voted to accept a five-day week, instead of the six-day week specified in their contract with the railroad.

Railroad officials proposed the plan. They informed the shopmen a reduction in expenses was imperative and that the alternative to the five-day week was a reduction in the number of men working.

H. J. Carr, vice president of the International Association of Machinists, in announcing acceptance of the proposal, yesterday said there would be no cut in the hourly wage scale.

Approximately 6,000 workers for the Southern will be affected. They include boilermakers, machinists, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, electrical workers and car men.

Mr. Carr said he looked for no hitch in the negotiations with railroad officials. He emphasized, however, that the arrangement was temporary and said its continuance depended upon business revival, accompanied by an increase in railroad revenues. He said it had no connection with proposals advanced by labor representatives for a five-day week with the same pay as for six days.

A number of railroads, he said, had, in effect, put the five-day week into operation already. He explained that provisions in their contract made it unnecessary for a vote to be taken, as was the case with the Southern shopmen.

Mr. Carr said he had heard that other railroads might adopt a five-day week in preference to laying off more men, but that no votes on such proposals were being taken by workers at present.

Gomez "Consents" To Head Venezuela

Former Dictator Again to Be President With Even Wider Powers.

Caracas, Venezuela, June 19 (U.P.).—Gen. Juan Vicente Gomez, grizzled country gentleman and soldier, who has "imposed peace" on Venezuela for a score of years, sent word tonight from his estate at Maracay of his acceptance of the presidency of the nation to which he was reelected today and which henceforth will be vested with wider powers.

Known to his friends as El Benemerito—the well-deserving—and quick to be angered when his foes termed him a tyrant, Gen. Gomez has been the most powerful figure in Venezuela since 1908.

Amid the cheers of his political supporters and shouts of "Viva Gomez" from the galleries, congress voted unanimously to ask him to succeed resigned President Dr. Juan Bautista Perez, who assumed office in 1929. Perez, who succeeded Gen. Gomez in the presidency, resigned on Saturday after the congress had requested him to leave office.

States to Receive Rail Request Soon

Intrastate Freight to Be Covered in Local Rate Petitions.

(Associated Press.)

Requests for intrastate freight rate increases, companion pieces to the proposed interstate increase, are expected to reach State railroad commissions within a short time.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday made public a letter in which Clyde Brown, attorney for railroads, said petitions would go forward to State commissions as soon as possible. These petitions will follow the same line laid down in the general petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission. In this document the railroads pleaded their financial situation was such that higher revenues were vital.

Preparations were made yesterday for a meeting today between members of the commission and the committee on cooperation of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners. Methods of procedure will be discussed.

Cotton Pest Chief Named.

(Associated Press.)

The Agriculture Department yesterday appointed R. W. Harned, head of the State plant board of Mississippi, as leader of the division of cotton insect investigations of the Bureau of Entomology. Harned, who has been professor of zoology and entomology at Mississippi A. and M. College since 1906, will succeed B. R. Coad, resigned.

Mother and Police Chief Censured for Jailing Boy

Annapolis Criticizes Parent and Officer for Locking Child, 4, in Cell Overnight; Mayor and Commissioner Aroused by Incident.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 19.—Annapolis was all agog today over the act of a young mother who had her 4-year-old son locked up in the city police station overnight as a disciplinary measure, and the parent, as well as Chief of Police Richard B. Holliday, who placed the boy in the cell, came in for a good bit of censure at the hands of Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt and Police Commissioner R. Lee Waller.

The mother in question is Mrs. Dorothy Perry, wife of Lieut. Roger Perry, of the Navy, and daughter of Commander Walter B. Tardy, of the Navy (retired), and Mrs. Tardy, of Annapolis. The boy is Roger Perry, jr. Aroused at the publicity given the incident, Mrs. Perry today made a statement in which she said she did not deliberately direct the police to lock the boy up, but admitted his incorrigibility; that he frequently got beyond her control and wandered away from the yard of the Perry residence in Hanover street.

Mrs. Perry claims Roger wandered away on Wednesday, and the police were asked to locate him and detain him at police headquarters. Upon learning the child had been placed in a cell, Mrs. Perry went to police headquarters conveying a pillow and blanket to her son. It was not until yesterday morning that the lad was released at the instance of Police Commissioner Waller immediately after learning of the affair.

Both Mayor Quenstedt and Commissioner Waller were greatly aroused over the matter. The mayor had taken steps for a thorough investigation by a committee of the city council, but after recalling that power over police affairs was taken out of the hands of the city executive and vested entirely in the hands of the police commissioner under an act of the late Legislature which created that office the mayor left the situation with Commissioner Waller. The latter, in no uncertain terms, described the act of the mother as well as that of Police Chief Holliday as gross errors of judgment. "A police station cell is no place for a child under any circumstances," said Mr. Waller, "and but for the fact that I was absent from the city Wednesday night, I would certainly have blocked such proceedings. I can not conceive of a parent doing such a thing."

20 DIE AS SUN HOLDS NATION IN FIERY GRIP

Heat Sears Middle West; Temperature Hits 90s in New England.

Chicago, Ill., June 19 (A.P.).—A blasting sun seared the Midwest again today, bringing more than a score of deaths from heat or drowning in attempts to escape it.

Only slight relief was promised for the week-end as temperatures jumped to the nineties generally throughout the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys and the Great Lakes region, broken only by a local storm in northwest Wisconsin.

Today's deaths were added to yesterday's toll of five fatal prostrations and two drownings as the warm weather struck for the first time in force.

Mattoon, Ill., reported an unofficial high of 102 degrees, and Waterloo, Iowa, 100. Carbondale, Ill., had 97. It was 95 in St. Louis, Lincoln, Nebr., and Cincinnati; Omaha, Indianapolis and St. Paul, 97; Columbus, Ohio, 95; Detroit, 92, and 91 in Cleveland and Duluth, Minn.

The heat affected Minnesota most, to judge by its death list. Five fatalities from drowning and three due to the heat were reported. Chicago blamed three deaths on the heat.

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—About 72 hours ahead of schedule, summer rested a fevered hand upon virtually the whole Eastern area of the country today, sending the mercury close to the 100 mark in several communities, New York's official temperature was 86 degrees.

Nashville, Tenn., achieved the distinction of being the only city to hang up a weather record, with a temperature of 99 and .24 inch of rainfall. Other Southern cities were hot, but only Wheeling, W. Va., equalled Nashville's temperature.

New England, usually fanned at this time by June's cooling sea breezes, reported temperatures of from 89 at New Haven, Conn., to 92 at Springfield, Mass., and the same at Boston. It was only the fourth time since 1873 that the mark had been touched.

At Portland, Me., it was 90; at Philadelphia it was 89. Newark, N. J., with 86, made a year's record, with one prostration.

A rip-roaring blizzard of the wintriest kind howled across the Western Hudson Bay region of Canada last night, pelted the countryside with two inches of snow and sent thermometers skidding far below freezing.

Northwest Asks Help As Drought Threatens

(Associated Press.)

New warnings of drought in the far Northwest reached the Capital yesterday with appeals for help.

Secretary Hyde, who is considering the appeals, is understood to feel he is without authority to spend the money appropriated last session for drought relief on the ground that it was for the last year's drought. However, he is considering steps to be taken.

Bingham Suggests New Air Program

Asks Hoover to Recommend Another Five-Year Building Schedule.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Bingham yesterday asked President Hoover to recommend a new five-year airplane program for the Army and Navy.

The Connecticut, Republican said the present five-year program was nearing its end and unless something was done at the next Congress the two services would drop behind in aviation development and the airplane industry would be practically wrecked.

He said six years ago, when the Morrow board, which recommended the present program, was sitting at the Capital, only 32 actual combat planes could be assembled from the two services. A carefully outlined program for the next five years, built on details furnished by the Army and Navy, he said, would enable the airplane industry to continue its development with some certainty. Bingham is president of the National Aeronautic Association.

Ship Board Asked To Take Back Fleet

United States Lines Seeks to Avoid Continued Heavy Loss.

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—The Herald Tribune says directors of the United States Lines have suggested to the Shipping Board that all or part of the company's fleet be returned to Government ownership. The suggestion was made, the paper states, in order to stave off further heavy financial losses or at least to ease the company's burden until conditions improve.

Two proposals were placed before the board Thursday. One was that the Government take back the eleven vessels of the fleet, outstanding of which is the Leviathan, and permit the owners to operate them on a lump sum basis.

The other proposal called for the Government to reacquire the Leviathan and the Republic and permit the United States Lines to operate them for the Government. The Leviathan and Republic are reported to have suffered heavy losses this year. Under the lump sum plan, the Shipping Board would pay the company for its services, costs and risks. In return the company would assume complete physical and financial responsibility for the operation of the line.

Rio de Janeiro to Greet Gigantic DO-X Today

Rio de Janeiro, June 19 (A.P.).—The huge German seaplane Do-X today continued its flight toward the Brazilian capital and landed at Sao Pedro de Aldeia, near Cabo Frio, from Bahia, at 5:05 p. m., the National Telegraph reported. It is planned to cover the last stage on the transatlantic flight to Rio de Janeiro tomorrow.

Representatives of the municipality, aviation companies, the army and the navy have arranged a warm reception for the officers and crew of the Do-X.

Draper Renamed To Power Board

Nominee Center of Warm Fight in Congress, Is Kept in Office.

(Associated Press.)

Claude L. Draper, one of the power commissioners whose nominations caused a major controversy at the last session of Congress, yesterday was reappointed to the commission by President Hoover.

After confirming Draper's nomination and those of Chairman Smith and Commissioner Marcel Garsaud, the Senate voted reconsideration and asked President Hoover to resubmit their names. This the chief executive refused to do. The Senate went ahead nevertheless, but reconfirmed Garsaud and Draper. Smith's nomination was rejected and the question whether he is legally a member of the commission is now being fought in the courts.

Draper's nomination for reappointment will come before the Senate next session. In the meantime he will serve under the usual recess appointment.

U. S. Awaits Canadian Move on St. Lawrence

(Associated Press.)

A stalemate in negotiations between the United States and Canada for development of the St. Lawrence waterway was reported yesterday by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, after conferences at the White House and the Canadian Legation.

Senator Walsh inquired of President Hoover about prospects for progress in the St. Lawrence development and was informed the United States is awaiting a move by Canada for negotiation of a treaty.

Canadian Minister Herridge told the senator he was returning shortly to Ottawa and hoped to be in a position to announce upon his return some plan of action.

Hoover Receives Sheaf Of Tariff Suggestions

(Associated Press.)

The Tariff Commission yesterday sent a large number of recommendations to President Hoover. What items were included in the mass of documents placed on the President's desk was not made known.

Chairman Fletcher, of the Tariff Commission, called on the President for a brief conference, but would not comment. The reorganized commission has completed nearly 100 examinations of schedules since passage of the 1930 tariff act.

Woman Goes to Geneva Session.

Miss Doris Stevens, chairman of the Interamerican Commission for Women, sailed last night at midnight on the Europa to attend a meeting of the League of Nation's women's consultative committee on nationality, opening July 2 in the League of Nations Building, Geneva.

Citizenship Denial Reopened by Nurse

Right to Force Women to Promise to Bear Arms Is Challenged.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court was asked yesterday to reconsider its recent 5-to-4 decision refusing citizenship to Maria A. Bland, who, as a conscientious objector, would not pledge herself to bear arms in defense of the United States.

Miss Bland is a Canadian nurse. After the World War she nursed American soldiers in France. In seeking naturalization she said she would willingly go into the front line trenches as a nurse, but that religious scruples would not permit her to take up arms.

Challenging the right of the court to read into the naturalization act an intention by Congress that women must promise to bear arms in order to become citizens, the Bland petition asserted such a ruling was against every instinct and tradition of American civilization. The men of this country, it said, would "never permit women to do their fighting for them."

LaGuardia Scores Reserve Bank Aid

Inability of Merchants to Obtain Loans Cited in Complaint.

(Associated Press.)

A more encouraging attitude by the Federal Reserve System toward business was recommended to Gov. Eugene Meyer yesterday by Representative LaGuardia.

Saying he had heard complaints about "the inability of manufacturers and business men to obtain bank loans to finance their usual operations and even to manufacture goods that have already been ordered," the New York Republican asserted "something is wrong with a banking system that will stifle industry to such an extent."

LaGuardia inclosed a letter from Charles A. Carlson, president of the Remington-Keystone Manufacturing Co., Ridley Park, Pa., to Ingilis M. Uppercue, of New York City, in which Carlson said banks had declined a $50,000 first mortgage on property appraised at about $130,000 and added: "It would be interesting to find out why no Federal Reserve help comes out to the small manufacturer through their local banks and how much of the banks' frozen assets consist of loans to manufacturers and compare this per cent with loans of clients that buy stock on margin."

SCHULTZ INDICTED; GANG WAR LOOMS

New York "Public Enemies" Face Federal Drive Like Chicago's.

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—A grand jury today indicted Dutch Schultz, Bronx hoodlum chief. At the same time police learned that civil war was imminent among New York's "public enemies," who are under the same sort of official scrutiny that put a check to the activities of Al Capone in Chicago.

Underworld reports told of the return to town of Vincent Coll, a former Schultz underling, and those reports said Coll was rolling an ambitious eye at the momentarily empty throne of his old leader. Coll, it was said, left town a few weeks ago to recuperate from wounds inflicted in a gun battle with followers of Joe and Pete Rao, who wield considerable unofficial influence in the Bronx.

Should Coll actually attempt to assume the mantle of Dutch Schultz while the latter is held helpless in the strong arms of the law, officials consider it possible the public enemies might well divide into conflicting ranks and wage war on each other as well as the innocently bystanding public.

Schultz, whose real name is Fleganheimer, was arrested yesterday outside his $2,500-a-year Fifth avenue apartment, where he lives under the name of Russell Jones. Two detectives were following them. Dan Iamaccia, one of Dutch's muscle men, suddenly drew a pistol and opened fire. The detectives fired back and fatally wounded Iamaccia. They found a pistol and $18,645 in cash on Schultz.

The grand jury indicted the racketeer today for possession of a pistol and for first and second degree assault on the detectives. His record shows nine previous arrests on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to homicide. He "beat the rap" in every instance but one, when he was convicted of housebreaking.

Federal investigators, who are here pursuing the same campaign against gangsters as they did in Chicago, were kept closely informed of developments by police. Belated income tax returns were pouring in today from frightened racketeers who saw the writing on the wall, but this will do them no good as Federal officials said no excuse would be accepted for tardiness.

Worker Hurt Fatally As Cubans Stage Riot

Manzanillo, Cuba, June 19 (A.P.).—A laborer, named Santiesteban, was reported fatally wounded and an unidentified policeman seriously hurt as soldiers and police tonight battled 500 unemployed demonstrating workers in the streets of Manzanillo.

Many store windows were damaged and street lights were broken as the police exchanged shots with the workers. There were unconfirmed reports that several others had been injured.

Third Degree Sketched In Gordon Murder Case

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—A picture of a "third degree" in which rubber hose was wielded and lighted cigarets used as instruments of torture on a star witness was sketched today by the defense in the Vivian Gordon murder trial and then vigorously disputed by the State.

The police detention and treatment of Harry Schlitten, Newark, N. J., chauffeur, regarded as the key man in the case against Harry Stein and Samuel Greenberg, was the focal point in the seventh day of the trial in a Bronx courtroom.

LIVING ROOM FURNISHED BY NEW YORK GANGSTER

Here is the living room of Dutch Schultz's expensive three-room apartment on upper Fifth avenue, New York, with a plain clothesman looking over the binoculars and guns found by the windows. Dutch was labeled "New York public enemy No. 4," but he and an aid ran into a couple of tough policemen and now he is a public charge. Dutch, that is. The aid is dead.

CATHOLICS CAUTIOUS IN VERA CRUZ FIGHT

Churchmen Gather in Mexico City to Protest Law Limiting Priests.

Mexico City, June 19 (A.P.).—Officials of the Catholic Church, gathered in Mexico City to contest the new Vera Cruz law which limits the number of priests and bishops for the entire state to eleven, resolved today to proceed cautiously.

Archbishop Ruiz Flores, papal nuncio to Mexico, has protested vigorously to President Artiz Rubio and has asked that the president intervene.

The president is ill at his home and it was expected today he would not reply for several days.

Although the church officials who have gathered here agreed on a policy of caution, they did not tamper with instructions to priests in Vera Cruz that they ignore the new law. It was expected these instructions would result in the virtual vacating of the churches by the priests.

Gov. Tejeda of Vera Cruz, who was summoned to Mexico City last night to confer with federal officials about the situation resulting from the enforcement of the new law, attended conferences today, but did not make a public statement.

The department of interior, where many protests against the law have been received, was similarly silent.

Dispatches from Jalapa today said that workers and public employes were organizing a demonstration Sunday in favor of the new law and in support of the governor, who sponsored it.

Catholic officials in Vera Cruz have urged their people to make protests to the president and to the ministry of interior.

Church officers have determined to seek court injunctions to prevent enforcement of the law.

Quake Shakes Spanish City.

Murcia, Spain, June 19 (A.P.).—Two severe earth shocks were felt here today, causing slight damage and alarming the inhabitants. The first tremor was felt at 9:30 a. m. and the second, more intense, followed shortly afterward.

Liquor Cache Is Found At Bottom of River

Special to The Washington Post.

Norfolk, Va., June 19.—Federal prohibition agents today found 1,000 gallons of whisky at the bottom of North Landing River. They also found a distilling plant near the bank and about 3,000 gallons of mash almost ready to be run through the copper coils at the main plant.

The whisky was found in about 16 feet of water. The prohibition agents say that the owners employed a diver to go down to the bottom of the river to bring it up as it was needed.

The whisky was described as being of unusually high grade, a product of corn mash, and apparently at least 4 months old. Secret agents had been operating in the vicinity of the undersea storage place for several weeks. They observed whisky being lowered to the botom of the river on several occasions, but when the raid was made today the operators had managed to make their getaway and it is believed that they had been tipped off.

salesman for a rubber mattress manufacturing firm.

While Mrs. Valentine did not say the screams she heard came from the Faithfull home, she did say they came from that direction. Her apartment is directly back of the apartment at No. 12 St. Luke's place.

Inspector King and members of the Faithfull family spent Friday night checking a clew which King hoped would be "a break" in the case. He wouldn't say what the clew was.

It was indicated, however, by the questioning he did late in the day that evidence pointed more and more toward suicide. The two men, however, will be questioned fully before the case is closed, it was said.

One man is Dr. G. Jameson Carr, whom Starr Faithfull, sex-frustrated Greenwich Village girl, loved; the other is a mysterious "Bruce," who helped her into a cab when she left the Mauretania pier for the last time the Friday afternoon she vanished.

U. S. Submarine S-31 Damaged Off China

Shanghai (Saturday), Ju: 20 (A.P.).—The U. S. S. Houston advised the local naval office today the American submarine S-31 had suffered an accident off Tsingtao. The submarine's port propeller shaft was out of commission, the navy office said, and three propeller blades were shattered.

Whether the S-31's hull had been damaged, the date or the cause of the accident were not mentioned in the dispatch from the Houston to the naval office.

FASCIST NEWSPAPER RENEWS CLUB ISSUE

Publishes Purported Orders to Catholic Groups as Chiefs Seek Accord.

Rome, June 19 (A.P.).—The Pope continued today to restore in various parts of Italy the right to hold religious processions and government officials, for the first time, talked about the special negotiations being conducted with the view of reestablishing accord with the Vatican.

The government contends that, in the exchange of notes with the Vatican, it has done its share toward a solution of the controversy by satisfying the Pope's demand for apology with something equivalent to "reassuring words."

The issue of the Catholic clubs for laymen remains unsettled, although the recent reopening of some of them, and the incorporation of others into new or reorganized societies, is suggested unofficially as a possible ultimate solution.

While the formula of accord was being sought, the newspaper, Lavora Fascista, which first attacked the Catholic Action Society, today published what are purported to be instructions to Catholic clubs to maintain their existence even if dissolved by government order.

These instructions, the newspaper says, were given clubs in the Disenza Diocese, apparently just before the government dissolution order was decreed, or simultaneously with it.

The paper quotes the instructions thus: "The life of the clubs must continue with all serenity and with the same activities with which they have carried on until now.

"This is not the time to be sheep, but to continue those external manifestations which have already been established or may be considered opportune."

The supposed instructions say that members must remember that no one must detach himself from the body to which he belongs. Members are exhorted to go to church every Sunday "and this liberty must be defended even with our blood."

The newspaper's version of the instructions also sets forth that members are to be neither audacious nor rabbits.

Hillig, Hoiriis Finish First Lap on Ocean Hop

St. Johns, New Brunswick, June 19 (A.P.).—Otto Hillig and Holger Hoiriis, flying from Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., to Newfoundland on their way to Denmark, brought their plane down here tonight at 7:30 o'clock, Eastern standard time.

The Liberty, N. Y., flying photographer and his pilot grounded the Liberty gracefully at the St. John airport. They said they would refuel and take off, weather permitting, in the morning for the point from which they will try to hop the Atlantic. The fliers reported excellent flying conditions all the way from the New Jersey airport. Weather here tonight was clear.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT FILES ACTION FOR DIVORCE IN RENO

thor, followed a three-hour conference from which she emerged with a tear-stained face. She attempted a smile as she refused requests of newspapermen for a statement.

"Mrs. Vanderbilt was hoping that this whole matter would be settled amicably," Mr. Woodburn said. "It was a great surprise to her when she was notified this morning that Mr. Vanderbilt had started action for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty.

"If there is any cruelty in this case, it is all on the part of Mr. Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt has the utmost confidence that in the ultimate determination of this matter that she will prevail. She is entirely innocent of any misconduct and the only one who has suffered in this matter has been herself."

Mr. Vanderbilt's divorce action was filed shortly after the county clerk's office opened this morning. It took both Mr. Woodburn and Mrs. Vanderbilt by surprise, for both apparently had been given to understand a legal separation and not a divorce would be sought.

The complaint did not go into detail, merely complying with statutory requirements, and stating that Mr. Vanderbilt had suffered from "extreme cruelty" on the part of his wife.

Samuel Platt, Mr. Vanderbilt's attorney, would offer no additional information. Neither would Mr. Vanderbilt, who had been instructed not to talk.

Meanwhile, Mr. Arno said he was contemplating filing a slander suit against Mr. Vanderbilt as the result of statements made concerning him.

Details of the Arno incident as related by Mr. Vanderbilt were denied by Mr. Woodburn today.

"Mrs. Vanderbilt had known Arno only ten days when this matter came up," Mr. Woodburn said.

"With Mr. Vanderbilt, she, Arno and others were present at a party a week ago Thursday. For the last three days Vanderbilt seemed to be more amiable than at any other time in their married life. On Sunday, however, he blew up and Mrs. Vanderbilt left home.

"There never was any gun-chasing of Arno by Vanderbilt; in fact, Vanderbilt has not seen Arno since a week ago. He did, however, call him on the telephone and threaten him. That is as far as the matter went."

Mr. Woodburn said that he was awaiting service of a summons before taking definite action in the case.

Mr. Platt said he had conferred with Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorney relative to arrangements for her support, but no agreement had been reached.

"Mr. Vanderbilt wants to do the fair thing and provide at least temporarily for his wife's support," Mr Platt said.

The Vanderbilts were married in Reno July 3, 1928, after both had been divorced.

Mr. Vanderbilt sued his first wife, Rachel Little Vanderbilt, on grounds of cruelty, but the decree was granted to her on a cross complaint charging desertion.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's first husband was Walter Hancock Logan, broker.

DRYS STRATEGY BODY COMBINES FACTIONS

Old Line Prohibition Chiefs and Younger Leaders Named Members.

(Associated Press.)

New and old-line dry organizations were joined yesterday in a combined "board of strategy," designed to coordinate dry effort in the 1932 presidential campaign.

In the series of dry conferences the Capital has seen during the past six months, some of the younger leaders publicly have advocated stronger methods than those approved by the older groups.

Two weeks ago the new Allied Forces, recently created by some of the dissenting leaders, announced plans for a whirlwind barnstorming campaign to arouse prohibition sentiment for the political conventions of next summer.

As the partial list of strategy board members appeared today, however, the names of Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Christian Endeavor leader, and Dr. Oliver W. Stewart, head of the Flying Squadron Foundation, who promoted the Allied Forces, were placed together with the names of those prominent in the old-line group.

Among the latter were F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League; Dr. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Board of the Temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the W. C. T. U., and Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, chairman of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment.

Cannon, Nicholson Chosen.

Others prominent on the board of strategy were Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president of the Antisaloon League, and Willis J. Abbot, of the Christian Science Monitor.

One of the few prominent dry leaders remaining in the Capital yesterday pointed out that although the strategy board probably would recommend the dry forces follow the same lines as in the 1928 campaign—concentrated principally in the fight for dry candidates—it was planned to do more preconvention work than in the past. What this work will be was not specified.

The announcement of the allied forces two weeks ago disclosed that Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Sheppard, of Texas, one of the fathers of the prohibition law, had been recruited to aid in their barnstorming campaign.

The organization said at least $350,000 would be spent in staging 1,500 nonchurch meetings throughout the country, starting next fall, at each of which pledges would be distributed for new dry membership.

Thus far, 35 members have been chosen for the board. At the meeting of the executive committee of the national conference of organizations here June 26, dry leaders expected that additional names would be added.

Others Named to Board.

Others among those so far named are:

The Rev. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the National Temperance Bureau; Dr. W. G. Clippinger, president of Otterbein College, Westerville, Ohio; Grant M. Hudson, former Republican representative from Michigan; Robert L. Owen, former Democratic senator from Oklahoma; the Rev. Ira Landrith, superintendent of the International Society of Christian Endeavor; P. H. Callahan, of Louisville, secretary of the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition; Col. Raymond Robbins, of New York; the Rev. S. E. Nicholson, of the New York Antisaloon League; George H. Wilson, Quincy, Ill., lawyer; Mrs. Catherin Waugh McCulloch, Chicago lawyer; the Rev. Homer W. Tope, of the Pennsylvania Antisaloon League.

The Rev. J. K. Montgomery, president Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio; Canon William S. Chase, Brooklyn, president of the International Reform Federation; Miss Norma C. Brown, vice president of the Flying Squadron Foundation; Thomas B. Love, a leader of the anti-Smith Democrats in Texas; the Rev. J. W. Claudy, department of moral welfare of the Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Renwick H. Martin, of Pittsburgh, president of the National Reform Association.

Don C. McMullen, Florida State senator; the Rev. A. C. Millar, editor of the Arkansas Methodist; Bishop James M. Moore, Dallas, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; Mrs. J. W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Md., head of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League.

CHANCE OF U. S. AID CHEERED IN LONDON and Foreign Secretary Henderson to Berlin.

Whether Mr. Mellon's visit in London is official or is purely private, as he insists, the American Secretary of the Treasury is understood to have listened at length since his arrival to facts and figures regarding the serious economic situation in Europe.

Talks With Officials.

Mr. Mellon's informants have been Prime Minister MacDonald, with whom he has conferred twice; Foreign Secretary Henderson and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England.

In addition to these, it is understood he also has talked with a representative of the Bank of France who called on him at his hotel.

It was commented in unofficial British circles that the American Secretary's position here as a private visitor was such that he hardly could do more than listen to an outline of conditions in Europe, of which he is likely to hear and see more on his probable visit to the continent.

The importance of the United States in world affairs is taken for granted and it is felt no solution in Europe is possible without the United States at least knowing exactly what it is all about, and for that reason Mr. Mellon's visit and the forthcoming trip of Secretary of State Stimson are regarded as particularly timely.

MacDonald Denies Invitation.

Prime Minister MacDonald, however, today took occasion to issue a denial of London newspaper report that an invitation had been extended to the American Secretary to visit Great Britain, or that the United States had been invited to participate in discussions concerning debts and reparations or any other kind.

It was noted authoritatively that on the first day of Mr. Mellon's arrival in Great Britain he had a vivid illustration of the serious situation in Europe in an eleventh hour extension of a $22,000,000 credit to the Creditanstalt of Vienna, which is believed in British official circles to have staved off a desperate situation in Austria.

This loan was issued without any strings whatsoever, it was stated. In this connection, the Manchester Guardian, in an editorial today, said that the French, in proffering the loan, had insisted as one of the provisions that the projected Austro-German economic union be abandoned.

Mr. Mellon is believed to have heard it detail about this from Mr. Norman and about the situation in Germany from Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson, who had the conclusions of their conversations with Chancellor Bruening to offer him.

Mr. Mellon tomorrow will go to Cambridge to visit his son Paul, remaining there until Monday night.

FRIENDS, FOES SEEK FARM ACT CHANGE

Race for Power to Rewrite Law Will Start With Meeting June 29.

(Associated Press.)

The first meeting of the new National Agricultural Conference in Chicago June 29 is expected to start the race between friends and enemies of the Farm Board for power to rewrite the agricultural marketing act.

The announced purpose of the meeting is to corral 3,000,000 farm families and an annual business of $700,000,000 behind a national campaign for cooperative organization. The political significance of such an accomplishment suggests great voting strength for support of the current farm relief program.

Membership of the conference embraces the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the several national cooperative marketing associations set up under auspices of the Farm Board.

See Amendment by Friends.

Both President E. A. O'Neal, of the federation, and L. J. Taber, national master of the Grange, have said that if the agricultural marketing act is amended, "it will be done by its friends and not by its enemies."

The Farm Bureau and the Grange which, together with farm business groups, represent approximately half the American rural population, are allied sympathetically with the new national committee of farm organizations which split at Des Moines May 6 with the old corn belt committee.

It seems to be the desire of the majority faction of organized agriculture to keep the Farm Board out of the 1932 campaign. Officials say they will try to get both the Democratic and Republican parties to avoid referring to it.

Proponents Eye Situation Closely.

Nevertheless, friends of the board are "keeping their powder dry" lest the traditional "pointing with pride" and "viewing with alarm" creep into the national platforms.

Editorial farm opinion says the national committee of farm organizations will have won a real victroy for itself if it keeps the Farm Board issue out of politics.

It says that if opponents of the Farm Board were to persuade a political party to denunciate strongly the board's policies as responsible for the low prices of farm products, and that party were to win, an uncomfortable situation might come to pass for many farm organizations which have benefited under the agricultural marketing act.

Fiance Married, Girl Sought Death

Cumberland Nurse Found Dead Marine Captain Already Had Wife.

Bristol, Pa., June 19 (A.P.).—Discovery that her fiance, to whom she was engaged to be married in September, was already married, drove Mary Virginia Turner, of Cumberland, Md., 23-year-old graduate nurse, to attempt suicide yesterday, she disclosed to county detectives at a hospital today. Miss Turner has an even chance for recovery from a bullet wound in her chest, physicians said.

The girl disclosed that Wednesday she had visited Washington to look at Government records of the life of Capt. Harlan Pefley, Marine killed in Nicaragua in April and the man to whom she said she was engaged.

The records showed, detectives asserted, that Capt. Pefley had a wife, Mrs. Gertrude Pefley, of Coxsackie, N. Y., now confined in a sanitarium in Troy, N. Y.

Detectives said Miss Turner had $698 in a suitcase in her cottage home near here and had $10,000 in a bank, money obtained from Capt. Pefley's insurance policy.

Primitive Man Lived in Cave Near Hoover Dam, Is Claim

Scientist, Explaining Large Limestone Cavern Near Las Vegas, Nev., Reports Evidences of Human Habitation There More Than 10,000 Years Ago.

Pasadena, Calif., June 19 (A.P.).—Primitive man occupied a five-room dwelling overlooking the site of Hoover Dam, on the Colorado River, 10,000 years or more ago, the American Association for Advancement of Science was told today.

And he could look upon glaciers where today there is but an arid desert. The dwelling was not his own, however, he being just a visitor, for it was the home of the ground sloth and ancient camel, animals which exist today only in picture books or museums.

M. E. Harrington, of the Southwest Museum, Los Angeles, told about these early Americans in explaining the meaning of Gypsum Cave, near Las Vegas, Nev.

This cave is a limestone cavern 300 by 120 feet, divided into five principal rooms, with the floor very rough and irregular, said Harrington.

Mr. Harrington told of the discovery there recently of several hundred articles of human manufacture, buried beneath deposits of a hundred centuries, including bones, claws, hair and even skin of the ground sloth, two species of extinct horses, and the bones of two or three species of camels, one of which, a very slender type, he said, may be new to science.

The hand-made articles of the primitive man include darts, a flint knife, and torches to illuminate the dark chamber. The darts are painted in colors, the earliest evidence of decorative art in America, Mr. Harrington said.

The time of these primitive dwellers of the American Southwest is set by Mr. Harrington as the close of the ice age, some 10,000 to 30,000 years ago. No human bones of that period have been uncovered.

Records of prehistoric people living in New Mexico, Colorado and Texas, 20,000 years ago were reported by Barnum Bown, of the American Museum of Natural History.

He revealed that among fossil remains of more than thirty buffalo were found, seventeen arrows of the fluted type, a workmanship that equals, if it does not surpass, anything heretofore discovered in America. The discoveries were made near Folsom, N. Mex.

INCREASE REVEALED IN WORK OUTDOORS

Labor Department Reports Show Employment Gain for Month of May.

(Associated Press.)

Increased employment in outdoor work for May, with April averages maintained in other lines, was reported yesterday by the Labor Department.

Building, farm work, highway construction and other forms of outdoor work were named as having absorbed large numbers of men.

"An analysis of the reports received by the United States Employment Service during the month of May," the department said, "reveals increasing employment in all outdoor activities.

"There was a further expansion in road construction in practically every section of the country, which included county, State and Federal projects.

"Numbers of skilled, semiskilled and unskilled construction laborers, who were unemployed during most of the winter months, have been absorbed and are practically assured of steady employment until the late fall.

Heavy Construction Gains.

"Heavy construction work, such as hydroelectric development projects, dams, tunnels and a large mileage of natural gas pipe line installations, provided employment for many additional men, including highly trained artisans.

"Spring agricultural work was at its peak, necessarily requiring the services of thousands of farm workers.

"Building showed some improvement, but remained on a basis below normal for this period of the year and considerable idleness was apparent in some localities among the building-trades men.

"While industrial operations and indoor factory employment remained on a subnormal basis in several of the major industries, there was no real decline from the average maintained in April, except that which was due almost entirely to seasonal influences.

Manufactures Improving.

"Better schedules prevailed in the boot and shoe industry, especially in the New England district, where quite a number of these factories worked with increased forces.

"An encouraging feature of the industrial activity of the month was the upward trend in both production and employment in certain branches of the textile industry. However, many workers were still employed on curtailed schedules in certain localities and large surpluses of textile mill labor prevailed in some sections.

"Some increase in operations occurred in the automobile industry, but a number of these workers were still employed on part-time schedules.

"The trend of activity in the iron and steel industry was unsteady, as in some of these mills there was a slight decrease in operations."

St. Clairsville, Ohio, June 19 (A.P.).—Eighteen men and women arrested in disorders accompanying the picketing of coal mines in Jefferson County were under charges of inciting to riot tonight while a double set of pickets, representing competing unions, were on duty at the Provident Mine in Belmont County.

Sheriff William Host, of Steubenville, filed the charges against the eighteen after a disorder at the Piney Fork Mine of the M. A. Hanna Co., in which a corps of deputy sheriffs dispersed the pickets after they refused to obey an order to leave the workings.

VIRGINIA NEGRO ELKS LOSE IN LODGE SPLIT

U. S. Circuit Court Bars Use of Organization Name by Factions.

Judge John J. Parker, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, yesterday reversed a decree of the District Court of Virginia, handed down last year at Richmond, which dissolved a temporary injunction restraining Virginia Elks from setting up a grand lodge of the Improved Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the World.

James C. Carter, of Richmond, former grand treasurer of Negro Elks, with George E. Bates, former grand secretary; Casper Holstein, John M. Marquess, Leon Reid and John Shivers, organized the Virginia State Association of Elks as a grand lodge and named Shivers as grand exalted ruler. On complaint of Perry W. Howard, grand legal adviser, Judge Northcutt issued the temporary restraining order.

The case went to the Circuit Court on a supersedeas granted by Judge Lawrence D. Groner, of Richmond. Effect of Judge Parker's decision was to put the injunction against the Virginia grand lodge again in force.

Joined with Howard in presentation of the case to the circuit court were J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of colored Elks; Judge William C. Hueston, Assistant Solicitor of the Postoffice Department and Elk commissioner of education; T. Gillis Nutter, of Charleston, W. Va., and James E. Kelley, grand secretary, of Birmingham.

The case was presented for Virginia Elks by James C. Carter, Joseph Pollard and William Forman. Had the decision of Judge Groner been upheld, it was the purpose of the Carter faction to hold a convention in Philadelphia in August at the same time as the convention of the existing grand lodge, and split the order, it was reported.

Finding of Second Body Reveals Two Murders

Lima, Ohio, June 19 (A.P.).—The murder of a young woman and her escort was revealed here late today with the recovery of the body of Earl Truesdale, 20, from a quarry pool. A week ago the body of Thelma Woods, 17, was taken from the same pool. Both bodies had been weighted down with stones.

The two disappeared 20 days ago from a dance. When Truesdale's automobile was found near the pool, which is several hundred yards wide and 80 feet deep, authorities ordered it searched. Two suspects were being held, one a former acquaintance of the dead couple, the other a caretaker whose duties included watching the old quarry.

He retired to his hotel room and was not seen again until bell boys found him on the floor this morning. He was taken to a hospital but died without regaining consciousness. Hospital attendants said Mr. Watkins had been suffering from a cancer and over-exertion probably caused the hemorrhage.

Sailors Lacking in Navy, Tug Will Tow 'Ironsides'

(Associated Press.)

When the frigate "Old Ironsides" sets out from Boston for Washington, Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the Navy believes, ignominous or not, it will be in tow of a tug.

This despite a number of suggestions that the ancient warrior proceed under its own sailing power with its sailormen resembling as closely as possible those of 1812.

Although the ship is completely rigged with 30 sails having an area of 12,500 square yards, Jahncke said the Navy has no crew that would know how to furl and unfurl them.

He first was under the impression that the ship had no sailing canvas, since the Navy was without funds to purchase it, but was informed yesterday that the Wellington, Sears Manufacturing Co., of New York, had donated the full set as a "patriotic gesture."

"To teach a crew to handle those sails you would have to take them out and train them for two or three months," the Secretary said. "It would be impossible to comply with the schedule of visits to various cities that has been mapped out for the old vessel. Everything would depend on the winds."

FOREIGN WAR GROUP REBUKES PHYSICIANS

Adopts Resolution Censuring Plea to Stop Aid to Men Not Hurt in Battle.

A rebuke was administered last night by the District Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association for its action in urging Congress to cease hospital and medical benefits to veterans with nonservice disability.

The censure was in the form of a resolution adopted after a long debate at the twelfth annual encampment of the District department at the Wilson Teacher's College.

The argument against the action of the medical group was based on the belief that it would place veterans unable to secure medical care otherwise in the hands of disinterested medical practitioners "whose care and attention would be predicated upon their ability to receive fees."

Department Commander William Thomas, who left the chair to urge the passage of the censure, said "the care of the veterans is an obligation of the Government to veterans of all wars."

Held Unjust Competition.

In its resolution, adopted June 9, at Philadelphia, the house of delegates of the Medical Association, urged abolition of medical benefits to veterans with nonservice disability and asked Congress to substitute for it a plan of disability insurance benefits. The argument of the medical group was that the Government policy of treating veterans for disability not connected with their war service is unjust competition with the civilian hospital and medical profession.

Dr. Donald S. Knowlton, a member of the District department and also of the American Medical Association, explained that the resolution of the medical group does not reflect the attitude of the entire medical association and predicted that the House of Delegates would be censured by the Medical Association.

Another resolution adopted and sent to the national encampment of the organization urged that Congress restudy the World War veterans act which now excludes many women from benefits, even though they had battlefront service. Many women members of the Ordnance and Quartermaster Corps who saw service overseas are excluded from benefits under the act, it was pointed out, while other women who served as yeomanettes in this country derive benefits from the act.

Ask Russian Goods Embargo.

Other resolutions asked an embargo on all Russian products, including Russian-made matches; another asked that Mount Vernon be purchased by the Government as a national shrine; and one asked that the Swick bill be amended to provide for allowances to childless widows of veterans.

It was requested in a resolution that the national encampment urge Congress to reduce the 4½ per cent compound interest on adjusted compensation loans to 3½ per cent, which is the same rate as that paid by the Government in funding the loans.

Alimony Failure Laid to Engineer

F. Burton Ridenour Cited on Contempt Charge; Hearing Is Set.

F. Burton Ridenour, local engineer, of Chevy Chase, Md., was cited in contempt proceedings yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter in circuit court at Rockville, Md., for alleged failure to pay alimony. The date of the hearing was set as July 6.

The law firm of Peter, Simpson & Oxley, of Rockville, attorneys for Mrs. J. Blanche Wright Ridenour, who was granted an absolute divorce and alimony July 11, 1930, filed the petition for contempt proceedings, alleging that the defendant had failed to pay his alimony to the amount of $260.

The divorce was granted on the grounds of infidelity and was bitterly contested. Both are socially prominent.

Aid Society Conducts Hunt for Kin of Youthful Traveler.

Miss Elizabeth Beatty, Travelers' Aid Society worker at the Union Station, is earnestly seeking a grandmother, name and address unknown, to take charge of Robert Grey, 5 years old, colored, who was lost. Robert, according to the wording on the envelope inclosing his ticket, came from Chicago, traveling alone.

Escorted by a "Redcap" he reached the Travelers' Aid desk yesterday afternoon looking for "Grandmother." He could not give any address and did not know the name of his parents except that his mother's name is "Eleanor" and his father's name is "Mr. Mitchell." Close questioning by Miss Beatty and other Travelers' Aid workers failed to elicit further information from the boy.

Within a few minutes Robert was the center of a throng of travelers, who offered all sorts of suggestions for taking care of him, including offers of money to provide lodging or a ticket back to Chicago. The latter was out of the question as the Travelers' Aid did not know what address in Chicago to select for his destination.

In the meantime, such meager information as was possible to obtain was wired to Chicago and the society is still waiting for word from there. The boy was sent to the Children's Receiving Home for the night.

Crowd of 10,000 Radicals Storms Meeting; 15 Are Arrested.

Oviedo, Spain, June 19 (A.P.).—One person was fatally injured, fourteen others were hurt and fifteen were arrested tonight in disorders after a crowd of radicals, estimated at 10,000, assailed the Campo Amor Theater, where Melquiades Alvarez was preparing to address his followers in behalf of his candidacy in the forthcoming election of a national constituent assembly.

Workers and labor radicals battled with Alvarez's supporters for several minutes and the tumult continued until police arrived and restored order.

Before former King Alfonso went into exile Melquiades Alvarez was one of those who demanded that the monarch "take a vacation" while a constituent convention decided whether Spain would continue as a monarchy or become a republic.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS AT ANNUAL BANQUET

Folk Dances Are Enjoyed by 300 at Fete Held in Commerce Building.

Three hundred young 4-H Club members attended the fifth annual banquet held last night in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building when folk dances and motion pictures were the principal features of the evening.

"Telling the Story of 4-H Club Work" was the title of a dramatized story in five scenes which was presented and greatly enjoyed by the members present. Following this there was a talk by Florence E. Ward, in charge of extension work in the Eastern States for the Department of Agriculture, who spoke on "Setting Standards." Miss Edna Miller, of Ohio, acted as toastmistress.

Ruth Glasgow, of Alabama, spoke on appreciation for the club work and a tribute to those who have been leaders in the organization for many years.

Folk Dances Given.

The folk dances, principal feature of the evening, were given under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Burchenal, president of the American Folk Dance Society and member of the International Commission of Folk Arts of the League of Nations, and the dances that were given were warmly received. Music during the dinner was furnished by the Marine Band, under the leadership of Arthur S. Whitcomb.

Yesterday morning the members of the clubs heard Renick W. Dunlap, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, explain how club work and cooperation would help to bring farmers and the Nation to a better plane of living, and his address also was in the form of a welcome to the many youngsters who are assembled here.

Conferences Are Held.

During the forenoon and afternoon there were club members' conferences and State leaders' conferences in the auditorium of the New National Museum, and just before lunch the visitors were taken for a trip over to the Washington Monument to see that famous edifice. In the afternoon there were more conferences until time for the banquet last night.

Today's principal address will be made by Lieut. Comdr. C. E. Rosendahl, U. S. N., and in the afternoon the members will be taken for a trip to see Mount Vernon. There will be games and folk dancing tonight on the grounds, with the Western States in charge of "pioneer night."

British Veterans Stage One-Armed Golf Meet

London, June 19 (A.P.).—Great Britain has one golf title Bobby Jones can't win—the one-armed tournament.

A. W. Edwards, of the Penn Club, Wolverhampton, who lost his right arm at Cambrai, 1917, took today's championship from 36 other World War veterans, winning the Sirian Hamilton trophy. Unworried by the problems of overlapping or interlocking grips, Edwards played around the Moor Park course in 142 strokes, which was par golf under his 24 handicap.

Drives of 200 yards were not uncommon and the one-armed veterans appeared as good at the short game as those experts with two arms. Deep bunkers, requiring explosive shots, caused them the most trouble.

Woman's Bureau Change Opposed

Lieut. Van Winkle's Plan for Permanent Unit Stirs No Enthusiasm.

The ambition of Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle, director of the Women's Bureau of the Police Department, to have her bureau made permanent by act of Congress, is not likely to meet with success, at least under the present District administration, Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Police Commissioner, intimated yesterday.

While lauding the work of the Woman's Bureau, Gen. Crosby said he saw no need of placing it on a different basis than the detective and the traffic bureaus, all of which are established by order of the District Commissioners.

The Commissioner said, however, that Lieut. Van Winkle need have no fear that the present board will abolish the bureau. While he has not discussed with her the matter of promotions, he indicated yesterday that he believed the rank of lieutenant was high enough for the head of the bureau because of the comparatively small personnel which it comprises. The bureau has 33 police women, including the director.

HAY-ADAMS HOUSE TRUCE IS REACHED

Trustees Agree to Figure for Furniture, Ending Removal Threat.

Holders of notes on the Hay-Adams House, originally financed through the bankrupt Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., have arrived at a satisfactory basis of settlement, forestalling removal of furniture to satisfy a $110,000 chattel mortgage.

Removal of the furniture, an issue in Justice Jesse C. Adkins' court several weeks ago, would have blocked the reorganization project, attorneys said. Time was allowed by Justice Adkins to "get together" on a price for the furniture.

Walter B. Guy, president of the Hay-Adams House, Inc., the corporation formed by note holders when the lease securing their notes appeared in danger, yesterday announced that trustee under the chattel mortgage have agreed to accept $52,250 for the furniture.

This figure is satisfactory with noteholders, Mr. Guy said, and an effort will be made to raise the money before July 6, the date stipiated in the agreement.

He announced that investors representing $440,000 of the original $650,000 amount of the trust have come into the reorganization plan. Paul E. Lesh has been elected vice president of the new corporation and William E. Furey, one of the Hay-Adams receivers, secretary-treasurer.

Meanwhile the suit of John U. Gardiner, owner of $1,400 of Hay-Adams House notes, who seeks to merge the interests of holders of the $600,000 ground mortgage on the property with those of the leasehold noteholders, is pending in the District Supreme Court.

Hay-Adams House, Inc., while not opposing his suit in the courts, are represented as not in sympathy with his procedure, which they hold endangers their lease. The Washington Loan & Trust Co., however, holders of the ground fee, have filed a motion to dismiss the suit. Their motion will be heard Monday afternoon before Justice Adkins.

Cory, E. J. Abrams and G. H. Roberts, of the University of Maryland. when Borchardt pointed out that bank records showed the purchase on his part of some Pacific Western Oil stock, he said he may have purchased the shares, but did not recall the transaction.

When Borchardt pressed questions as to the nature of his wife's holdings, and those of his mother, Leon Tobriner, attorney for Rheem, objected.

"I'm trying to find out what became of the money that belongs to creditors," Borchardt countered.

"You'll never find out by asking questions of that character," Tobriner replied.

Twice the proceedings were interrupted by a woman, who, from the rear of the hall, demanded that principals "speak louder." She informed the court that "her grandmother was a Rheem" and that she had come "to protect the name of Rheem." Attorney George L. Sullivan was applauded by noteholders when he answered that hearings were being held in the interests of creditors and not "the name of Rheem."

Bookkeeper Supplies Partial Records.

Byron Brooks, head bookkeeper for the Riggs National Bank, took the stand with records covering Rheem's and Howar's accounts at Riggs. He said the material was incomplete, but would be ready in time for the next hearing Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Edmund L. Jones, attorney for Riggs, told the court the bank was opposed to the introduction of Howar's account in view of Newmyer's protest.

George M. Rowzee, head bookkeeper for the Federal-American Bank, told the court that Rheem's personal deposit slips covering 1928, 1929 and 1930 had been tufned over to Nugent Dodds, Assistant Attorney General, but produced ledger cards and slips for 1927 and 1931.

Rheem's records with the Security, Savings & Commercial Bank were turned over by Vice President Fred McKee. He said Rheem had made no deposits at the bank since 1926.

Charles V. Etzler produced the National Metropolitan records, covering Howar's accounts, on the admissibility of which the referee has reserved ruling.

Howar Probe Raises Issue.

"I'm not at all sure you have a right to examine Mr. Howar's personal accounts," the referee commented.

Brooks was called back to the stand by Borchardt and asked whether any one other than Howar had a right to draw on Howar's personal account with Riggs. He answered that Rheem had held such an authorization. He was directed to produce at the next meeting the power of attorney granting the authorization.

Etzler said he did not know whether Rheem had the right to draw on Howar's personal accounts with the National Metropolitan Bank.

Wage Cutting Deplored By Green in Radio Talk

Wage cutting, which he said was advocated by some representative citizens, was denounced last night by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, speaking over radio station WRC in the interests of the fair at Fifth street and Florida avenue, sponsored by the Central Labor Union.

Filipinos and Hawes To Discuss Freedom

Manila, June 19 (A.P.).—Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, coauthor of the Hawes-Cutting Philippines independence bill, arranged today to hold a round-table conference with leading Filipinos Sunday for a thorough discussion of the independence question.

GOOD... they've got to be good!

There's a lot to it!

Smokers want a milder cigarette. Chesterfield is just that. Mild, ripe tobaccos and pure French paper — every one is well-filled and every one burns uniformly. Chesterfields smoke milder and taste better — because they're made that way!

THE NEW ISSUE.

President Hoover's statement to the effect that he is conferring with leaders of both political parties on the subject of "strengthening the situation in Germany," and that "the response which I have met from the leaders of both parties is most gratifying," instantly projects into the political arena a question of paramount importance, which may completely change the current of politics.

No doubt President Hoover reached the conclusion that it was impossible any longer to keep in reserve the fact that the interested nations are casting about for a plan to readjust their economic relations. The statement is, of course, a trial balloon, sent up to test the winds of opinion in this country; but it is also a signal to Europe that the United States is interesting itself in the world situation. Mr. Hoover observes that "any statement of any plan or method is wholly speculative," but this admonition will have no effect in curbing speculation and the search for political consequences resulting from any move the administration may make.

The political dynamite lurking in any international move involving the United States in European affairs is a matter that can not have been ignored by the administration. Complete cooperation of the political parties for the sole purpose of "assisting economic recovery here and abroad" is an idle dream. The economic situation can not be divorced from politics. It is in the heart of American politics, including the approaching struggle for the Presidency. When European affairs are thrust into American politics the way is opened for domestic developments that can not be foreseen or calculated. The leaders of the Democratic party last year pledged themselves to cooperate with the administration in dealing with the economic emergency, but they did not keep their pledge. They could not keep such a pledge now, even if they desired to do so, because partisan considerations must and will inject themselves into any economic situation of national or international magnitude. Nothing but a foreign war could keep the two political parties cooperating under President Wilson; and when politics was injected into the situation there was bitter dissension, even before the armistice was signed. A Congress antagonistic to the commander in chief of the Army and Navy of the United States was elected as a result of that political situation. The armistice intervened to prevent untold mischief.

Europe's economic condition, however desperate, and however closely it may touch the United States, is not a subject that commands the cooperation of political parties to the complete submersion of domestic politics. On the contrary, it is a matter that practically compels the two great parties to come into collision. Therefore, it seems virtually certain that if the administration should go forward with any plan to involve the United States in Europe's affairs President Hoover will in the end be supported only by one party, with perhaps a dangerous division in that party also.

LATIN AMERICAN TRADE.

The efforts of American exporters to Latin America to extend their business have not been as spectacular as those of the British in connection with their trade exposition in Buenos Aires and the tour of the Prince of Wales, but American trade has more than held its own. While British goods were fighting to hold an even level of established business, American exports have retained the supreme position secured during the World War.

Exports of the United States to Latin America in 1930 totaled $686,119,941 as against $972,898,794 in 1929. If, as official estimates hold, the decline in commodity prices last year averaged about 20 per cent, that is sufficient to explain the major part of the year's reduction in value of exports. Complete figures covering the South American trade of Great Britain for last year are not available, but comparisons of the last two years in a number of countries show very considerable losses. The following figures on the foreign trade of the United Kingdom with various nations are quoted in pounds sterling:

Argentina	£29,074,520	£25,270,022
Brazil	13,383,059	7,955,253
Chile	9,195,855	5,962,708
Peru	2,006,870	1,442,668
Mexico	2,537,652	2,433,505
Cuba	2,026,988	1,282,796
Colombia	3,240,655	1,552,756
Venezuela	2,509,795	1,643,930

There seems little likelihood that the United States will lose its supremacy in the markets to the south, so long as American manufacturers continue to offer advantages. This is the opinion of Secretary of Commerce Lamont, and it is supplemented by the assurance of George J. Eder, chief of the Latin American section of the Department of Commerce, that definite advantages are offered by United States exporters in price, quality and service that will continue to insure our share of Latin American trade with no prospect of an immediate or substantial change in the situation. In the field of investments in Latin America the United States and Great Britain are more evenly matched, estimates for each country showing total holdings of more than $5,000,000,000, with British capital probably somewhat in the lead.

MR. FORT ON MONOPOLY.

Representative Franklin W. Fort has added his voice to the clamor for liberalization of the antitrust laws. He pictures these safeguarding statutes as relics of a former age when people were afraid of trusts. Inasmuch as millions of Americans are now investors in great corporations, Mr. Fort believes that the people are no longer afraid of big business. Consequently, he reasons, it is time to remove some of the restrictions that the Sherman act and affiliated statutes impose on monopolistic combinations.

Mr. Fort does not suggest that these laws be entirely repealed. Big and little business alike welcome their guarantee of protection against certain types of unfair and demoralizing competition, he says. Nevertheless, he fears that the antitrust laws are wrecking conservation policies, contrary to the national welfare. The oil industry as well as coal, copper and lumber furnish examples of chaos resulting from lack of centralized control. Prohibited from restraining competition, many operators in these industries are wastefully exploiting irreplaceable resources.

The first change that Mr. Fort would make concerns the phrase "in restraint of trade." He would permit agreements in restraint of trade when they were in the public interest. By this he does not mean exclusively the interests of consumers. Presumably interests that were facing bankruptcy because of inordinate competition, or those facing immediate loss to employes and stockholders would be exempt from the antitrust laws on the theory that industry operated at a loss is of advantage to no one. He suggests the possibility of determining what corporations would be eligible for this favored treatment through examination of their profits.

The public will not share Mr. Fort's unconcern about monopoly prices. In this connection his use of the oil industry for illustration was particularly inappropriate. The extensive sale of some commodities is dependent upon low prices, but the public must have gasoline at any price. Any arrangement that would give oil men control of production and prices without public supervision would not be tolerated. When great industries are allowed to operate as monopolies it is imperative that they be regulated in the public interest.

Representative Fort's second suggestion is that agreements in restraint of trade be filed with the Attorney General or the Federal Trade Commission. If such agreements were disapproved, one of these governmental agencies would ask the courts for an injunction to stop their performance. Filing of agreements in this manner would exempt the parties from all criminal prosecutions, and the burden of halting illegal restraints would be put upon the Government. This would open the floodgates to all kinds of combinations and monopolistic agreements. Every concern that wished a special license to violate the antitrust laws could make a bid for it without endangering its position. The full responsibility of keeping business within the law would be thrown upon the Department of Justice. It is obvious that no governmental department or commission can undertake to be conscience keeper for the business world.

TO BREAK UP SPAIN.

Of the various provinces of Spain asking autonomy in greater or less degree Catalonia is the most insistent. It demands complete home rule and is preparing to get it. The difference in language and character of the Catalans has made them always the most difficult factor in a united Spain. They are now organizing a solid front to push their home rule project through the national Cortes if possible, and in case of failure by this method to impose it by more violent means.

Political leaders in Catalonia, realizing that national sentiment is not in favor of their separation, have recently begun to organize their forces at home. The Madrid government in view of these activities recently addressed a note to the Province of Catalonia warning against premature action and pointing out that the decision rested with the assembly, which will be composed of 470 deputies.

This message has not arrested the program of preparation. The conservative republican party, which refused to participate in the separatist movement a short time ago, has issued the statement that "Catalan unity is the supreme necessity of the hour." Agricultural, commercial and labor groups are also beginning to voice the same sentiment.

The only group of any consequence which is holding apart from the idea are the church partisans who demand that the Catalan constitution shall not infringe on church rights. This body, together with the new civil governor, Carlos Espia, are endeavoring to hold the more radical majority in check.

Senor Espia's appointment was made with the hope of restoring support of the national government, but the new governor found it a difficult situation. The outgoing governor and President Macia had already succeeded in getting the greater part of the labor element behind the autonomy program. By making secret agreements with port and shipping employers to hire only syndicalist union members they greatly weakened the power of the labor element belonging to the Madrid, or national union party.

Having paved the way to secure their demands one way or the other, Catalans are now only waiting to see if they get a favorable verdict on their national status when the Cortes convenes next month.

JUSTICE SIDDONS.

Washington mourns the death of Frederick L. Siddons, dean of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and for many years a distinguished citizen of this Capital. The suddenness of Justice Siddons' demise intensifies the public sense of loss. He was apparently in good health, and performed his usual duties on Thursday.

Justice Siddons was a native of England, born of American parents. He became a resident of Washington in 1878, and was thoroughly identified with the community as law student, law lecturer, member of the bar, Commissioner of the District of Columbia and justice of its Supreme Court since 1915. He rendered many notable decisions and presided in famous cases, in which his learning and impartiality were recognized by superior tribunals as well as by the bar and the public.

The death of an able and faithful public servant is irreparable. The successors of such men carry on their work, but nevertheless the public is minus a tried and devoted friend in whose services there was no element of uncertainty as to ability or faithfulness. In private life Justice Siddons was blessed by many friends. To them his death is a personal as well as a public affliction.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 19.—As the income and earning power of the people decline, due to depression, governmental debts and expenses become a real problem. We have been going through an era where nearly all the public debts except those of the National Government have been increasing. The expectation was that the general expansion of business would make it easy to pay them. Now the opposite condition prevails.

By retiring and refunding its debt the National Government is saving nearly half a billion dollars annually in interest. The only other courses would have been more extravagant spending or reduction of taxes. Either one of these would have aggravated the present serious situation of the Treasury.

When money is borrowed by a government or an individual to pay current expense it means living on capital. If carried far enough, disaster results. When debts are paid it means capital is restored. If carried far enough prosperity and plenty follow. Some of our municipalities borrowed too much in the day of plenty and are not able to meet their obligations. The National Government economized some, though not enough, in the day of plenty, and is now able to get credit to take care of the day of adversity.

COOPERATIVES' GROWTH

From the Los Angeles Times.

Amazing growth of the agricultural cooperative movement under the stimulus of the agricultural marketing act is reported by Robin Hood, secretary-treasurer of the National Cooperative Council, speaking at the American Institute of Cooperation at Manhattan, Kans. According to Mr. Hood, whose figures have not been available from official sources, cooperatives have increased in membership an average of 33 per cent in the last two years. Only part of this increase is attributable to the Farm Board, as Mr. Hood is careful to point out; in part, it is due to natural growth and in part to economic adversity, but the part creditable to the Farm Board is large.

The cooperative movement, the speaker pointed out, is now in its fourth stage, the last three stages following each other in rapid succession. The first was local growth and method-testing; the second intensive promotion of regional and State cooperatives, which followed the war; the third an adjustment period, during which gains were consolidated and unnecessary baggage thrown overboard, and the fourth was ushered in by the agricultural marketing act.

In 192 associations with 800,000 members, the speaker found, in addition to the membership increase noted, an increase of 4.2 per cent in value of products despite a decrease in the general farm index of 22 points, and a 28.8 per cent increase in volume of products handled.

The greatest gain, Mr. Hood declared, is in the cotton and wool associations. The cotton group doubled its volume; the wool group more than doubled its volume. Cooperatives in tobacco, in eggs and in dairy products also made striking gains. The live stock cooperatives gained in membership and about held their own in volume. The grain cooperatives (including rice and beans) gained membership and volume. Those in fruits and vegetables did not do particularly well, but did not lose ground.

The wool association, which in 1928 handled only 5 per cent of the clip, increased this to 35 per cent in 1930, and in addition handled 80 per cent of the mohair.

Members of the Federal Farm Board, who have been saying that its work in aiding the growth of cooperation has been far more important, though less spectacular, than its efforts to support the wheat and cotton markets, find their statements fully confirmed by this report of progress.

The cooperative movement is the best hope of all agriculture.

JUST FOLKS

ABOUT GOLF SCORES.

I like the game of golf I think as well as any man,
I seek the links to play a round as often as I can,
But after all it's just a game, and somehow I can't see
Why missing putts and dubbing drives should worry men like me.

To shoot a course in seventy-two may be a mark of skill.
It may delight the soul a while, but pays no grocery bill.
I've never had a creditor come up and say to me:
"You paid your debt to me the day you shot an eighty-three."

I've noticed when a game is done this good old world goes on.
It doesn't make the taxes less to shoot
a hole in one.
Nor will your banker say to you:
"This loan we must decline
Because upon the seventeenth hole we hear you took a 'nine.'"

With all there is to fret about and try the human soul
I will not let the game of golf destroy my self-control.
And though to play a simple course a hundred shots I take,
I chuckle to myself and say: "What difference does it make?"

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My Dear Louise:

This dad-and-daughter business is a coeducational institution. I realize that, and I want you to know that I realize it.

A parent is no longer a little tin god, incapable of error, and children are no longer lost souls in need of hickory discipline.

When I was a kid, no youngster under 21 was entitled to an opinion of his own. He isn't yet, in some households, but I think the system wrong. If a kid has no brains at 16, he never will have.

I don't like know-it-all youngsters, for they are invariably shallow; and I don't like to see kids ashamed of their parents; but I realize that the human race is making progress, and progress means that each new generation is a little better than the last.

I can't take you back and start you where I started. The world has moved. You must start where I leave off.

If ever we fail to understand one another and begin to drift apart, it won't be your fault. It will be mine.

For I can do something you can't do. I can close the gap.

You see, having begun your development where mine ended, you can't go back to meet me. There is no such thing as going backward in a world of ordained progress. People can stand still and thus be left behind, but they can't back-track.

But if you can't go back to meet me and my generation, I can go forward to meet you and yours. I can keep on growing as the world grows and thus keep step with you.

If I don't do it, we'll soon be speaking different languages and I'll be sitting on a fence barking at a generation I no longer understand.

I am telling you these things so you will understand that I am not trying to make you conform to the ways of 1890 when I offer criticisms and suggestions.

I want you to be as modern as an air mail stamp, for you must be to hold your own in a fast-moving world.

But there are standards and eternal verities that change no more than a man's delight in victory and a woman's delight in love, and these you must learn from age as you learned your a-b-c's.

I'll do my part by riding as fast as you wish to drive. Do yours by paying heed when I warn you of dangerous curves on the old road.

Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Watson's Hat in the Ring.

Terre Haute Tribune.

Senator James E. Watson yesterday made the first public utterance by him regarding his senatorial intentions for 1932. The senator grew jocose on the subject, saying that we have depression, but that the whole world has it. He said: "We have got the Democrats calling it 'depression.' When they had it, by the eternal, we called it 'a panic.'"

By his announcement, the senator, doubtless intended to silence those who have been suggesting that he lay off in 1932 and conserve his forces for the battle of 1934, on the theory that '32 is going to be a Democratic year in Indiana. His reply to this is, "I've been beaten before. I am a candidate for the senatorial nomination in 1932." The war horse of Indiana politics scents the battle from afar. He is not turing back. No one ever questioned Senator Watson's political acumen and sagacity, and his position in this matter will stir the imagination of every one who cherishes a good political battle.

He is telling his party that, fair weather or foul, the lookout stays with the ship, and the more treacherous the weather the keener the lookout and the pilot are for duty. The year 1932 may bring a blow and heavy seas, but Senator Watson says the crew is not leaving the ship for that reason. He implies that he signed up for service in all kinds of weather, and he goes into the wind with a pleasantry for the enemy—his explanation of the fine discrimination between "depression" and "panic."

Senator Watson has won distinction for his party and State. It is something for any State to hold the leadership of the United States Senate. It is not beside the mark to say that men of all parties look on the achievement of the Indiana senator with a sense of admiration. His record is one of courageous decision.

Hoover for Individualism.

Chicago Tribune.

The dedication of two memorials to Presidents Lincoln and Harding, easily rated a presidential visit to Illinois and Ohio, and the editorial association in Indianapolis conveniently added Indiana. The 1932 nominations are on the call, and Mr. Hoover, coming into the Central West, would be expected to make a declaration of faith and purpose as an interpretation of this term and a foreword for another one. It's the custom and here was the occasion.

The President who spoke at Indianapolis, where the event was all his own and not in memorial to two predecessors, was the man many of his 1928 supporters thought they had elected. In his administration he has been beset by two forces superficially dissimilar, essentially akin. One is that of radicalism in political economy, the other that of clerical coercion of private conduct. The radicals have the wish but not the courage for communism. They envy but do not dare. The compromises between what they want to do and what they have the spirit for do not destroy the American system, but they would go a long way toward it. Mr. Hoover has tried to deal in two fashions with this element in Government, in one politically, in the other as his true self. In the latter form he spoke at Indianapolis and no doubt with a great deal of his political experience in the background of his thought. His political expedients—politics being an art of expedients and conciliation—resulted, for instance, in the farm board and its loans. This may be regarded as a desperate political device to avoid something worse, but Mr. Hoover shows that none of these devices carried his own convictions. If anything they have rather provoked his resistance and his declarations for American individualism.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

False Claims of Overcrowding of Prisons Because of Prohibition Violators.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter of Sylvia F. Metcalf in your issue of June 17, is a center shot, in the humble opinion of the writer. She gives us a real picture of a section of New Orleans—a "before and after" show-up. Publication of such facts is valuable. Let others in possession of such information speak out.

What a pity that our newspapers are not filled with facts and radical reasoning, instead of so many wild, dogmatic utterances which are merely partisan propaganda.

The following quotation from a recent newspaper is a thought provoker: "The Wickersham Commission devotes its third report to the unsatisfactory condition of existing statistics as to crime, finding that the records of both State and National Governments are lacking in uniform methods and accuracy of information. It urges caution about placing dependence and basing conclusions on the results of fact-finding that are far from being facts. Especial heed should be given to this warning in view of false claims which are being given the widest circulation. A particular instance is the newspaper insistence that our State prisons are being overcrowded because of the large number of prohibition law violators. Official figures show these claims to be entirely baseless. In State prisons only 3½ per cent were prohibition law violators. In the combined figures of State and Federal prisoners only 5½ per cent were prohibition violators.

The claim was widely published that 322 prisoners that lost their lives in the Columbus, Ohio penitentiary riot were victims of prohibition, whereas, of 4,800 in the penitentiary only 19 were there because of prohibition law violations. Those 19 must have taken up a 'whale of a lot' of space to make such disastrous over-crowding."

W. B. WITHERSPOON.

Democrat Suggests That His Party Leaders Quit Trying to Make Political Stuff Out of the Tariff.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Although certain of the Democratic highlights are blaming the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill for all of our present-day ills, the "common people back home" are paying little or no attention to these utterances, since they know that they are only intended as bids for political advantage. And even the most ardent stand-pat Democrats thoroughly understand and discount these broadside blasts emanating from high sources.

It may be that some of the tariff rates are too high, but even if hundreds of them are it is silly to claim that they are responsible for our depression or that they have or are contributing to the falling off in our export trade. Certainly, the "common people" have sense enough to know that when the foreign countries with whom we trade are experiencing a much more severe depression than that in our own country, our exports are bound to decrease irrespective of a high or low or no tariff at all.

Being a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat I should like to see our leaders hand out a more reasonable and sensible bid for votes than the brand that is now being used. In the past a threat to revise the tariff has not only greatly disturbed business, but has, as a rule, lost many votes to the party advocating it. There is no reason to believe that 1932 will prove an exception to the rule.

A DEMOCRAT.

Dead Days of Booze and Its Effect on Baseball Fans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dry Correspondent William Bradford Witherspoon calling on reliable old-timers to "tell us about the real conditions that prevailed" in the days of legalized "likker," reminds me of old times at the Washington baseball yard.

Any one who can remember back to the days of the ramshackle wooden grandstand and bleachers, which were replaced by the present Griff Stadium, will testify that, in the behavior of the fans, the influence of John Barleycorn was sometimes very noticeable.

Owing to the regulation against the sale of booze within one mile of the Soldiers' Home, there was no nearby rum mill, but many of the fans used to tank up on their way to the game. They were already hot-headed before the game started, and as a result a close decision was always likely to be a casus belli. Umpires were really hard-boiled, the policeman's job was no sinecure, and a pop bottle was in fact a lethal projectile when aimed at an umpire's head.

The bleacher section, which flanked right field, was always the center of more or less excitement. The bleacherites were a rough and ready lot, and I used occasionally to sit among them on account of their talk. They pepped up their knowledge of the game with spontaneous wisecracks, and as I remember them they formed a nondescript school of baseball which, in knowledge of the game's fine points and history, not even the press box could excel.

Furthermore, the bleacher fans of those good old days would, they and their likker, back up their opinions with their fists. Scraps were often started when opinions clashed, and in fact the outer right field was always patrolled by one or two policemen, as a warning against fisticuffs as well as to guard against any sudden umpire-baiting stampede. Accounting for the necessity of this precaution were numerous empty bottles to be seen scattered under the bleachers at the end of the game.

In the absence of beer and raw likker our baseball crowds are considerably less riotous than they used to be, and yet I must admit that I sometimes regretfully miss the red-blooded, he-man uproar of our pre-Volstead tail-end days.

1,500 SCOUTS CAMP IN ROCK CREEK PARK

Four States and District Send Troops to Jamboree at Capital.

More than 1,500 Boy Scouts, from four States and the District of Columbia, yesterday gathered at Camp Goodwill in Rock Creek Park to open a three-day jamboree of the Third region, Boy Scouts of America.

Shortly after their arrival they marched up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House, where they were received by President Hoover.

Scouts from Delaware, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, with District troops, erected hundreds of camp sites, each patrol allotted a space of ground. Camp fires burned after dark, as visitors and scout officials inspected the encampment.

Boys of the camp will go to Arlington National Cemetery this morning, where a wreath will be placed on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at 10:30 o'clock. Leaving the cemetery, the boys will be taken to Mount Vernon. Lunch will be served at Haines Point, following which visits will be paid to the Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial, National Museum and the Capitol.

Returning to the camp, a regional review will be held at 5 o'clock, when the scouts will parade for Government and military officials.

Religious services will mark tomorrow's program. The jamboree will close at 11 o'clock with presentation of prizes and emblems.

Sentence Sermons

By the REV. CHARLES ENDERS
(Pastor of Concordia Lutheran Church).

God's Love for the Individual

IN the fifteenth chapter of the Gospel according to Luke, we have a wonderful record of God's love for the individual. The shepherd seeks the one sheep that is lost. The woman does not rest until she has found the one coin that was lost. The father watches for the return of the lost son. The individual is not lost in the multitude but each soul is precious in the sight of God.

This message of God's love for the individual runs through the whole of divine revelation. We find it not only in the New Testament, but also in the Old. The psalmist says: "The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge." The Almighty Ruler of the universe is also concerned about the welfare of Jacob—a sinful man.

Let not man think himself so small or unimportant as to be beyond God's loving interest. Rather let every one learn to read God's glorious promises as Dwight L. Moody often said one should read John 3:16: "For God so loved me, that he gave his only begotten Son that if I believe on him I shall not perish but have eternal life."

ENDEAVOR ALUMNI CONTINUE CENSUS

Names Being Enrolled of All Those in Societies in Last 50 Years.

The census of all former Christian Endeavorers being conducted by the C. E. Alumni Fellowship of the District of Columbia is creating much interest in the Protestant churches of the city.

An effort is being made to enroll the names of all persons who have been identified with Christian Endeavor Societies during the 50 years of the organization's existence. The completed enumeration book will be formally presented to Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, at the San Francisco C. E. Convention, July 11 to 16.

In addition to the names of former members of the society, the year in which each joined the organization will be listed. This added feature will present an interesting array of dates covering half a century. Many well-known men and women of Washington have already been enrolled in the census and it is expected that during the next two Sundays, which have been designated as C. E. census days in the churches, those who have not yet been reached will be enrolled.

Miss Monette Hallam, president of the C. E. Alumni Fellowship, said that additional census blanks are available at the society's headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. Building for those who have not already been enrolled.

SELFISHNESS

Selfishness can be defined as always thinking of oneself.

Unselfishness is forgetfulness of self.

The bringing together of great groups of people in cities has done much to further the progress of the world.

But this close contact has permitted selfishness to become a greater influence upon our daily lives.

A greater degree of unselfishness upon the part of every individual would make the world a better place in which to live.

A PARENT WHO NEGLECTS TO GIVE HIS CHILDREN EVERY ADVANTAGE FOR MORAL TRAINING IS SELFISH.

Everyone must look out for his own future and for the welfare of those dependent upon him.

But to do this it is not necessary to thrust others down.

In dealing with others there is one cardinal rule to avoid—SELFISHNESS.

Before making a decision which affects others always ask yourself this question:

"What would I want him to do if our positions were reversed?"

Do this and you will have more friends, just as much money and less grief to trouble your sleep.

It Pays Always to Be Unselfish

CHURCH WILL OPEN SCHOOL STRUCTURE

Wilson Memorial Room in Central Presbyterian's New Edifice.

Perpetuating historic traditions based upon association with three Presidents of the United States, Central Presbyterian Church will next week celebrate completion of its Sunday school building adjoining the church edifice at Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Irving streets. On Tuesday evening the new structure will be thrown open to public inspection, and the following Sunday the classes will formally assemble in their new home.

President Hoover laid the corner stone for the new building on Thanksgiving Day, 1930, while the late President Woodrow Wilson, then an active member of the church congregation, laid the corner stone of the main edifice on December 19, 1913, and attended services there until his death on February 3, 1924. Former President Calvin Coolidge on January 24, 1925, patricipated in ceremonies unveiling a memorial tablet to the late President Wilson pisced in the church vestibule.

Facilities Up to Date.

Made necessary by the continued growth of the Sunday school organization, the new building, fronting on Irving street, has been constructed along plans affording the most up-to-date facilities for religious instruction. Of colonial architecture, in harmony with the church structure itself, the new Sunday school home affords three stories and a basement of space.

One feature of the building is the room on the second floor dedicated as a memorial to former President Wilson. Designed as the officers' room, where various board and official meetings will be held, the memorial space is richly trimmed with solid walnut wainscoting and hardwood parquetry floor, and equipped with solid walnut furniture of Sheraton design. Among the interesting souvenirs in this room is a trowel used by both Presidents Wilson and Hoover in the corner-stone laying ceremonies.

Fully equipped throughout, the new building contains a Boy Scout room and a large dining hall and kitchen in the basement.

On the first floor is a large room devoted to the women's auxiliary work, the beginner's department, and an adjoining nursery room. An assembly room and several classrooms for the primary department also are located on the first floor, as well as offices for the school executives.

Room Honors Woodrow Wilson.

The junior and intermediate departments have quarters on the second floor, each one of these departments being allotted an assembly room and classrooms of its own. On this floor also is the church office—the Wilson memorial room.

The third floor contains the senior and young people's departments, which separate assembly and classrooms.

Opening of the new building marks the culmination of several years' labor by the congregation under the leadership of the pastor, the Rev. James H. Taylor. Realizing in 1928 that the work of the church, which was organized in 1868 by the late Rev. A. W. Pitzer, was handicapped by inadequate Sunday school quarters, plans for the new home were set under way. Ground was broken in August, 1929, and the building brought to rapid completion.

In celebrating the completion of their new home, the pastor, Dr. Taylor, and Sunday school officials extend an invitation to the public to visit the building and attend the weekly services.

DR. STOCKDALE PUTS ON BASEBALL TOGS

Minister, Former College Pitcher, Plays With Baptist Boys.

A large group of young men and young women, composing the membership of the B. Y. P. U. of the Fifth Baptist Church, gathered in their church hall the other night to listen to a prominent pastor of another denomination, who had come by special invitation to address them.

The minister, tall, rugged, athletic and vibrant, stood before them in a most attractive position. As he warmed up to his address he paused for one brief moment and said: "You can't play a good second base unless you eat lots of spinach."

Instantly his audience was electric with attention. One by one young men scattered throughout the audience picked up the remark and responded to it with glowing eyes and pulsating bodies. The minister took note of the effect, and went on from station to station in his address until he reached the climax.

Wanted to Play Ball.

After the service the young men gathered around him.

"Do you play baseball," they asked him.

"Oh, yes, I played when I was in college and I sometimes play now when I get a chance."

"Well, won't you come down to our park and work out with us Thursday afternoon?"

"I will be delighted to do it."

Thursday afternoon I met this minister in the Library of Congress, where he is to be found every week hard at work on his sermons. It was 2 by the clock. He saluted me by saying: "You don't know what I am going to do now?"

"Oh, yes," I replied. "You are going back to your desk and finish the work on your Sunday sermons."

"No, happily that is done. I am going to my room and get in my baseball togs and go down and work out with the Baptist boys."

"You were a college pitcher?"

Pitcher in College.

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale's fine, intellectual face broke into a broad and boyish grin, as he assured me that he "had been a sort of pitcher while he was in college."

The record of his college days shows that he was better than that, for the new minister of the First Congregational Church could "burn 'em over" with the best of the college pitchers of his day, and in all the years of his ministry he has kept his baseball togs with him, playing when he can, keeping in touch with youth, rebuilding his muscles, and giving the world an example of the Greek idea of culture, "A healthy mind in a healthy body."—D. ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN TO DEDICATE CHURCH

Elaborate Exercises Will Be Held Tomorrow in New Edifice.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church will have one big day tomorrow, which is the day set apart for the formal dedication of the new church at Connecticut avenue and Everett street. The pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. Henry W. Snyder, will preside. The clergy church council, choir and congregation will form in procession outside the church, the clergy and council bearing the Holy Bible and sacramental vessels, and will march to the main entrance. Here the service will commence and the chairman of the building committee, Luther W. Linkins, will hand the keys to the pastor.

When the door is unlocked, the procession will enter, the clergy proceeding to the chancel, where the Bible and sacred vessels will be placed, and the liturgical service will be resumed in accordance with the established order of the Lutheran Church.

Baltimore Man to Preach.

The dedicatory sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Paul W. Koller, of Baltimore, executive secretary of the Lutheran board of foreign missions. The Rev. Dr. W. O. Waltemyer, professor of religious education at Gettysbury College, a former pastor of St. Paul's, will assist in the service, as will Dr. J. T. Huddle, pastor emeritus of St. Paul's. Special anthems will be by St. Paul's vested choir, under the direction of William Fowler, organist.

The combined Sunday schools of the former St. Paul's Church, at Eleventh and H streets, and of Epiphany Chapel, at Sixteenth and U streets, will assemble in the new church at 9:30 a. m. The new superintendent, Henry C. Brunner, will be in charge. The lesson for the day will be taught to the school by Dr. Waltemyer. At 7 p. m. the Christian Endeavor Society and the Lutheran League will hold their first sessions in the new church. The Light Brigade will meet at 6:45, this being the last meeting of this organization until fall.

At 8 o'clock vesper service will be conducted by Dr. Snyder, with addresses by Drs. Waltemyer and Koller. An elaborate program of events, running through the week, had originally been planned, but on account of the recent death of Mrs. Henry W. Snyder, the pastor's wife, these will be omitted. Only the formal religious services are being retained.

Public Confession Thursday.

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock a service of public confession in preparation for the holy communion will be held, and on the Sunday morning following at 11 o'clock the dedication will reach its climax in the celebration of the blessed sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The baptism of children will also take place at this time.

The services of dedication will mark the completion of a movement begun in 1926, when the St. Paul's and Epiphany congregations voted to merge and to erect a church on the site already purchased by the Epiphany congregation in the Chevy Chase section. The old buildings at Eleventh and H streets and Sixteenth and U streets have been used for various purposes pending the erection of the new church, but with the completion of this first unit of the new group all of the congregational activities will be centered at Connecticut avenue and Everett street.

The entire building project on the new site, which covers nearly half the block, consists of a monumental church edifice of Indiana limestone in English Gothic type of architecture, with crypt chapel and auditorium on the ground floor and a Sunday school and parish house adjoining of modern departmentalized type, with assembly halls, class rooms and other social facilities.

The ground floor unit is the one now being occupied, but it is expected that further construction will be resumed in the near future.

J., formerly assistant minister at the First Congregational Church in this city, will be the preacher on July 12, and on the following Sunday the sermon will be by the Rev. John Stapleton, minister of Frankford Congregational Church, Philadelphia. Dr. Stapleton, before going to Philadelphia, was field secretary for the Congregational Home Mission Board for the Southeastern States, with headquarters in Washington.

The union services will be moved to the Universalist National Memorial Church on July 26, when the Rev. Frederick W. Perkins, minister of the host church, will be the preacher. Remey Sails For Summer Stay in Paris Remodeled Home Here Contains Anglican Chapel.

MR. CHARLES MASON REMEY has closed his home at 2440 Massachusetts avenue and will sail today for Europe on the Europa to spend about ten weeks in Paris, returning to Washington in September. His sister, Miss Angelica Remey, who has been in Newport since leaving Washington a few weeks ago, will sail for Europe July 1 to join Mr. Remey in Paris, where she will spend several weeks.

During his absence from town, Mr. Remey's house, incidentally one of the most unusual in Washington, will undergo several changes. Work will begin shortly on a large addition, which will include a library on the main floor and several bedrooms. As the architectural influence of many countries is expressed in the residence, Mr. Remey is at a loss himself to explain the exact type, and so refers to the style as "Mediterranean." Of whitewashed brick, there is a gate of iron grilling to the garage, which shelters the main entrance. For the most part the interior is carried out in Italian style.

One of the most fascinating rooms is the two-story living room, paneled in dark wood. Here an organ is installed, the pipes of which are cleverly concealed in a loft behind the paneling. Rare old Italian tapestries adorn the walls and the furniture is also early Italian. The room looks out on a grassy terrace, which is inclosed by a three-sided wall, Mr. Remey having left the rear of the plot free to afford an impressive view of Rock Creek and the surrounding country.

Another unusual note is expressed in a small chapel, which the clever owner has carried out with great precision in fine detail, following the construction of an Anglican chapel. There is a spacious library, at the front of the house, and a narrow, cloistered dining room where a refectory table lends a further note to the early Italian scheme.

Mr. Remey, with the advice of an architect, designed the house himself. He has spent a great part of his life abroad, and only came to Washington about a year ago to reside. He is a brother of Mr. John T. Remey, of New York, who married Miss Margaret Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beale R. Howard, of Washington.

Senator Reed Smoot Coming to Capital.

Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the finance committee of the Senate, will arrive in Washington tomorrow to confer with the President on matters of finance and the proposed international conference on silver.

Presumably the senator will go to his house on Garfield street which is occupied by his daughter, Mrs. Ariel S. Carden. Mrs. Smoot will not accompany the senator to Washington but will remain at their home in Salt Lake City.

Representative and Mrs. John Q. Tilson have closed their house in New Haven and with their three children left for a six weeks' trip through the Far West. During their journey Representative Tilson will visit Boulder Dam and other reclamation works of the Government in the West.

Mrs. Karl Boy-Ed, widow of Capt. Boy-Ed, who has been visiting in this country for several months, sailed yesterday on the Europa for Germany. Mrs. Boy-Ed is the former Miss Virginia Mackay-Smith, and her marriage a number of years ago to the dashing German officer caused much interest in Washington. Capt. Boy-Ed was killed in an aeroplane accident last fall at Trittau, Germany.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Frances A. C. Coulson, formerly of Washington, and Mr. Ernest Miller, in Augusta, Ga., on June 9. For several years the bride was librarian of the United States Veteran's Hospital at Augusta. Mr. Miller's former home was in Knoxville, Tenn., but he has lived in Augusta for some time.

Miss Ruth Greenwood Engaged to Marry.

Representative and Mrs. Arthur H. Greenwood, of Washington, Ind., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Greenwood, to Mr. Harold C. Nystrom, of South Dakota. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Miss Greenwood, who will spend the summer in Europe, has spent several seasons in Washington, both during and since college days, and is recognized as a clever dramatic reader, having specialized in dramatic art in New York where she attended school two winters ago and also a part of last year. She is one of the attractive members of the young congressional set.

Married in Bethlehem Chapel

MRS. ROGER GRISWOLD PERKINS, JR., who was until her marriage yesterday Miss Georgette Yerby, daughter of Mrs. Josephine L. Yerby and niece of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles H. Bridges. The wedding took place in Bethlehem Chapel.

Miss Yerby Is Married to Mr. Perkins

Pretty Ceremony Takes Place in Bethlehem Chapel.

The wedding of Miss Georgette Josephine Yerby, daughter of Mrs. Josephine L. Yerby, of Los Angeles, and niece of the Adjutant General of the Army and Mrs. Charles H. Bridges, and Mr. Roger Griswold Perkins, jr., took place yesterday in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral, which was beautifully decorated with pink roses and delphinium in tall vases. Mr. Perkins is the son of Dr. Roger Griswold Perkins, of Long Pond, Wakefield, R. I.

The ceremony was performed at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Freeland G. Peter, canon of the cathedral. Mrs. Hazard Brownwell, of Providence, R. I., was her sister's attendant, and Mr. Brownwell was the best man.

The bride was escorted to the alter by her uncle, Gen. Bridges, who gave his niece in marriage. She was a lovely picture in a gown of white satin and Alencon lace, cut on severely simple lines with a train. The bodice was of lace and was snugly fitted. Her tulle veil was held with orange blossoms and she carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Mrs. Brownwell were a frock of lettuce green Alencon lace, tea rose color accessories and carrying an arm bouquet of tea roses.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Officers Club of Washington Barracks, when Mr. Perkins and his bride received with Mrs. Yerby, mother of the bride, and Gen. and Mrs. Bridges. Mrs. Yerby wore a gown of tea rose color chiffon, with a corsage bouquet of gardenias, and Mrs. Bridges was in powder blue chiffon with pale pink accessories.

Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Perkins left for a wedding trip, the bride wearing navy blue chiffon, with an Alencon lace blouse and ecru accessories. They will spend the summer at Long Pond.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel White, Mr. and Mrs. William Westcote and Mr. Donald Gardner, of Providence, R. I., and Miss Louise Brooks, of Philadelphia. The bride was presented to society last winter by Gen. and Mrs. Bridges, with whom she has spent much of her time. She attended Holton-Arms.

Delta Theta Chi will entertain at a dinner this evening at the Dodge Hotel. Formal initiation of new memers and installation of officers will follow the dinner. The following officers will be installed:

Miss Elizabeth White, president; Miss Beatrice Golze, vice president; Miss Dorothy Bandell, recording secretary; Miss L. C. Lee, corresponding secretary; Miss Virginia Jones, treasurer, and Miss Elizabeth Franzoni, sergeant at arms.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

IT is strange but true that the English family name "Black" very often means "white." A great difficulty with this name and with all names beginning with "Black" (such as "Blackburn," "Blackhurst," "Blackley," &c.) is the impossibility in many cases of determining whether the source of the Old English "blaec," meaning "black," or the Old English "blac," meaning "bright," "white" and "pale." Normally "blaec" has resulted in the modern form "Black." It was originally a nickname given to persons with dark hair or dark complexions, or, sometimes, to persons who became conspicuous because they always wore black garments. The Old English adjective "blac" has normally resulted in the modern name "Blake," meaning "white," but, as indicated above, with the passing of time "Black" and "Blake" have become very much confused. A certain Edericke le Biacke is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls. In Ireland "Black" has been adopted as the translation or supposed translation of various Celtic names. One Irish source of "Black" is 'O Dubhthaigh," which really means "the descendant of the black man." However, "O Dubhthaigh" has normally resulted in the modern name "Duffy." A second Irish source of "Black" is "Mac Duibh," which means "the son of Dubh." "Dubh" is a Celtic personal name meaning "black." A third Irish source of "Black" is the Celtic "Mac Giolla Dhuibh," which means "the son of the black youth." However, this Celtic name has normally resulted in the modern names "MacIlduff," "MacIlduff," "Kilduff," and sometimes "Duff." Finally, some Irish families have changed their original name "O Duibh" to "Black," although that Celtic name has normally resulted in the modern forms "O'Duff" and "Duff." "O Duibh" means "the descendant of "Dubh." As mentioned above, "Dubh" is a personal name meaning "black."

DIAL FLASHES

THE twenty-third running of the $50,000 American Derby at Washington Park, Ill., will be described over both networks this afternoon (WMAL, 4:45 p. m., Pat Flanagan; WRC, 5 p. m., Clem McCarthy).

One of his rare microphone appearances will be made by Henry Ford tonight when he speaks briefly during the GE Hour (WRC, 8 p. m.). Erno Rapee will conduct the concert orchestra.

A new series of broadcasts will be started by Valspar tonight (WRC, 8:30 p. m.). Each week there will be a 14-piece orchestra conducted by William Wirges, with Charles King, Broadway star, as m. c., and well-known stars of the stage, motion pictures and radio as guest artists.

The inaugural program will present Frances Williams, Gene Austin and Countess Albani.

ORIGINATING their program in the studios of Station WBBM, Chicago, Brooks and Ross, "the crooning colonels," will offer "It Looks Like Rain" and "When You Worked In a Laundry and I Drove a Truck" in their second appearance tonight (WMAL, 8 p. m.).

A great 1,000-voice chorus and other musical groups will be heard when WRC broadcasts the opening session of the National Federation of Music Clubs, convened in San Francisco, tonight. Gov. James Rolph, jr., of California; Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco and Mrs. E. J. Ottoway, federation president, will speak briefly.

The new Irish tenor, John R. Comerford, will sing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and other Erin tunes tonight (WJZ network, 10:30 o'clock).

A dramatic version of Charlotte Bronte's story of the poor charity school girl, "Jayne Eyre," will be presented aboard Hank Simmons' Show Boat Maybelle tonight (WMAL, 9 o'clock). A most unusual microphone scene is promised for the third act during the big fire.

The Don Hall Rose trio, a musical group from the Middle West, will give a series of four recitals over WJZ's network, beginning tonight, 10:30 o'clock.

THE person who returns the hand-tooled leather bag made for her by the boys at the Naval Hospital, in appreciation for her untiring efforts to give them the sort of radio entertainment they like, will win the lasting gratitude of Peggy Clarke. Miss Clarke dropped the bag from her car in parking it near Eleventh and K streets northwest yesterday morning. She intended to return it to the boys who made it later in the day to have an inscription placed in it.

Sir Hamilton Harty, distinguished British conductor, will make his initial appearance in the United States during the Boston "Pop" concert tonight, direct from Symphony Hall (WRC, 7:30 p. m.). Sir Hamilton will attend the concert at the invitation of Arthur Piedler, conductor, to hear his composition, "A Londonderry Air," played under Piedler's leadership.

An imaginary visit to the studios of Hollywood, capital of the "movie" industry, will be offered the radio audience during the Pacific Feature Hour (WRC, 3:15 p. m.). Intimate glimpses of movie stars will be a feature of the "tour" of the studios to be conducted by Rob Wagner, who is said to know more film celebrities than any man on the Pacific Coast.

GEORGE ROSS, WRC announcer, recently had as his house guest Oliver Smith, the "Melody Moments" tenor.

Several NBC executives were thrown into a state of consternation while attending a party at the home of Andy Sannella, musical director, one night recently. Sannella is a ham radio operator during his spare time and has erected many electrical devices, including a public address system about his home. On this occasion his guests were sitting about having quiet conversation when Sannella placed the microphone of his public address apparatus before his radio receiving set, concealed in another room, and tuned in the Slumber Hour.

Phil Carlin slipped from the room, switched off the radio, and, disguising his voice, made rather unconventional announcements into the microphone. The executives listened in amazement for a few moments, then dashed for the telephone as Carlin announced various catastrophies in the studio. The trick was exposed, however, when Mrs. Carlin recognized her husband's voice.

HOW the golf craze has hit the Washington office of the NBC! Whenever the arduous duties of broadcasting permit, the executives play the game. Not one of them, however, is good enough at it yet to go around bragging about his score. P. H. Wilkins, jr., the coffee man; Vincent Callahan, Kenneth Berkeley and Heriuf Provensen compose the regular foursome.

Ai Interprets the Mode

Even the young, slim and lovely need a wee brassiere 'neath their evening gowns and bathing suits (says Dahray).

New York, June 19.

LOVELY ladies—and especially you graceful, slender ones—I wish you'd realize that you need a brassiere, no matter how slimly, softly rounded you are! Because you are perfectly formed you are apt to close your eyes to this necessity, thinking that you'll stay just as perfect through all time, which isn't so at all! Your stouter, heavier sisters know and welcome the support of a well-constructed brassiere most of the time—even if they aren't so enthusiastic about one beneath an evening gown with its low, becoming decolletage, or beneath this season's smart bathing suits. Yet these times, unfortunately, are the times every one needs a brassiere most, not only for the sake of your appearance (which would be improved by 100 per cent), but for the sake of your health.

I mean it—ask your doctor some time if proper support of the bust isn't really essential to both health and symmetry. In the old days, such support was harmful, I admit, because the brassieres were made of heavy, stiff materials, on unscientific principles—and when they were worn, my dears, the effect was just plain hideous! They distorted the bust, constricted it, did everything they shouldn't—so it isn't to be wondered at that people then preferred to go without any support at all.

But now I have made a brassiere, to be worn with the backless evening gown and bathing suit, a dainty little trifle, of lace and elastic, small enough to hide in your hand and to wash out as easily as a hanky—and when it's on it does absolute marvels for you. Honestly, now, I promise you that you will never know you had such lovely contours as you can get by wearing this brassiere! And it's so utterly comfortable, and absolutely unnoticeable under your flimsiest evening frock or most sunbacked bathing suit—'n' it is easy to make.

* * * *

This new and practical brassiere is a Paris idea—I bought several of them for hundreds of francs before I sat me down and discovered just how and where and why, but when I did find out I thought of you right away and made up an illustrated leaflet giving exact and interesting directions for making this brassiere, both in its evening and its bathing suit aspects! So, for the sake of your health and of your appearance, better get your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this leaflet on the comfortable and uplifting brassiere!

* * * *

Remember the other day when I was talking about the color scientists who had it all figured out that it was our reaction to certain colors that made certain articles sell well, and others just plain flops? Wel-l-l, I read some more about this, and what do you suppose he said the most unpopular color was? One with a reddish cast! And the most popular? What they call a "five value gray," which means a combination of colors that makes a point of rest for the eye. 'N' I'm glad that even before I knew about this "five value gray" business, I went on record as stating that gray was my favorite color!

* * * *

Oh, yes—those hat brims and crown that combine into so many chic, becoming summer hats! I almost forgot to tell you that the Dare Department of The Washington Post has only a few leaflets left giving instructions for making the hats, and that you'd better get that stamped, self-addressed envelope sent out toot sweet!

* * * *

And tomorrow you should look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Post. You'll enjoy it.

Au Revoir!

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

The Rule of Eight.
VI.

A WELL bid or played hand has much in common with a keen, subtly conceived mystery story. Each deal is, in a sense, a mystery story and the mystery to solve is that of the best bid or play. Honor and distributional values are our clews, together with partnership inferences.

The element of drama, suspense, struggle, is obligingly furnished by our opponents. Alas, the usual series of incomprehensible murders proves to be insoluble until it develops that the true villain is our partner. The underlying process is the same in the technique of a great detective, a scientist or a bridge master—the process of elimination.

What It Will Do.

The Rule of Eight offers an extremely simple but precise and workable basis for applying the process of elimination.

Briefly put, it states that the total of defensive honor-tricks in the pack will average to produce at any bid about 8 out of the 13 tricks. Four tricks will be won with Aces and the remaining four with lower honors as valued in the Standard Table on the defensive basis.

The Rule of Eight will not work with any other count of honors because it is based on the fact that the average hand, which contains one-fourth of the total share of honors, and which includes even Queens and Knaves is worth 2 honor tricks plus. In rare cases honors will take 9 tricks and, strictly speaking, the count of defensive honor-tricks for the four hands is not 8, but 8—8½. Furthermore, in applying the Rule of Eight to trump bids one must remember that any honor is apt to be ruffed and, therefore, while the maximum count of 8½ is constant, the minimum may go below 8 tricks.

The fact that the total bidding value of all defensive honors around the table at any bid and regardless of how they combine is between 8—8½ honor-tricks is of decisive value in applying the process of elimination during the bidding. Through the simple use of the elimination process, a player is aware at most stages of the bidding of the minimum honor strength (and consequent game or penalty expectancies) held in partnership and opponents' hands.

Practical Use.

The total of honor-tricks shown by the opponents' bids added to the player's own hand gives a fair measure of the honor strength balance held by partner—an important consideration, especially when partner consistently passes.

The "balance of strength" principle is of immediate practical application at all stages of the bidding. For instance: Assuming the First Hand opens with one no trump, showing thereby at least 2½ honor-tricks; Second and doubles showing about 3 honor-tricks; Third hand holds—

♠ A Q 3
♥ J 7 5 4
♣ 8 5 2

worth about 2½ plus honor-tricks. With 8 honor-tricks already accounted for, the Fourth Hand can have but a King or a Queen-Knave at the most and more likely holds a blank. The proper bid by Third Hand is "Redouble" to flash to his partner that he holds the balance of honor strength and therefore a heavy penalty is in sight.

Exactly the same process of honor strength elimination is used, although in reverse, in Slam bidding: Assume the First Hand opens with two spades which shows five honor-tricks and the Third Hand holds—

♠ J 7 4 2
♥ A Q 6

worth 2½ plus honor-tricks, the combined hands show at least 7½ honor-tricks. This means that a Small Slam will, as a rule, be made for the balance of strength left to the opponents is but 1 trick. Incidentally it also means—and that without artificial Ace showing—that combined partnership hands contain at least three Aces.

Thanks to the Rule of Eight, any player knows at all stages of bidding "his geographical spot" in relation to partner and opponents.

It is a reasonably safe compass even for a beginner by which to steer his craft on the treacherous seas of distribution.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, ENCLOSING A TWO-CENT STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me whether hyacinths can be made to bloom again.

MISS L. K.

If you keep watering your hyacinths until the leaves are entirely yellow and then set the pot aside until October they should bloom another spring. It is useless to try to keep them for house culture. In October remove the dead tops and plant the bulbs in some sunny place in your garden, using a generous quantity of bonemeal.

Please tell me why my hydranges does not bloom. It is now a large bush. MRS. L. K.

You do not tell me the variety of hydranges you have. If it is a large blue or pink flowered variety it may not bloom because each year you make the mistake of pruning the plant. Many persons who do not know that the plant blooms on wood made the previous year, prune the plant in the early spring and, therefore, cut away the flowering wood. The shrub variety should be pruned each spring, as it blooms on wood made the same season. Both kinds demand sun, and the blue and pink flowered kinds require water every day in moderately warm weather, and water twice a day in severely hot weather.

Please tell me how to care for the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf and flower. MRS. A. L.

Your plant is French hybrid hydrangea. Read the answer to Mrs. L. K. in this column concerning a blue or pink flowered hydranges.

In March, 1930, I bought a "golden bell forsythia" from a nursery. Last spring it put forth leaves but no flowers. When I examined the stems this spring, I noticed what I thought were flowers. However, when they developed they proved only leaves. It is in a place where it gets sun the greater part of the day. Also I often read of propagating roses and other shrubs from cuttings 6 to 8 inches long and burying them in damp sand. Does it make any difference how they are placed in the sand? Are they laid horizontally or are they placed erect? Is the purpose to form roots on one end only or to have roots all along the line? MISS W. A. M.

I am at a loss to know why your forsythia does not bloom. Perhaps you prune it in the fall or early spring. If so, you remove all the flowering wood, as this variety of shrub blooms on wood made the previous year. Again, the soil may be very poor where it is planted. Try incorporating some well-rotted manure with the soil or add some bonemeal at this time. Also keep the bush well watered all summer. Roses and other shrubs can be rooted in damp sand. Lay the cuttings on the sand in a horizontal position. Keep the sand damp while roots are forming. The roots will form about one end of the cutting.

Please tell me how to use fertilizer. Do you sprinkle it over the leaves or do you add it to the soil? Do tulips have to be removed from the ground when they are through blooming? Also tell me when to plant bleeding hearts, cannas and tiger lilies.

MRS. J. R.

Incorporate fertilizer with the soil. After you have applied it, thoroughly water the soil. Tulips need not be removed from the ground. Plant bleeding heart in early May or even in late April if the weather permits. Plant the cannas and tiger lilies in early May. Set cannas 3 inches deep and 15 inches apart each way.

My linden tree has some caterpillars on it. What do you suggest?

MRS. W. E. P.

Remove and destroy all egg clusters and spray the entire tree with arsenate of lead, using three pounds to fifty gallons of water.

What Today Means to You

"GEMINI."

IF June 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11:10 a. m., from 2:20 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger hours are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:50 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7:45 p. m.

June 20 is, astrologically viewed, a propitious day for most purposes, except travel. Financial portents are excellent. Unexpected circumstances should benefit both employers and employes. Many accidents, whilst traveling, are threatened; therefore no unnecessary risks should be taken.

Children born on this June 20 are, according to their horoscope, destined to go through life without reaching high spots or sinking to low levels. They will lead even lives, unmarred by any bitter experiences or illumined by any brilliant achievement—long lives and uneventful ones.

Born on June 20 you are so strongly endowed with the desire to reason that you often stand in your own light. When, however, you finally make up your mind to pursue a definite course, you carry it through at any cost. Language means a great deal to you, and either you have a very extensive vocabulary, of which you can make eloquent use, or you express what you want in short, forcible and unmistakable sentences.

Your habits are rather studious, and in your spare time you are disposed to engage in research work. You have keen and quick perception and strong intuitive faculties. You are very sensitive to your surroundings, and if inharmonious, you suffer from depression. Your nature is not a well-balanced one, and although on the whole kind and generous, envy of others' success is always gnawing at your vitals. You are most considerate of those whom you feel you can patronize. "High-hatted" to those better circumstanced than yourself.

Your temperament is a passionate one, but bitter and constant jealousy is liable to mar any love attachment. A peaceful home can not be assured where the "green demon" is always in evidence. A happy fireside is an impossibility when suspicion and mistrust prevail.

Successful people born June 20: Daniel Saunders, founder of Lawrence, Mass.

FRANCES M'DONALD

Bitter Remorse.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: I read your article headed "A Sweet and Thoughtful Cad," and only wish I had read it some seven months ago.

Like the girl who wrote you that letter, I too met a man with whom I became highly infatuated and who argued that I should "prove" my love. We were to be married, but not right away because of financial circumstances, and also because we were both going to school. So we entered into a secret pact. It became a shameful subterfuge, then I began to hate him and slowly we drifted apart, and then I realized that our "love" was a thing of evil. We broke up; I would never have married him then, no matter what.

However, here it is, a grim specter staring me in the face. Nobody knows about it, but I am always wondering if he will be cad enough to betray me. I have no peace of mind. I am now going to school at night and my circumstances are such that I can not think of any sort of a change. Sometimes I consider leaving everything and going somewhere where this awful specter will leave me, but I can't leave my family, still I hate to think of what would happen if they ever found out.

I am very attractive, both physically and mentally, and know that in the future there will be some man to whom my real love will go. Still, I can't meet such a man face to face. I dread the future.

You have offered such wonderful solutions to the mental problems of others. I wonder if my situation could be ironed out through your column. If there were only something I could turn to, I would be deeply grateful to you.

I know that you will understand why I don't sign my name.

(Even writing this letter is such a relief to me.) REMORSE.

Dear child, you are the only one who sees this specter. Therefore it is but imaginary. You are a child frightened. That is all. You would know how to soothe a child under such circumstances. Use the same method. You would convince the child that there was nothing real to fear. That is your case.

There is no earthly need to go away. You have your interests. Devote yourself to them. But give no time, no thought, no worry to the past. The growing pains are over, your lesson is learned. You will be the better mother for the wisdom that has come, however unhappily. As to meeting men face to face, let not that bother you. Men understand from personal experience just how these things come about. Most men know some cad who has played upon a woman's sympathies. And a man worth marrying would want the woman he loved regardless of what grief had come her way in life.

One of the finest women I know spent five years trying to find the child that was born to her when she was 17. She found her a girl of 13 and is paying for her education. It was that woman's husband who financed the search and who wanted to adopt the child. They found her so happy, so loved and so unconscious of the tragedy that her coming into the world had been to a tortured and panic-stricken girl that all thought of digging her up by the roots was abandoned. She remains with the people to whom she is the center of the universe and her real mother makes her dream of study abroad come true. Do you think such a man would have missed the love of his life just because of her unhappy experience at life's hands?

Begin to live in the present instead of the past and the future. When the man you want comes, you will not even fear to tell him. It will be natural to seek comfort and understanding in his arms. And you will find it. He will not even care to hear the story. He will know that you are his to protect and he will teach you what real love can be.

So brace up, dear, and be a lovely woman, wise with the wisdom that comes through pain. You will be well loved and worthily, never fear.

AIRPORT WILL GET WEATHER STATION

Washington-Hoover Field Is Awarded Bureau Now Located at Bolling.

Following several months' study of the weather forecasting for airways in Washington as well as a survey of the local fields, the Weather Bureau announced yesterday that its station now at Bolling Field would be moved to Washington-Hoover Airport shortly after July 1.

The move is being made, it was pointed out yesterday by Dr. C. C. Clark, acting chief of the United States Weather Bureau, because of recent gains in commercial flying and also because many air-mail planes use the commercial field. Incidentally, this move gives the Washington-Hoover Airport recognition as the municipal airport of the city, although privately managed and owned.

Dr. Clark said yesterday it was planned to have three well-equipped airways weather stations on the East Coast similar to stations now maintained at Cleveland, Omaha, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Chicago and other Western and Midwestern cities. At these stations, he said, hourly observations and forecasts will be made, assuring pilots of latest weather information. This has been planned for some time, and negotiations have been carried on by Dr. Charles F. Marvin, chief of the bureau, now in Europe, and Washington-Hoover Airport officials, as well as Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association, an advocate of purchase of the Washington-Hoover Airport for operation by the District as the official port.

Dr. Clark yesterday declared this move would in no way affect the reports furnished Bolling Field and that flyers there would get the same service they have been given.

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

The summer passes. Jane has been away in Seaconsit. On her return, Isabel tells her that Cicily and Albert Lancaster have been having a lively flirtation, which is breaking her daughter Belle's heart. Jane can not believe it, but Isabel says that everyone has noticed it, and asks Jane to speak to Cicily about it. Jane promises to do what she can, but is doubtful that parental interference will help. She remembers her own youth and thwarted impulses and sympathizes with Cicily, feeling however that the latter will never do anything to hurt her cousin Belle or that she will be disloyal to her husband Jack.

CICILY, JENNY AND STEVE.

CHAPTER IX.

JANE sat in a corner of Cicily's French drawing room, waiting for Cicily to come home. Walking with the twins through the snowy streets of Lakewood, withdrawn from their artless prattle in the sanctuary of thought, Jane had finally arrived at a decision. Something must be done—and done quickly. She would speak to Cicily.

The maid at the door had informed her that Mrs. Bridges had not yet come in. The girl had thrown a concerned glance at Jane's snow-powdered coat and saturated shoes. She had turned on one drawing room lamp and lit the fire under the Marie Laurensin and had brought Jane a little pot of tea on a painted tray.

Jane was roused from revery by the sound of the front door opening and closing. Cicily's light step was heard in the hall. She was alone.

Cicily Starts Terrifically.

Jane heard the waitress start to speak, but Cicily did not pause for a reply. She appeared, abruptly, in the door of the little French drawing room. The shoulders of her coat, her dark fox fur, her little black hat were all thickly frosted with soft wet snow. She did not see Jane. She walked quickly over to the antique mirror that hung between the windows. Standing directly in front of it she stared, wide-eyed, at her own reflection in the glass. Jane stared, too, a startled, involuntary stare, at the face in the mirror. The cheeks were rosered, the eyes were starry bright, the lips were parted in a reminiscent smile. Suddenly Cicily gave a little gasp.

"Oh!" she said softly, and pressing her dark-gloved hands to her rosered cheeks, continued to stare, wide-eyed at the face in the mirror.

"Cicily," said Jane gently.

The child started, terrifically. Then faced about, her lips no longer smiling, her eyes no longer starry. Slowly, like a curtain, a veil of controlled indifference dropped over her features.

"Mumsy!" she said. "I didn't know you were there. You frightened me."

Jane rose slowly from her chair in the corner.

"Cicily," she said, "I've come to talk to you."

Cicily's Face Hardens.

Behind the veil of indifference Cicily's young face hardened defensively.

"What about?" she said.

Jane drew a long breath.

"About yourself—and Albert."

There was a brief pause. Cicily moved to the fireplace and, stripping off her gloves, stood with her back to the room, holding her hands out to the warmth of the crackling flames.

"I wouldn't, Mumsy," she said finally.

"I have to," said Jane. She was conscious that her knees were wobbling disconcertingly. She sat down rather suddenly in the armchair near the fire. There was another pause.

"Well, said Cicily, finally, "all right. Shoot. I suppose you have to get it off your chest." She turned abruptly as she spoke and flung herself moodily down on the hearthrug.

"Cicily," Jane began slowly, "I don't—I don't know quite what's happening, but I know it's dangerous. I know you're not behaving—just the way you ought to behave. Don't think I don't sympathize with you, because I do——" She stopped, checked by the sight of the little scornful smile that was flickering on Cicily's lips, then continued lamely, "I do sympathize with you, Cicily, but——"

"But you believe in the Ten Commandments," said Cicily brightly. "Especially the seventh. Well—so do I, Mumsy, and I haven't broken it. There. Will that satisfy you?"

No Use of Discussion.

"Cicily," said Jane reproachfully, "I'm not joking."

"Neither am I," said Cicily promptly. "I don't think adultery's a joke. And I shouldn't dream of committing it. Some do, of course, but I've always thought they were fools. I'm keeping my head, Mumsy. I'm keeping it like anything. But I haven't made up my mind. Until I do, I don't see what's the use of discussion."

"You don't see—what's the use of discussion?" faltered Jane.

"No, I don't," said Cicily bluntly. "It's my affair. Mine and Albert's. And, in a secondary capacity, of course, Jack's and Belle's. It's a very difficult situation, and it all depends on me. I don't want to make any mistake!"

"But Cicily!"—Jane's protest was almost shrill—"you are making a mistake! You're making one this minute! It's a terrible mistake for you to sit there and talk as if there were anything but one thing to do!"

"And what's that?" said Cicily, ironically.

"Put Albert Lancaster out of your life immediately," said Jane firmly. "And forget him as soon as you can." She regretted her sharp words as soon as they were spoken. They seemed absurdly melodramatic, punctured by Cicily's light monosyllable.

"Why?"

Jack and She Both Bored.

"Why?" echoed Jane. "Why, because you're a married woman with three children and Albert's a married man with three children of his own. Because Belle was your best friend and Jack's always been a good and loyal husband——" Jane stopped for breath.

"Yes," said Cicily slowly. "Jack's always been a good and loyal husband and I've always been a good and loyal wife. We've been married nearly ten years and I'm horribly bored with him. He's really bored with me, though, of ccurse, he won't admit it. It would be perfectly impossible for either of us to recapture the emotion that brought us together. It's gone forever. The same thing is perfectly true of Belle and Albert. I've fallen in love with Albert. He's fallen in love with me. I can't see why that situation has anything to do with a dead past. I'm not robbing Jack if I give my love to Albert. Jack hasn't had my love for years. I'm not robbing Belle if Albert gives his love to me. Belle had her innings ten years ago. I don't grudge them to her. But it's my turn now."

"Cicily!" cried Jane in horror. "You mustn't talk like that! You mustn't think like that!"

"Why not?" said Cicily. "What are your brains given you for, except to think with? I believe in being practical. That's why I haven't made up my mind. There are a great many practical difficulties to consider. If I should divorce Jack——"

"Divorce Jack?" cried Jane.

Thinks of the Children.

"And Belle should divorce Albert," continued Cicily imperturbably, "there would still be a lot of adjustments to be made. There are the children for one thing——"

"I'm glad you give them a passing thought," said Jane ironically.

"Don't be sarcastic, Mumsy," smiled Cicily cheerfully. "It's not your line. You know I adore my children. And Albert's are sweet. The children do present complications. But perhaps we could solve them. They're all awfully young. They'd soon get used to it. I like the lovely picture of a sweet, united home, just as much as you do, Mumsy. But our homes aren't sweet and united. There's no use kidding yourself that they are. But"—Cicily's young face clouded thoughtfully as she spoke—"you see there's the money."

"The what?" cried Jane. This conversation was really taking on the horror of a nightmare.

Only $3,000 a Year From Dad.

"The money," said Cicily. "You see we haven't got any. Not any to speak of. Aunt Muriel made ducks and drakes of all she had during Uncle Bert's illness. She gave a lot to Albert during those years abroad. Albert really can't afford to run two households. Six children and two wives are no joke! He'd want to give Belle a whacking big alimony. I'd want her to have one. On the other hand, I really couldn't take money from Jack—now, could I?—not even for the support of his children, if I were living with Albert. Perhaps that seems Quixotic to you, Mumsy, but——"

"Quixotic!" cried Jane. This must be a nightmare.

"But that's the way I feel," ended Cicily tranquilly. Then added abruptly, "Has it ever occurred to you, Mumsy, that Dad only gives me $3,000 a year?"

In the midst of the horror a ridiculous impulse to vindicate Stephen rose hotly in Jane's heart.

"He gave you this house and lot. He gave Jack his job in the bank!"

"They wouldn't do me much good," said Cicily calmly, "in the present crisis. I'd ruin Albert. I really would. He wants to get back into the diplomatic service. He's trying to save a fortune. Of course, there's Ed Brown—but Albert says he really couldn't bring himself to come down on him to pay a brand-new stepson's wife a prince alimony! And I don't blame him. Ed Brown does seem a trifle remote. Of course, if Dad would settle about $300,000 on me——"

Jane rose from her chair.

Jane Wants to Stop the Talk.

"Cicily," she said solemnly, "I wouldn't have believed—I really—would—not—have—believed—that you could really shock me."

"You think he wouldn't?" said Cicily anxiously.

Jane did not stop to reply. She walked in silence to the door. She could hear Cicily scrambling to her feet behind her.

"It would fix up everything," said Cicily, "if he would. I know lots of girls would just take that alimony and think nothing of it, but I couldn't do it. And Albert feels just that way. We wouldn't want Belle to give up anything. I couldn't bear it if she had to go back with the children and live with Aunt Isabel ——" Strolling down the hall, she slipped her hand confidingly through Jane's elbow.

"Cicily," said Jane with dignity. "I'm not going to discuss it. If you don't see that this talk is shocking——"

"All right, Mumsy," said Cicily cheerfully. "I told you you hadn't better, but you would and you did and I've been perfectly frank with you." Jane opened the front door. "See here, darling, you can't walk home in this weather. I'll order the car."

Pettishness of An Old Lady.

"I don't want the car," said Jane pettishly. "I prefer to walk." Her pettishness was that of an irritated old lady. It reminded her of her own mother. The storm had turned into a blizzard. Small, icy flakes were driving horizontally across the darkness in the shaft of light that shone from the front door. She could not walk, of course. Cicily had already rung for Ella. She gave her order tranquilly. Then turned to smile mischievously at Jane's somber face.

"It's a compliment, Mumsy," she said, "when your children are perfectly frank with you, but you won't face facts. Your generation believes in fairies!" The hall was growing cold. Cicily closed the door. "I'm going to talk to Dad, myself, I think," she said slowly.

Jane did not reply. She still had the sense of nightmare. This would devastate Stephen. She would have to tell him. Tell Stephen, who adored Cicily. Mother and daughter stood in silence until the headlights of the motor, wheeling in the darkness, were visible through the glass panel of the door.

"Good night," said Cicily. Jane, still, did not reply. "Mumsy, don't be an ass!" cried Cicily brightly. She kissed Jane very warmly. Jane clung to her for a moment in silence. "Button up your coat, dear! Don't slip on the steps!"

Old Lady, or Soon to Be One.

Jane did not look back. She did not dare to, on the icy path. The wind was very strong. But Cicily's voice floated out to her in the darkness.

"Don't worry, Mumsy!"

The friendly chauffeur met her half way to the car. He took her arm to steady her. Jane was suddenly reminded again of her mother. She was an old lady. Or about to become one. Useless to try to understand the younger generation. But she would have to tell Stephen. She would have to tell Stephen that night.

* * * *

Jane did not tell Stephen that night, however. When she rang her front doorbell, Stephen, himself, opened the door. His face looked strangely shocked and very, very serious.

"I've been waiting for you," he said simply.

"Stephen!" cried Jane. "Stephen, what's happened?"

"I've had a wire from Alden," he answered. "Father died of heart failure at his desk in the bank, at half-past three this afternoon.

JULY 4 CELEBRATION PROGRAM IS DRAWN

Sylvan Theater Ceremony Will Be Followed by Fireworks.

Extensive plans for celebration of Independence Day are being completed by the citizens committee, appointed by the District Commissioners to have charge of the formal official program on the evening of July 4 at the Sylvan Theater, south of the Monument, and of the fireworks display later on the north side of the Monument Grounds.

The committee also has charge of a program of city-wide athletic events, to be staged during the day, and is cooperating with citizens groups which plan community celebrations.

James Grafton Rogers, assistant Secretary of State, will speak at the ceremonies at the Sylvan Theater.

The ceremonies will begin at 7 p. m. The early hour was prompted by decision of the committee to hold fireworks display at an hour when children of the city can view them. The hour set for the beginning of the fireworks is 8:30 p. m. on completion of the formal ceremonies.

Invitations are being sent to members of the diplomatic corps, United States officials, District of Columbia officials, veteran organizations, citizens associations and others to attend. At the formal program it will be possible for those occupying seats to turn their chairs to watch the aerial portion of the fireworks display. Additional chairs for the fireworks, however, will be placed north of the Monument, for which a charge will be made, to defray the cost of the fireworks.

The budget for the city-wide celebration calls for a $1,200 expenditure for fireworks, to be paid for by the sale of chairs, and total expenses for all other programs and events to be not more than $1,100. The National Capital Civic Fund has made an appropriation toward expenses of the celebration.

Vienna Man Held On Assault Count

Dempsey Faces Charge of Choking Policeman in Fairfax Fight.

Warren Dempsey, 29 years old, of Vienna, Va., was held under $1,500 bond yesterday on a charge of assaulting Sergt. Walter Mitchell, of the Fairfax County police, May 29. Trial was set before Mayor L. P. Daniel of Falls Church for June 29.

Mitchell said he received a complaint that two men were molesting two girls in Falls Church and, driving to the address, took the two girls in his car and set out in pursuit of an auto used by the men. He overtook the car, he said, and found the men were drunk.

He told the girls to drive his car home and got into the car with the men, intending to drive them to the station, he said. As he drove back, Mitchell said, Dempsey started to choke him. Mitchell said he got out of the car and Dempsey threatened to shoot him if he attempted to get back in the car. Dempsey drove away, leaving the officer stranded 3 miles from town. Mitchell said he traced Dempsey through license numbers on the car, and the man's arrest followed yesterday.

SILVER VALUE HELD RECOVERY FACTOR

000,000. This, they claim, has had a disastrous effect on occidental trade with the Orient.

Gold standard proponents and currency experts of Wall street say the declining price of silver is more an accompaniment of world depression than a cause and that the best chance of stabilizing silver lies in a revival of world trade and purchasing power. Political disturbance in China and India is rated by them as a greater deterrent of trade than the depreciation of silver.

John Hays Hammond, widely known mining engineer, has suggested that the reestablishment of silver as a secondary monetary metal might do much to revive trade.

"Suppose the nations by agreement should set a price of 60 cents an ounce on silver," he said. "Instead of the old 16 to 1 ratio this would be about 34 to 1. Silver would flow into the treasuries of the nations. They would issue paper money for purchase just as they accumulate gold at no cost at all.

"Putting a price of 60 cents an ounce on silver would not unduly increase its output. The average price of silver through the ages has been more than 60 cents and did not call forth large production.

"The metal which accumulated in the nations' vaults would have an intrinsic world value and would, therefore, lend stability to the currency guarantees of nations. The hoards of the East would come into the market place with old-time strength and a mining industry in the West would be rejuvenated."

tions, under leadership of W. Cameron Forbes, aided in alleviating the tension by recommending discontinuance of American supervision as soon as the situation warranted.

After the commission departed the first elections were held and a government was chosen provisionally. Later the present constitutional government was chosen.

(United Press.)

The State Department made it plain yesterday that any efforts by Haiti to declare inoperative the 1915 treaty under which the United States now occupies the island will be met with vigorous resistance.

Officials declared the treaty is perfectly legal and will continue in force, without abatement, until 1936. Nevertheless the State Department is anxious to withdraw Marines, of its own free will, before 1936 if the native guards d'Haiti proves it can maintain order.

SUNDAY VISIT URGED AT WOODLAND BEACH

Good Lots Are Still Available, as Early Buyers Work on New Homes.

If you don't believe that a fine summer colony is springing up at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's development on South River, in Maryland, tomorrow is your chance to visit the place and see for yourself the wonders that have been worked since the first announcement regarding the Beach was made.

All day tomorrow there will be a corps of efficient and courteous salesmen on the ground to give you any information concerning the Beach that you may desire. And all day long each car on the W. B. & A. electric line will be met at Camp Parole by buses to transport visitors to and from the Beach.

Motorists will find it a pleasant drive over Defense Highway to Camp Parole, turning right at this point on Maryland State Highway, No. 2, across South River and then left on Mayo road, which leads to the Beach. It is only 32 miles from the Capital.

Scenes of Great Activity.

Scenes of great activity will greet the eyes of those who visit Woodland Beach tomorrow, for many of the lot owners are erecting summer homes which they expect to occupy during the warm months, not only this summer, but for many summers to come.

The type of homes being erected is high, as most buyers of lots are anxious to establish really permanent places where they may entertain their families and friends in an atmosphere of rural peace when others are complaining of the disadvantages of the city during the summer.

While Woodland Beach has many features which appeal to nearly every one, the chief item which has made it so popular with Washingtonians is the price of lots.

All Are Same Price.

All are priced alike at $93, of which only $9 need be paid in cash, along with the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post. The remainder may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50.

The fact that Woodland Beach offers bathing, boating and fishing is another reason for the site's popularity. Then, too, the community clubhouse, the play devices for children and the wide variety of recreational facilities have all combined to put Woodland Beach in the public eye and keep it there.

Hundreds have taken advantage of this offer, but there are still some choice locations available, to be disposed of on the basis of "First come, first served." If you can not call at The Post today to make arrangements for your lot, drive out to the scene tomorrow and make your selection right on the ground.

ABUNDANCE OF FRUIT LURE FOR CANNERS

Cheapest and Quality Best When Fresh and Growing in Large Quantities.

The abundance of fruits and fresh vegetables in the markets at reasonable prices gives the Washington homemaker a chance to store up nutrition against the lean fall and winter days when fresh fruits and vegetables are so hard to obtain.

One excellent method is to start home canning operations while the prices are at their lowest on the individual fruits and vegetables. Yet a timely warning has been issued to the homemakers of the country by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

According to Dr. Florence B. King, chief of the food utilization division of the bureau, for economic reasons the question of home canning is likely to be more important this season in many homes than it has been since the days of the war. Canning should be a means of preserving surplus foods, she says, and not as an end in itself. Unless all costs are considered carefully, canning may defeat its economic purpose.

Best When Most Abundant.

"There is no virtue in depriving the family of its supply of fresh vegetables in order to have some for canning," Dr. King points out. "If a definite canning program is planned, the home garden should be planted to provide the surplus and still leave plenty of vegetables and fruits for daily use while they are fresh. If it will be necessary to buy fruits and vegetables for canning, the cost should be compared with fresh products out of season or with commercially canned goods. Produce is likely to have the best flavor and be the cheapest when it is most abundant, which is the logical time for canning.

"The reason for canning foods immediately after gathering is much more than an esthetic one. The preservation of the vitamin content and the control of the bacteria, yeasts and molds, which cause spoilage, depend largely on freshness. One hour from the garden to the can is a wise slogan. The produce must be thoroughly washed, and those which grow close to the ground, like spinach, must receive special attention, because the organisms found in soil are some of the most difficult types to kill. Yeasts and molds are easier to kill than bacteria, many types of which go through a spore phase in their life cycle which makes them harder to destroy.

"No growing and vegetative forms of bacteria are able to survive the temperature of boiling water for any appreciable length of time. Many spore forms, on the other hand, are killed at boiling temperature only after long-continued heating. This means that the degree of heat and the length of time that heat is applied should always be regulated to insure a sterile product. The temperature and time schedule vary with the fruit or vegetable, depending on the acidity and viscosity of the juices. After destroying the microorganisms the food must be protected against the entrance of others by sealing air-tight."

Processes Are Described.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture distributes a publication, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home," which takes up in detail the several methods used in canning and the length of time necessary to process the various fruits and vegetables. The bureau says that it is not safe to can nonacid fruits and vegetables and meat except under pressure.

A family of three, including father, mother and 2-year-old child should buy every week: Bread, 10 to 15 pounds; flour, 1 to 2 pounds; cereal, 3 to 4 pounds; whole fresh milk, 9 to 14 pounds, or canned evaporated milk 9 to 14 tall cans; dried beans, peas, peanut butter, 1 to 2 pounds; potatoes, 8 to 10 pounds; tomatoes, fresh or canned, or citrus fruit, 4 pounds; other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color), and inexpensive fruits, 12 to 14 pounds; fats, such as lard, salt pork, bacon, margarine, butter, &c., 2 pounds; sugar and molasses, 3 pounds; lean meat, fish, cheese, eggs (1 dozen eggs approximates 1 pound), 3 to 5 pounds; eggs (for children), 3 each; coffee, 1 pound; tea, ½ pound.

RECIPES.

(These recipes serve five persons)

Corn Soup.
2 cups canned crushed corn
1 cup water
1 quart milk
1 onion, cut in halves
1 tablespoon flour
4 tablespoons butter
Salt to taste
Pepper.

Combine the corn and the water, cook for ten minutes, and stir constantly to keep from sticking to the pan. Press the corn through a strainer. Heat the milk and the onion in the double boiler and thicken with the flour and fat, which have been well blended. Add the corn pulp, salt and pepper. Heat, remove the onion, and serve. Buttered pop corn makes an interesting substitute for croutons to serve with corn soup.

Tomato Omelet.

To make a fluffy omelet for a family of five use from 4 to 6 eggs. For a four-egg omelet, beat the yolks thoroughly and add 4 tablespoons of milk. If preferred, the milk may be heated; it will then cook the yolks slightly when it is added and will give the mixture a smoother consistency. Or, one-half cup of hot white sauce of medium thickness added to the four yolks will make a larger omelet with more body. Fold the yolk mixture gradually and carefully into the stiffly beaten whites containing one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Have ready and hot a smooth heavy omelet pan, containing 1 tablespoon melted butter, and pour the egg mixture into the pan.

The omelet may be cooked in three different ways, but in any case start it on top of the stove at moderate heat. If a small sized gas or oil burner is used, move the pan about so that the omelet will cook around the edge at the same rate as in the center. As soon as the omelet has browned slightly on the bottom, place it in a moderate oven (350 degree Fahrenheit) and bake for 10 minutes. Or, continue the cooking on top of the stove until the mixture sets, and then place under a low broiler flame for two or three minutes. Or, if preferred, cover the pan during the whole period and so cook the top of the omelet with steam.

When the omelet is done, crease it through the center, fold it over with a spatula, and roll it onto a hot platter without attempting to life it from the pan. Pour over the omelet the hot tomato sauce, and serve at once.

Tomato Sauce.
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 slices onion
1 teaspoon sugar
1 bay leaf
2 whole allspice
2 whole cloves
Flour
Butter or other fat
Salt and pepper

Simmer the tomato, onion, sugar and spices for 10 minutes. Strain through a fine sieve and measure the liquid. For each cup of liquid blend two tablespoons flour and two tablespoons melted fat, add to the tomato juice with salt and pepper to season, and stir until thickened. Continue to cook over hot water for 5 to 10 minutes. Serve hot with croquettes or meat loaf.

Gingerbread.
1-3 cup fat
½ cup sugar
1 cup molasses
1 egg
3 cups sifted soft-wheat flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup milk

Cream together the sugar and fat. Add the molasses and beaten egg. Sift together twice the dry ingredients and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in two shallow pans in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 to 40 minutes. Serve with cream cheese or whipped cream.

One cup of sour milk may be used instead of the sweet milk. In that case, use one scant teaspoon of soda in place of the one-half teaspoon called for in the recipe and use only two teaspoons of baking powder.

STUDY OF SAVINGS URGED ON BANKERS

District Association Meeting Told to Consider Raising $5 Minimum for Interest.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Hot Springs, Va., June 19.—Member banks of the District of Columbia Bankers Association were advised today to give careful study toward raising the present $5 minimum balance required in savings accounts before interest is paid on them.

This advice was contained in the report of a special committee appointed to investigate interest on savings accounts, made public at the second session of the association's convention. The committee further suggested that banks give consideration to the introduction of a service charge on very active savings accounts, or insist on transfer of such to checking accounts.

The report, based on responses of 25 of the 38 member banks to the committee's questionnaire, showed 69,953 savings accounts of $5 or less, averaging $1.92 per account and totaling $134,470; 53,148 of $50 and not less than $5, averaging $20.61, and totaling $1,095,470, and 83,895 of $50 and more, averaging $779.30 and totaling $64,280,180, the grand average being $316.48 on 206,996 accounts, totaling $65,510,120.

Legal Practice Discussed.

Citing considerable agitation in regard to banks and trust companies avoiding legal practice in trust management and refraining from drafting wills and trust instruments, Trust Officer Barnum L. Colton, District National Bank, reporting for the association's fiduciaries section, made the following statement:

"In order to avoid any misunderstanding by lawyers, who are recognized by some as being our best prospects for trust business, I recommend that the section take warning from experience of others, and I believe that our section through its members could pledge itself to observance of certain defined policies regarding avoidance of the practice of law in management of trust business and, particularly, to refrain from drafting wills and trust instruments."

The section named as its executive council Kenneth F Brooks, Riggs National Bank; T. Stanley Holland, American Security & Trust Co.; William Howard, National Bank of Washington; Leonard Marbury, Washington Loan & Trust Co, and Ralph Quinter, Commercial National Bank.

Interest on Deposits.

Speaking on "Interest on Deposits and Methods of Computation," O. Howard Wolfe, cashier, Philadelphia National Bank, said bankers may help solve many of their mental problems by agreeing on what he believed a fundamental axiom with respect to interest, this being that its payment on deposits is, in its essence, simply a profit proposition and not, as is the case of interest on loans, a contractual relation.

Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Associate Justice Frederick L. Siddons, District Supreme Court, were passed and forwarded to his family with a floral tribute. Telegrams of regret were sent to Frederick P. H. Siddons, his son, who was chairman of this year's cnovention committee, and to S. W. Miller, Union Trust Co., also called from the convention by the death of his mother. In the absence of Mr. Siddons the report of the protective committee, of which he is also chairman, was read by President Joshua Evans, jr., District National Bank.

Reviewing activities of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, Frank M. Perley, American Security & Trust Co., latest chapter past president, announced the success of its general tuition plan, inaugurated during the past administrative year.

Bernard I. Bourdren and Miss Catherine M. Krieg, Riggs National Bank, first and second prize winners in the association's essay contest, read their papers at the session. The composition of Miss Eugene J. Horak, Bank of Brightwood, third prize winner, unable to attend, was read by Reginald W. Lewis, cashier, Northeast Savings Bank. Regrets of various notables unable to attend were read.

Winners in the large sports program of the convention are being announced. Edwin C. Steffe, Federal American National Bank & Trust Co., won the Edward B. McLean cup in the top-spinning contest. This top spinning 79 seconds in a play-off with James C. Dulin, jr., American Security & Trust Co. Charles T. Claggett, general manager, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., won the I. A. "Pop" Fleming cup for golf.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL.

A BREAKDOWN for Clara Bow is a break for somebody else. At least that is the way it impresses the casual layman, who reads that owing to Miss Bow's continued ill health Miss So-and-so will assume her role in the picture that was halted by the sudden collapse of the burning baby from Brooklyn!

It seems, however, that it doesn't work out like that at all. For instance, Peggy Shannon declares that if she ever gets a day off she is going to take in a lot of picture shows. She is a good deal like the sailor who was at sea so long that he got way behind in his rowing!

Peggy has been continuously busy making movies since she arrived in Hollywood about six weeks or so ago. Two days after she arrived on the West Coast Clara Bow had her second disintegration. The picture had been started, so Peggy was rushed in to assume Clara's stellar role.

It sounds simple. In actual practice it was hectic, confusing and all so precipitate as to seem almost unreal.

Miss Shannon was confronted with a situation in which she had to take makeup tests, fit gowns and learn dialogue all at once.

She was called at 4 o'clock one afternoon and worked practically all night getting ready. At 10 the next morning she was on the set ready for her first scene. Often she worked from 10 one morning to 4 the next.

Before that picture was completed a second, "Silence," in which she is to be cofeatured, was begun. Peggy worked for a while on one set in the morning, changed costumes at noon and reported on another set with a different cast and a new director in the afternoon.

If that's a break, I'll take vanilla!

Even at that, I would rather attempt to double for Peggy Shannon than I would for Lucille Page, the acrobatic star of Fanchon and Marco's "Prosperity" Idea, now at the Fox. As an acrobatic dancer, Miss Page begins where all the others stop. She has been with Fanchon and Marco since she was 14 years old and was a hit in her first show.

Earl Carroll, I understand, has signed her for his new "Vanities"—sort of stealing a Page from Fanchon and Marco, as you might say—to open the New Earl Carroll Theater in New York on August 27.

That will be great, if she can just manage to hang together until then—as you will very much doubt after you see with what abandon she scatters herself about the stage!

Among the shots you might care for in the new newsreels are President Hoover and former President Calvin Coolidge making their addresses before the multitudes that gathered for the dedication of the Harding Memorial in Marion, Ohio, last Tuesday; the Galveston Beauty Pageant, a sort of pictorial panegyric to pulchritude at play; that valiant steed, Twenty Grand, winning the Belmont Stakes by a city block, and Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, back in America after having been cleared of the charge of murder by a French jury, who as a public speaker is still a typical beauty contest winner—beautiful, but just a little dumbfounded, if you know what I mean.

In case this weather drives you into the Crystal Pool out at Glen Echo Park, it may be some comfort to know that your safety will be looked to by four stalwart life guards who know their stuff.

Capt. Ben Wissner is a senior at Syracuse University, where he is stroke on the crew, a member of the water polo and swimming teams and a half back on the football team.

Boyd Hickman, graduate of Tech High in Indianapolis, Ind., is now a sophomore at George Washington University and on both the basket ball and football teams.

Robert C. Varela is a Central High graduate, was captain of the swimming team, placed for several years in the South Atlantic swimming meets and holds several back-stroke records.

Dick Garrett, native of Pittsburgh and a graduate of Tech High in this city, in addition to being a crack swimmer, has played football and has done track work, and while at Devitt Prep and the University of North Carolina was a member of the track team of each.

So go ahead and dive off that high one, if you must, but if you are going to get yourself in a jam don't do it on porpoise!

If the producers attempted to get away with any murder in adapting "Up Pops the Devil," opening today at the Earle, to the screen, this is an excessively bad spot to expect to get away with it. Washington certainly knows its "Up Pops the Devil" if any one does. It was next to the closing attraction at the Belasco in late April, has been done by the National Theater Players during their eleven weeks—soon to be twelve—on E street, and now comes to the screen with Carole Lombard and Norman Foster in the roles played by Sally Bates and Roger Pryor, at the Belasco, and by Nancy Sheridan and Stanley Ridges, at the National.

Yes, but think of the poor guys laying asphalt pavement!

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

FOX

"WOMEN OF ALL NATIONS." Fox picturization of a story by Barry Conners, based on the characters of Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt, starring Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, supported by El Brendel, Greta Nissen, Fifi Dorsay, Marjorie White, Bela Lugosi and Jesse De Vorska. Directed by Raoul Walsh. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

In fashioning his latest series of amatory adventures for Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt, those two hard-boiled heroes of the big push of thirteen years ago, Barry Conners has adopted the serviceable device of telling an "I knew the boys when" story, unfolded through the medium of a succession of old-time printed subtitles. By this process of reminiscence he is able to remember 'way back to the fighting days on the Western front when Flagg and Quirt were paving the way for "What Price Glory." He enables the spectator to do the same, because that is where the present picture starts—with a few brief cutbacks to earlier adventures of these two fighting pals that have been celebrated in previous films—notably, "What Price Glory" and "The Cockeyed World."

This is useful for two reasons. It revives many ribald memories and at the same time serves as a sort of index to what to expect in "Women of All Nations." And that is precisely what you get—another rowdy comedy, packed with blistering invective, bursting with comic situations and almost continuously revelatory of intimate feminine charms of one sort or another.

The present junket begins in a recruiting office, across the hall from the suspicious establishment of a bogus beauty practitioner by the name of Du Bois—who turns out to be Quirt, who takes on again at Flagg's vigorous behest, to evade arrest when his seraglio is raided. It proceeds then to Sweden and, later, to the Mediterranean coast. Everywhere the boys are wrangling, as usual, over women they are trying to steal from somebody else—either Olaf, the fisherman, or Prince Hassan, the Oriental potentate, into whose harem they blunder.

Unless you are a stickler for delicacy in your comedy—and excepting the too persistent use of the "meow" motif as a love call, and the Bronx cheer as a cacophony of contempt—you will find most of what happens, and is said, riotously and roughly funny.

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe revivify the two famous service men in lusty fashion, aided by Greta Nissen as the major object of their rivalry, and El Brendel in one of the most productive comedy roles he has had in months. Fifi Dorsay, Marjorie White, Bela Lugosi and Humphrey Bogart are among many who lend high pressure support in distinctly minor assignments.

Supplementary screen attractions are the Fox Movietone News, and a special reel devoted to the graduating classes of Washington high schools, prefaced by a short introductory word by Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, and punctuated by brief addresses by members of the respective classes themselves.

On the stage is Fanchon & Marco's "Prosperity" Idea, a well ordered revue, richly productive of good times in the theater, at least. Lucille Page is the star of this unit—as she would be of any. Miss Page is an acrobatic dancer of astounding proficiency. She is surrounded by able associates in Jack La Vier, a serio-comic trapezist; Danny Beck, expert impersonator and percussionist; the Aaron Sisters, vocal harmonists after the order of the Forman Sisters, here with Ted Healey and in "America's Sweetheart;" Tommy Harris and Danny Daniels, tap dancers, and the "Prosperous Beauties."

Glen Carow, Washington's youthful piano virtuoso, offers an interval of genuine artistry in Mendelssohn's Concerto in G Minor, accompanied by the orchestra, under the baton of Al Mitchell. Bob Hamilton is heard in a superb "Song of India" organlogue to round out what I should say is a pretty swell summer bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"THREE WHO LOVED." A Radio picturization of a story by Martin Flavin, adapted to the screen by Beulah Marie Dix, featuring Betty Compson, Conrad Nagel and Robert Ames, supported by Robert Emmett Keane, Bodil Rosing and Dickie Moore. Directed by George Archainbaud. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Over on Fifteenth street this week is the latest addition to crook pictures—well, not exactly a crook picture, yet not at all without its crooked moments. With all its thin plot, so-so acting and character portrayals and not too serious attempt to be more than typical hot-weather fare, "Three Who Loved" does furnish more than a slight measure of enjoyable summer amusement.

Conrad Nagel, a rising young bank teller, imports right from the old sod his Scandinavian sweetheart, Betty Compson. Being more enthusiastic in his study of law than the more traditional role of impassioned lover, Robert Ames manages all but to marry Betty, when a coincidental revelation of a plural marriage and a $10,000 shortage in his accounts circumvents the happy consummation and lands him in jail.

Five years pass and Conrad, still conscience-stricken (for it was he who took the money), prepares to make a clean breast of the whole business. A convenient deletion of Ames (by the gunshot route) and a declaration of true love by Betty leaves Conrad supremely happy as the picture fades out to "The End."

A plain and simple narrative, entirely transparent from the start, but it offers Mr. Nagel a chance to deliver another of his characteristic portrayals, although it is nothing epochal—either the character or the way he plays it.

Chief among Miss Compson's achievements in the current opus is her assumption of a Scandinavian accent that is extremely well done. During the term of years covered by the picture she naturally loses most of it, but during moments of emotional stress it returns, all in delightful fashion.

In the supporting cast, Robert Emmet Keane plays his usual delightfully unostentatious lieutenant of detectives; Bodil Rosing, the Swedish housekeeper, and Dickie Moore, the young son of five.

The subsidiary screen subjects include a fascinating travelogue by the Rambling Reporter on "Father Nile," depicting in words and pictures the charm of Egypt; "Toby, the Pup's Hallowe'en," an amusing animated cartoon of spooks; "Against the Rules," a comedy not entirely without a "moment," and a new release of the Pathe News.

Eighth Dividend Declared.

The Carpel Corporation, wholesale food distributors, with headquarters in this city, has declared its eighth consecutive dividend of 50 cents per share, payable on July 1 to stockholders of record at the close of business, June 22, it was announced yesterday. This is a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents per share with an extra 12½ cents, making the annual rate of $2 per share.

Y. E. Booker & Co., yesterday announced the removal of their offices to the New American Security Building, 730 Fifteenth street northwest. The firm has been located at 1508 H street northwest since its formation July, 1926.

Membership of the firm is made up entirely of Washington men. Yelverton E. Booker, Harry W. Finney and T. Baker Robinson are general partners, and George Hewitt Myers is special partner. They are members of the Washington Stock Exchange and have a direct wire connection to New York with Messrs. Dominick & Dominick for the convenience of Washington investors.

Exchange Has Light Day.

The local stock exchange experienced a light day yesterday. Eight shares of Potomac Electric 5½ per cent preferred sold at 11. One Commercial National Bank share sold at 215. Lanston Monotype experienced a drop of 2 points on two sales of ten shares each. The first sales were at 90 and the last at 88. Georgetown Gas 5s went at 103½.

The United States Service, of Boston, Mass., reports that business throughout the country is in a healthier condition than at any time since the beginning of the year. Effects of the business depression are still in evidence, it is reported, but a definite turning toward better times is looked for in September and October.

The stock market, the business service believes, will probably take on a better tone after the second quarter earning statements are out of the way. This presumption is made with the understanding that no European difficulties will arise within the next month or two to produce some new upset.

Shoe Plant Is Denied Right to Cut Wages

Boston, June 19 (A.P.).—The State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration today denied the application of Brockton shoe manufacturers for a flat 10 per cent cut in wages. They did, however, grant certain other reductions averaging 7 per cent.

In announcing the board's decision, Edward Fisher, chairman, said Brockton was one of the last shoe centers in the entire country to seek a wage cut and he said he believed that the ordered reduction would aid manufacturers in maintaining present business. He described the cut as a modest one.

Georgetown, Miss., June 19 (A.P.).—W. D. Fleming, 55, a merchant of Rockport, Miss., was killed, and Dr. J. H. Woods, 58-year-old physician, of Georgetown, was wounded in a pistol duel on the streets here today. They met in front of a downtown bank, and first engaged in a bitter argument. This led to a fist fight, and then both drew revolvers and fired.

Mr. Fleming fell with a bullet in his heart. Dr. Woods was shot in the head, and was taken to a hospital. Police said they learned ill feeling had existed for a long time between the physician and Fleming, whose wife had been a patient of Dr. Woods.

INDIANS HAMMER JONES, BREAK NATS' STREAK, 9-6

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE Nats' opening engagement in the West which saw their winning streak fractured by the Indians yesterday had the salutary effect of lengthening he lead of the Athletics to three and a half games when Mr. Mack's merry men seized the opportunity to gain a full step in the pennant stampede by thrashing the White Sox.

My alarmist propensities are trying hard to break through a reinforced optimism and shout into mine ear that the turn of events yesterday is the beginning of the end. But in the light of the well-earned succession of victories by the Nats on their recent home stay and their consistent triumphs during the last Western trip, I am constrained to withhold opinion until the current tour is completed and Philadelphia and Washington engage in hand-to-hand warfare here in the three-game series that starts July 5.

A's Victory Typical

The Athletics' victory at Chicago yesterday was typical of the team's success since the start of the season. They won on a day that Lefty Grove allowed twelve hits by the simple expedient of hammering opposing pitching for fourteen hits, including three home runs.

Grove, in form, is a guarantee that the Macks will win, but the Grove who allows twelve hits is far off form, and it is on occasions of this kind when their own pitching weaknesses, if any, crop out that the Mackmen have risen to the need and buried themselves with the bat to offset defensive shortcomings as they did yesterday.

The siege guns of the Mackmen, Simmons, Foxx and Cochrane, have not been firing the same long-distance salvos that marked their campaigns of 1929 and 1930, but the pitching this season is infinitely superior with the welcome comeback of Rube Walberg to support a Grove and an Earnshaw who have improved even over their records for the past two seasons.

Strain of Pace Setting

This column has heard much of the strain of setting the pace and the strategic position of the club in second place, and places as much dependence on their respective disadvantages and benefits as our Mr. Stimson places in the Moscow government.

As for the strain of setting the pace, Mr. Mack has indicated no desire to relieve his athletes of the hardships of remaining in the lead, and since the start of the season has been throwing in relief pitchers and pinch batters and runners with abandon in an effort to maintain the pace-setting distinction.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Griffith has expressed the hope that his own athletes would overtake the Mackmen and set the pace themselves in the very face of the popular supposition that pace setting is a tremendous strain on any team, fraught with the possibility of cracking wide open as the result of the mental hardships incident to a highly keyed brand of play over a long period.

There has been no concerted rush of the leaders in either the American or National Leagues to hustle out of their pace-setting berths in an effort to take advantage of the strategical possibilities that are supposed to go hand in hand with second place.

Nats Have Advantage

As long as the Nats are able to maintain a contending position, however, they are the beneficiaries of the percentages as the two leading teams are now constituted.

With Connie Mack depending almost entirely on the Big Three of his staff to carry the pitching burden, it is he who is taking the greater gamble in the pennant race. The loss of any one of his Terrible Trinity for any length of time may be a mortal blow to his pennant aspirations. It is in the contrasting makeup of Walter Johnson's pitching staff that the Nats have an advantage.

Johnson this season is blessed with a plethora of pitchers as a result of the blossoming of the two young southpaws, Fischer and Burke, and the presence of his veterans Brown, Crowder, Jones, Marberry and Hadley. With Marberry out of action recently, the staff was in nowise affected. In the event of accident or injury to pitchers, albeit a slender basis for hope, but by no means impossible, Johnson will hold the stronger hand in the final drive for the pennant, if there is one.

Burrows Wins Over Pitt in Golf Finals

Star of Public Links Is Titlist at Manor Club, 3 and 2.

Leads Pitt One Up at Turn; Makes Many Recovered Shots.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

BRADLEY H. BURROWS, public links champion of the District of Columbia, yesterday won the Manor Club invitation golf tournament, defeating Harry G. Pitt, of the home club, on the sixteenth green, 3 and 2. The gallery which followed the match was the largest seen on any golf course during a final round this season and was rewarded by witnessing an interesting contest, Burrows needing two pars for a 71 when the match ended, while Pitt would have finished in two pars with a 74. Burrows was even with par.

Both finalists played fine golf in the semifinal round and eliminated their opponents by safe margins. Pitt defeating Thomas B. Wooten, of Atlantic City, 5 and 3, and Burrows disposing of Miller B. Stevinson, of Columbia, on the fifteenth green. Both Wooten and Stevinson struggled bravely through their matches but were overwhelmed by a succession of pars and birdies scored by their opponents.

Both Drives in Woods On First Hole.

The first hole of the final match indicated an exhibition of indifferent golf which happily was not realized. Both players drove into the woods, Pitt being handicapped by an almost unplayable lie while Burrows was compelled to play a short chip shot out to the fairway. Both took four shots to reach the green but Burrows ran down a 20-foot putt for a 5, Pitt taking two putts for a 6.

Both halved the second hole in par 3s and the third hole in birdie 3s. Pitt squared the match with another birdie 3 on the fourth hole, chipping dead to the hole from a lie in the rough off the green, while Burrows played both his drive and his second shot into traps. For the first and last time Pitt became one up on the fifth when Burrows hooked his tee shot deep into the woods. Not another hole was won by Pitt until the fourteenth, when a long putt from the upper edge of the green curled sweetly into the cup for a birdie 3.

Burrows 1 Up At the Turn.

Burrows reached the turn one up. Pitt had lost the sixth when he was forced to extricate his ball from a tangle of trees after his drive. The seventh was halved in regulation 4s and the eighth in par 3s, both players making fine recovery shots for single putts after their tee shots had carried across the green. Both were in the woods on the ninth, but Burrows reached the green with his third shot, while Pitt overplayed the green with his third into a trap.

When Burrows had won the tenth with a birdie 3 after a perfect mashie-niblick shot and had won the eleventh when Pitt, off in the rough from the tee, had taken four shots to reach the green, he became 3 up and the end was in sight. It is true that he lost the twelfth by reason of a stymie, but he won the thirteenth when Pitt once more drove into the forest. Pitt's long putt on the fourteenth kept the game alive and both ran down long putts on the fifteenth for birdie 4s. On the sixteenth, however, Pitt was again in the woods, while Burrows was straight and far in the center of the fairway. Pitt nearly reached the green and could have halved the hole, but his short approach and a missed putt ended the match.

Burrows Aided By Recoveries.

Both players were frequently in trouble, but Burrows managed to recover without serious loss except on the fifth hole, while Pitt's excursions into the forests were fatal. Burrows, too, was playing his irons in accurate fashion and his putter was working with deadly effect. The fact that he was even with par shows that he was at the top of his always excellent game. The generous applause of the gallery, although the latter was largely composed of members of the Manor Club, was impartially distributed. The cards:

Yanks' 19-Hit Attack Swamps Browns, 16-5

St. Louis, June 19 (A.P.).—The Browns had a dismal home-coming today when they were slaughtered by the New York Yankees, 16 to 5.

While Henry Johnson was holding the locals to seven hits, his teammates jumped on Gray, Coffman and Stiles for 19, including homeruns by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. In addition to his circuit smash, Gehrig also produced a single and two doubles.

Ben Chapman, Yank right fielder, ran his stolen base total to 22 with clean steals of second and home.

FIRST HARVARD CREW TO BEAT YALE SINCE 1927

DUDLEY ADDS 70 TO LEAD WESTERN

Jock Collins' Record-Breaking 67 Lowers Hagen's Mark.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

DAYTON, Ohio, June 19 (A.P.).—Jock Collins, of Dayton, provided the Western open golf championship with its biggest scoring thrill today, but Ed Dudley, tall shotmaker from Wilmington, Del., supplied the best grand collection of strokes.

As the galleryites forgot the blistering hot day to cheer Collins' record-breaking round of 67 over the heavily trapped Miami Valley Golf Club course, and cheered him as the leader at the halfway mark of the 72-hole battle with his total of 141 shots, Dudley slipped in with a par-shattering 70, which gave him a 36-hole total of 139, and the lead by two shots.

Four Favorites Close Behind.

Neither of the leaders had much room, however, as four of the biggest favorites in the championship struggle crowded close behind George Von Elm, of Detroit, sore thumb and all, landed three shots away from Dudley, with rounds of 72-70—142, while Walter Hagen, Detroit; Gene Sarazen, defending champion from Fresh Meadow, N. Y., and Olin Dutra, of Los Angeles, stood within easy striking distance with 143s. Nine others came in with scores ranging from 144 to 147 but none was granted much of a

Yale Boys Trail Harvard With Six Toiling at Oars And Two as Passengers

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—With an Irisher named Jerry Cassidy pulling the stroke oar, the Harvard boat crew beat Yale for the first time in four years this evening in a race that brought two of the stalwart young Yales crumpling down in exhaustion in the last quarter-mile. Yale finished with a crew of six surviving toilers at the sweeps and two passengers who could only manage feeble pecking motions rt the water of the American Thames.

Sheldon Foster, in the bow, crossed the line flat on his back, too badly beaten by a final desperate sprint to keep his hands on his oar. Bill Garnzy, rowing No. 4, had to give up for a few strokes as the boats neared the finish line, but came weakly into action again as the beaten ship drifted across.

Capt. John Hallowell, No. 2 in the undefeated Harvard boat, lasted long enough to see his crew win going away from Yale, but the punishment of the 4-mile pull up-river on slack water beat him, too, as soon as the race was won. After a short delay, a launch came alongside and he was helped out of the shell and replaced by a substitute for the short, leisurely pull down to the Harvard boathouse.

Harvard Leads At Start.

Harvard jumped away to a lead of almost a length in the first 100 yards and with the exception of a brief instant in the final quarter mile, when the Yale bow shoved ahead to a point about midship of the winning shell, the margin never was less than a length. Harvard's time was 23 minutes 21 seconds, against a record of 20:14 2-5 and Yale's 23:31, more than two lengths behind. The race that put three men down, two of them before the finish, was a fierce struggle from the big, black skeleton of the railroad bridge in New London until the Yale crew finally went to ruin just a few seconds from the end. Yale's killing sprint, if it had been sustained, might have caught Harvard, for those young men were not unaware of the strain, themselves, and were losing their lead when the crash came and Yale's boat lost momentum as suddenly as if it had rammed a rock.

A shout, along the river, "Yale's bow is down," focused the gaze of the gayest throng in American sport on the reclining figure of a young man yanking at his oar with the last flicker of his strength. Foster came up once and tried to resume his work but it was too much. He let go, flopped back and was out, and Harvard, after three successive defeats in the boat race that means almost as much as the football game to Harvard and Yale, had won again, at last.

Crimson "H" Blazes Forth.

The boat trains came back down the river in the gloom of the evening, for darkness closed down on the green countryside soon after the finish. The lights of the yachts came on, and from one or them a huge crimson "H" blazed forth triumphantly.

Harvard's boat was a length and a quarter in front at the first half-mile and maintained this lead going past the first mile buoy. At the next half-mile Yale had regained a few yards and the pursuit slowly closed the gap in the next mile of going so that Harvard was a scant length in front at 2½ miles.

Half a mile from the finish the boats vanished from the view of the long trainload of shouting Harvards and Yales as a nose of land intervened. It was back there, visible only to the passengers on the anchored lane of yachts and a jam of people standing on the banks, that Yale applied the pressure that blew up the engine. The boys were walking up on Harvard in a come-behinder's challenge that must have carried them by if it hadn't killed them off. To the shout of "Come

Cubs Slug 5 Pitchers To Trounce Robins, 12-7

Brooklyn, June 19 (A.P.).—Slugging five Brooklyn pitchers for fifteen hits, the Chicago Cubs took the lead in their series with the Robins today, winning an easy 12 to 7 decision.

Bob Smith went the full route for the Cubs and although he spotted the Robins three runs early in the game, his teammates came back to hammer the offerings of Shaute, Heimach, Quinn, Moore and Day all over the park. Every Cub, with the exception of English, got at least one hit.

Red Sox Nosed Out By Tigers in Slugfest

Detroit, Mich., June 19 (A.P.).—The Tigers needed all of their nineteen hits to win the series opener from the Boston Red Sox, 7-6, here today.

It was a free hitting game throughout, a total of 30 hits going for 45 bases. There were three doubles, three triples and two home runs by Berry and Stone, each coming with one man on base. Stone's homer tied the score at 6 all in the seventh. Russell, who started for the Sox, was hit safely by the first five men to face him and went to the showers without retiring a man. Durham and Moore succeeded him. Uhle went the route for the Tigers, allowing eleven hits.

3 HOMERS AID MACKS TO WIN, 10-4

Grove Yields Chisox 12 Hits in Slugfest; Haas Star at Bat.

CHICAGO, June 19 (A.P.).—Bob Grove was hit hard by the White Sox today, but the Athletics hit harder and he won his twelfth victory of the season by a score of 10 to 4.

The champions made fourteen hits off Caraway, Moore and Faber, while Chicago made twelve off Grove, but three of the Philadelphia hits were homers. Mule Haas had a perfect day at bat, with four singles and a triple in five times up. Phil Todt and Al Simmons also starred on the offense, Todt getting two home runs and Al two singles and a homer. The three of them accounted for all ten of the Philadelphia runs, Lew Fonseca hit a home run for the White Sox in the third, with two men on, to temporarily tie the score.

The Philadelphia win, coupled with Washington's loss to Cleveland, extended the champions' lead to 3½ games.

Loretta Turnbull Injured, Hurled From Speedboat

Star Outboard Driver, in Hospital, Begs Another Chance.

SKANEATELES, N. Y., June 19 (A.P.).—Hurled from her outboard speedster in the intercollegiate outboard motor regatta on Skaneateles Lake today, Loretta Turnbull, international champion, suffered a badly dislocated left hip and other injuries.

Recovering consciousness at a hotel, Miss Turnbull, Citrus College, California, representative in the regatta, pleaded to be allowed to carry on. Instead, she was removed to the Auburn City Hospital, 7 miles away.

"Loretta has been on crutches before from racing mishaps," said her father, Supreme Court Justice Ruper Turnbull. "This will not stop her from continuing the game."

Giant Streak Broken As Pirates Win, 4-1

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates could collect only five hits off the combined deliveries of Clarence Mitchell and Joe Heving today, but they bunched four of them in the first two innings to defeat the Giants, 4 to 1, and square the series.

Ray Kremer went the route for the Pirates, keeping six hits scattered except in one inning.

MATE RULES FAVORITE IN $50,000 AMERICAN DERBY TODAY

Spanish Play Holds Hope Of West

14 Colts and 1 Filly May Meet at Mile and Quarter.

Sun Meadow Ranked High; Purse May Gross $56,700.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, June 19 (A.P.).—The American Derby, carrying $50,000 in added money, will be run for the twenty-third time at Washington Park tomorrow, with fourteen colts and one lonely little filly battling it out for the rich turf prize.

With Twenty Grand, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont, out of the race, Mate, A. C. Bostwick's crack 3-year-old, was installed a favorite tonight, with Sun Meadow as second choice.

Mate, winner of the Preakness and third in the Kentucky Derby, was honored with top weight of 126 pounds, while Sun Meadow will carry 118.

The race, at a mile and a quarter, will be a battle involving five Eastern 3-year-olds, with the remainder from the West. The chief hope of the West is Spanish Play, winner of the Louisiana Derby, and which finished fourth in the Kentucky Derby. This consistent performer will carry 121 pounds.

Eastern Women Own 3 Entries.

It is unusual that of five of the Eastern horses in the race three will be wearing the silks of women owners. They are Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Lightning Bolt, Sunny Lassie, the lonesome filly in the field of fifteen, owned by Mrs. William Zeigler, jr., and Sun Meadow, the entry of Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt, of Virginia.

Others in the field rated a chance to race to victory, are Walter Salmon's Ladder, Oswego, Knight's Call, Morpheus, which surprised by running second in the derby trial last Tuesday; Boys Howdy, winner of the derby trial; Pittsburgher and Don Leon. The Mongol, which is quoted at 100 to 1, also was named to start.

Of the fifteen named in the overnight field, four are considered doubtful starters. They are Ladder, Don Leon, Royal and Sunny Lassie.

The field is regarded as better balanced, and containing more possible winners than any American Derby since the classic was revived in 1926. Mate and Sun Meadow are the logical choices, but the other contenders, especially Spanish Play, are regarded as dangerous, leaving the race wide open, in which anything might happen.

Sun Meadow bounded into public favor by its achievement in running second to Twenty Grand in the Belmont Stakes, outgaming Jamestown at the finish to win by a nose. In that race, Sun Meadow showed he could pack weight and go a distance.

Mate may not find the racing strip at Washington Park to his liking tomorrow as the course was lightning fast today and the Preakness winner is believed to favor the softer going. This coupled with the fact that he is giving away weight to all the other contenders, may damage his chances.

If twelve go to the post, the race will have a gross value of $56,700, with $46,700 going to the winner. Ten thousand dollars will be divided among the winners of second, third and fourth places.

Provided the weather remains clear, a crowd of close to 50,000 may see the twenty-third running of the famous old race.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IT is a popular belief that "dog days" designates a period during the hottest season of the year, which affects dogs, causing them to go mad. It is generally believed that dogs are more likely to get rabies during this period than any other season of the year. There is no basis for this belief. More cases of rabies are reported in the late fall and the early spring than during the so-called "dog day" period.

The name "dog days" was applied by the ancient Greeks and Romans to the period between July 3 and August 11, when Sirius, the Dog Star, and the sun, rose together. The ancients believed that the dog star with the sun was responsible for the hot and dry weather of summer. Today, Sirius no longer rises with the sun during this period, due to the progression of the equinoxes.

Ty Cobb played professional ball for 24 years, a record. Among his numerous records are those for most games played, 3,033; most times at bat, 11,429; most runs, 2,244, and most hits, 4,191.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, June 19.—With perfect weather conditions, the Washington Park course should attract one of the largest attendances in the Middle West tomorrow. The $50,000 American Derby is down for decision and has been the topic of conversation wherever racing fans congregate.

Attracting a list of fifteen with at least a dozen likely sterling 3-year-old starters to contest the fixture over the mile and a quarter route, the event should produce the runner-up to Twenty-Grand, champion in the 3-year-old division.

It is to be regretted that the Greentree's Belmont Stakes and Derby winner, declined the issue. In the face of his brilliant performances, Twenty Grand appeared to have the American Derby at his mercy, but Trainer Rowe decided not to send the gallant son of St. German's—Bonus after the Chicago fixture. However, Twenty Grand will be seen in action in the Arlington classic later on.

When Twenty Grand declined the issue, horse owners were eager to nominate their charges for the Derby. As the race appears today, and judging from the weight assignments, it is doubtful if any one of the fifteen will gain tremendous support. All, however, will come in for their share of backing.

MATE, A. C. Bostwick's Preakness winner, with top impost of 126 pounds, has trained well for this engagement at the Homewood course and is the writer's selection. Stern competition will be offered by Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt's SUN MEADOW, runner-up to Twenty Grand in the Belmont Stakes. This much improved colt took the measure of Jamestown in that fixture. H. C. Hatch's BOYS HOWDY qualified handsomely for his Derby contest when the son of Bubbling Over scored impressively in The Trial, which brought together many of his opponents of today. LIGHTNING BOLT and SPANISH PLAY have displayed speed in preparatory efforts and should go well.

Supporting the main event, the Congress Hotel Purse, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward, over the 6-furlong sprint distance, will bring together a field of thirteen speedsters in the fourth number. KARL EITEL, from J. J. Coughlin Stable, came within two-fifths of a second of the track record in his last winning effort and, with that race to recommend him, the Coughlin colorbearer should score. NOSTAW has raced consistently of late and will be the one to furnish the opposition. T. S. JORDAN will favore the 6-furlong route and appears best of the others for the short end of the purse.

FIRST RACE—In the opening 5½-furlong dash, which is fashioned for 2-year-old fillies, a limit field will contest the issue. ET CETERA, from the J. F. Schorr string, a double winner at this track, turned in a brilliant victory last start at this distance and should outfoot her rivals. SUN'S SON weakened in her last race after forcing the pace. She should improve off that effort to get in the place. BRYONIA, a surprise winner of her last, turneo in a splendid effort and must be accorded the show award.

SECOND RACE—Sixteen fleet sprinters will face the barrier in the 6-furlong dash of the second event under claiming conditions. ELLICE, from the J. C. Ellis Stable, broke in a tangle but mapaged to finish third in his previous effort. With better handling, the Ellis 4-year-old figures to gain award. BEST MAN has not raced to his morning trials and is capable of a better showing. Against this field he will prove dangerous. FIDDLER is unreliable but is gifted with a high turn of speed and if he runs his race may take down the purse.

THIRD RACE—Another large field will parade to the post in the 1 mile in the third. DARK ENTRY is selected to lead this band of platers to the wire. The Headley gelding scored impressively in his last and over the fast racing strip should gain the honors. The improved Middleburg Stable's PHANTASIME has attained his best form and is the one to beat. BIDE AWEE has been freshened by a brief rest and will battle it out.

SIXTH RACE—The sixth event, over the mile and three-sixteenths route, brings together a large contingent of the older horses in training to contest the issue, with THE SOUTHERNER favored for the major portion of the purse. This steady plater in the R. Thatcher string, and winner of his last two starts, is in prime condition and will favor the long route. RUSHING, a slow beginner, will have the advantage of the gruelling distance to get into stride, and is the one to watch. SILVER SCEPTER may finish in the third position.

SEVENTH RACE—The final event of the card, which calls out another limit field to contest the purse under the same conditions as the sixth, should result in a victory for the Everglade Stable's DODGSON. This fast trick displayed speed over a route last start and was beaten by a neck by LION HEARTED in fast time. DUELIST would favor a heavy track, but should carry his speed to the place. DEVON is in rare form and may upset the calculations.

BRITISH PROS TOPPED BY MITCHELL

77 Card Best in First Appearance of Ryder Cup Invaders.

WINCHESTER, Mass., June 19 (A.P.).—The British Ryder Cup team made its American bow today in a four-ball exhibition match with ten leading amateur golfers of this section at the Winchester Country Club. The play of the defenders of the famed cup was surpassed by the brilliant golf of Fred J. Wright, jr., Massachusetts amateur champion, who led the field with a 76 over the difficult course.

Wright was paired with George Duncan, of England, veteran visitor to American shores. They came through with the leading best ball score of the day at 70.

Behind the Wright-Duncan combination by 1 stroke was Archie Compston, of England, and Francis Ouimet, former national and amateur champion. Both had individual rounds of 78.

Mitchell Trails By Stroke.

Abe Mitchell, at present private instructor to Samuel Ryder, donor of the cup for which the American and British teams will compete, led the individual scoring of the British players with a 77, 1 stroke behind Wright.

Garden Now Aims to Make Midwest "Fight Conscious"

$100,000 in Till for Schmeling-Stribling Bout July 3; Ticket Sellers Canvassing Nearby Cities to Stimulate Sales.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

CLEVELAND, June 19 (A.P.).—Two weeks from tonight, in the new Cleveland Municipal Stadium, in a city that never before has seen two heavyweights joust for the richest title of them all, Max Schmeling, the German, and Willie Stribling, from Macon, Ga., in the South, will battle fifteen rounds for the heavyweight championship.

So far, preparations for the struggle have been almost a community secret; but between now and the night of July 3 the ballyhoo drums will roll, the fighters will work themselves into the customary state of "physical perfection" and the faithfulsin more or less quantity will present themselves with money in their fists at the gates of the stately structure on the shores of Lake Erie.

Garden Distributes Ticket Sellers.

While Schmeling, recognized as champion everywhere but in New York State, where he won the title from Jack Sharkey on a foul last June, trains at Conneaut Lake in Pennsylvania, 61 miles away, and Stribling toils in a tiny resort on Geauga Lake near the city, the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Ohio is striving mightily to make the Midwest "fight conscious." Today a flying caravan of ticket sellers burst in on the cities of Akron and Canton to establish branch offices, and the squadron intends to visit all the principal cities of Ohio and Pensylvania next week in an effort to stir up buying interest.

So far, the box office reports that about $100,000 is in the cash registers already and orders for $200,000 worth of tickets are on file. The Ohio garden, a subsidiary of the New York Madison Square Garden Corporation, has high hopes of a gate of $600,000. Arrangements are being made at the stadium, which will house its first major attraction July 3, to seat 92,000 as a maximum. The ticket prices are scaled from $5.49 up to a top of $25. Fifteen hundred ushers are drilling daily in expectations of a mammoth turnout.

Training Unmarked By Sensations.

Cleveland is showing a lively interest in the proceedings, although the warriors' training so far has failed to develop anything unusual. No fair ladies have been saved from drowning by the gladiators, sets of Shakespeare have not appeared at the camps, and in general Schmeling and Stribling have quietly devoted themselves to the routine working business at hand. Neither fighter is ever far from condition, whether preparing for war or not.

Apparently the Cleveland faithful can be certain that the foul that made Schmeling a champion will not be repeated here. In case of a low blow the Cleveland Boxing Commission has decided that the offender will be penalized by loss of points and the injured may rest awhile before continuing.

WHILE the teams in Section A of the senior class of The Post's Capital City League are getting under way for the final drive to decide the winner of that class, the Miller-Roamer and Sterling nines will be meeting for undisputed possession of the Section B leadership. Both teams are undefeated, and the winner of tomorrow's contest will rank as a heavy favorite to meet the Section A winner in the postseason series for the city championship. The game will be played on No. 3 diamond of the Monument Grounds at 3 p. m.

The Sterlings have been weakened by the loss of two of their most valuable players, Schriver and Swann, who have been protested because of their ages. The pair will remain ineligible until Wednesday, when their cases will finally be disposed of. The Roamers are in tiptop shape for the fray. They have exhibited a steady brand of play since the start of the league and will take today's contest in their stride.

From the sidelines it looks like a victory for the Roamers. They have met all of the teams in the loop, with the exception of their opponents today and the De Molay nine, which they will meet next week. Only once, against the Francs two weeks ago, have they been extended. The Sterlings also defeated the Francs last week, and they, too, experienced an uncomfortable afternoon.

Roamers in Crucial Game.

Tomorrow's game is all important in the lives of the Roamers. Since their midget days the members of the team have played together, but this is the first year they have seriously been considered for a title. Next season they expect to strike out in the unlimited ranks; and with the opportunity at hand of finishing their senior play with a championship, they are determined to take advantage of it.

The Francs and Acme Printers will both be striving to get back in the win column when they meet at 11 a. m. on the South Ellipse. The Printers have a revamped line-up, containing two of last season's championship O'Briens, and they should make a good showing over the remainder of the route.

The Olmsted Grill fence-busters will hook up with their old pals, the C. A. O'Briens, and unless the Irish have been working out in private it looks like another game for the Grillmen. The O'Briens have been the disappointment of the race this season.

O'Briens Not Up To Form.

Beginning with a veteran line-up, intact from last season when they were city champions, the O'Briens gave promise of giving their nearest rivals a fight with the possibility of again finishing ahead of the field. Their record of only two wins in five starts tells the story of the loose play they have shown this season.

The Linworth aggregation is another that has disappointed its followers. Since its defeat at the hands of the Olmsted nine the Southwest team has rapidly lost ground until now they share the second place honors with the Lionels, only a step ahead of the Koontz Service Station tossers. Bill McCrea is striving desperately to salvage what he can of the wreckage to keep his team in the running, but his hard work will be fruitless unless the teams get together and decide on some ways and means of calling a halt on the march of the leaders.

Spengler Nine Threatens To Win Two Midget Titles

Manager Hayre's Team Already Winner of First Half Legion Series; Near Same Feat in Capital City League.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

IF Jim Hayre's Spangler Post team realizes its most cherished ambition to win the flags for both halves of the Capital City League and the American Legion, it will not only spoil the play-off plans of officials of these organizations, but will establish the team as one of the greatest midget combinations to perform on local sandlots for all times.

The league officials had planned to bring the winners of each circuit together in a three-game series at the conclusion of the regular schedule, to determine the city champion, but at the rate the Spanglers are traveling they look like 100-to-1 shots to cop the flags of both groups.

The team has already won the first half championship of the Legion series, with five victories and no losses. The closest rival, Sergt. Jasper, finished two and one-half games behind the leaders. In the Capital City, Spangler has all but clinched the first half flag, only one game with the woefully weak Samosets stands before them for a clear title. Should the Indians come through with a surprise, Spangler will still be deadlocked with the Shade Shop for the pennant.

Pilot Is Fearful Of Twin Bills.

Hayre is hopeful that his boys will be able to repeat their first half performance in both leagues. He is confident that his is the best midget club in town, but he is fearful lest the double-header played each Sunday wear down the stamina of the boys. They play a great deal during the week, and while practice makes perfect it also makes tired ball players, and a team to win must be fresh and ready to go every minute.

Manager Brewer's The Shade Shop nine is one of the Spengler tossers' most stubborn obstacles. Brewer contends that he has a collection of ball players capable of putting an end to his opponents' winning streak. He points to the bad breaks his nine received in the first half, causing them to finish second, and says that with a few favorable nods from Lady Luck in this last half his team will take the measure of the champs.

The Wonder Bread outfit is another barrier confronting Spengler. The Breadmen had practically clinched the honors when three of their games were awarded the opposing teams for using an ineligible player. Bill Poole has a smooth playing aggregation, hailed as a top-notcher by a few. Poole will throw his best team against Spengler when they meet in the second half and a fierce battle should result.

Samosets, Pale Dry Out of Running.

The Samosets and National Pale Drys do not rank as pennant contenders, and are not expected to trouble the leaders in the final round. The managers of both teams are keeping the boys together simply for the sake of playing baseball. They are, however, building with an eye to next year. The Georgetown team is composed of a group of mediocre players who at times have flashed some classy playing. Trundle's proteges have a painful habit of playing winning ball against a leader at the tightest stage of the race, and the fans are looking to them to furnish plenty of upsets during the course of the final half.

Voigt Bows in Third Round in N. Y. Tourney

Quaker Ridge Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 19 (A.P.).—George Voigt, acclaimed by many the United States leading amateur since the retirement of Bobby Jones, was defeated in the third round of the Metropolitan amateur golf championship today by Eddie Driggs, of Long Island, one up in nineteen holes.

Mrs. Hill Sets Mark In St. Louis Tourney

St. Louis Country Club, June 19 (A.P.).—Clipping three strokes off the old course record set by Glenna Collett in 1925, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, became a finalist in the fifth annual women's transmississippi golf tournament here today, an odds-on favorite to regain the title in her 36-hole match tomorrow with Mrs. Ignatius S. Hynes, St. Louis.

The Kansas City woman, who won the championship in 1928 and 1929, and semifinalist in the last two national tournaments, shot 72 today, five blows better than women's par and one over men's par, despite trouble on the first nine in her semifinal match with Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace.

NO HARD TIMES PARTY, SAYS PEGLER

on, Jerry," rolling over the water from the Harvard hollering sections on the flatcars, Jerry Cassedy was bobbing his black head and arching his wide, pink neck in a beat of 31 strokes a minute, while the Yale kids were boiling the water at the rate of 35 and coming on fast. So at one instant it looked as though Yale might do it and an instant later Yale was limping like Whichone the day he broke down against Jim Dandy and Gallant Fox.

No Hard Times Party.

The traffic in the river seemed a bit lighter this time than in several of the more prosperous recent years, indicating that some of the people who used to go to their offices in their private boats now go by ferry or not at all. Still, it was no hard times party, with the graceful white hulls of boats as big as ocean freighters stationed along the line of march in a reassuring array. And, though the New Haven train was somewhat shorter this year than it had been in seasons past, this may have been due to the fact that the boys were rowing the upstream course, which is closer to the west bank, where the Central of Vermont follows the shore. This line had a long string this evening, jammed with a shouting and, in spots, highly stimulated aggregation, and the crowds on the streets of New London seemed as great as they ever were.

The King of Siam, who came to America a few weeks ago for an operation on his eyes, selected a full eyeful on the occasion of his first inspection of sport in America. The king and his queen came up to New London on the yacht Whisper, the guests of Herbert L. Pratt, of the Standard Oil Pratts and followed the race on the Dodge III, the referee's boat, owned by Herbert L.'s brother, Harold L. The Pratts being Yales themselves, the king and queen visited the Yale crew at their quarters in the morning, but his majesty didn't fly his royal flag, which was tactful of him, as his flag consists of a crimson square with a white elephant on it, and not, as might be supposed, a pair of Siamese twins.

Race Still Holds Charm.

The festivity of the streets and in the hotels of New London proper was of an unusually sober and restrained kind; but any alarm that the Harvard-Yale race was losing its charm was allayed when the younger set began to show up in the railroad yard to board the trains.

Yale had won the freshmen and junior varsity races rowed in the morning, and this had been regarded as a happy omen for Yale, nothwithstanding the inferior record of the Yale crew this year. Yale had lost to Columbia and Cornell; the Yale captain, James Gamble Rogers, had been sent down to the junior varsity, not making his own crew, as often happens in rowing, and another of the first string oarsmen had been set on the bench for smoking a cigarette or two. As Harvard had beaten Princeton, Massachusetts Tech and the Navy, winner of the Poughkeepsie regatta, there was little reason to expect Yale to win today.

Mrs. Clear Winner In Army-Navy Golf

Women members of the Army-Navy Club played in a tournament yesterday. The eighteen-hole low gross prize was won by Mrs. W. J. Clear with 99, Mrs. Rice winning low net with 76. In the nine-hole competition Mrs. L. Hedrick was the winner with a low gross of 46, Mrs. Chadwick winning the low net with 38. Next Tuesday the women players will meet a team of seven members of the Washington Golf and Country Club on the Army-Navy course.

Midcity Arena Seeks To Complete Program

Having signed two nationally known heavyweights for the ten-round feature bout of the Midcity Arena's opening show at Laurel on July 1, General Manager Angy Gerrin yesterday turned his attention to the selection of a supporting card for the Baoe Hunt-Pietro Corri match.

In this he has a wide range of selections in Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington. Gerrin, however, is convinced that the interest of the fans is with the heavyweights. He revealed last night that the club's intention is to send into the ring three pairs of big boys for the premier.

Among those Gerrin is dickering for are Herman Weiner, Baltimore, and Mike Sullivan, of Philadelphia. They weight around 205 pounds each. Giant Jack Taylor, a 220-pound Philadelphian, may also figure in the picture.

The Midcity Arena, located about a mile north of Laurel, on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, is practically complete. It will seat approximately 7,000 persons.

A. A. U. Sanctions Meet At Glen Echo Pool

A swimming meet sanctioned by the A. A. U. will be staged on the night of June 29 at the new Crystal Pool, Glen Echo Park. Entry blanks for the events were distributed to sports centers yesterday and must be filed with Harold N. Bangs, director of the pool, by Wednesday evening, June 24.

Four events each for men and women will make up the meet. These include a 60-yard free style; 120-yard free style; 120-yard breastroke, and fancy diving, for men, and a 60-yard free style, 120-yard free style; 60-yard backstroke and fancy diving for women.

Gold, silver and broze medals will go to the winners of first, second and third places.

The only entry fee necessary is an A. A. U. registration card, which may be obtained from William E. Russell, 1503 North Capitol street.

New J. C. C. Athletic Field To Be Dedicated Tomorrow

THE new Jewish Community Center athletic field, located in the 6400 block of Georgia avenue, will be formally dedicated tomorrow afternoon with all attendant ceremonies.

The program will be got under way at 2 o'clock by a band concert, composed of a group of guest musicians under the leadership of Meyer Goldman, well-known band leader. At 2:30 o'clock the flag will be raised by Isadore Freund.

A baseball game between Boiling Field and the unlimited J. C. C. Team will begin at 3 o'clock. The first ball will be thrown out by Harry Viner, treasurer of the center.

The field, at present, includes a baseball diamond, appropriate stands, a field house and adequate locker and shower facilities.

Workmen are busy about the duties of putting three tennis courts in condition. When completed it is planned to open them with exhibition matches by local and nearby stars. The courts will not be in playing condition for at least a week.

The Carry Meadowgold insects had no trouble in disposing of the Jack Hayes insects yesterday, winning by a 15-0 score. Beiderman twirled for the winners, while Ed Sullivan starred at bat.

Teams in the midget, junior and senior class desiring to meet a strong team this afternoon are requested to call Ed Crandall at Lincoln 8920-J this morning. Mr. Crandall's team has a diamond.

The North Capitol Savings Bank nine would like to arrange a game with a senior or unlimited team for Sunday. Teams interested should call District 1111.

The Del Ray A. C. has a diamond available for Sunday and would like to meet some strong unlimited opponent. Teams interested should call Manager Ted Miller at Alexandria 1899.

ARMY TENNIS HERE OPENS TUESDAY

Strong Field of 40 to Seek Title and Sheridan Trophy.

THE annual play for the Sheridan Cup, emblematic of the singles championship of the Army, will start Tuesday on the courts of Columbia Country Club with an entry list exceeding 40 players definitely assured.

The Sheridan Cup, gift of Harry Sheridan, of this city, is believed to be, with the exception of the Davis Cup and tray, the most costly trophy in tennisdom. It stands over 2 feet tall and is sterling. Its former possessors are Maj. R. C. Van Vliet, Infantry, who twice has won it, and Lieut. John P. Strahan, Quartermaster Corps Reserve, who was victorious last year. It is a perpetual trophy.

The choicest entry list in the history of the event is promised. Besides Van Vliet and Strahan the tournament will include Dolf Muehleisen, eighth ranking northern California player, who is a student at the Army Flying School at San Diego, and Lieut. David D. Hediken, the former Western High School netman, and runner-up in the 1923 District Junior championship, who gained in tennis proficiency at West Point and held three match points on Strahan last year in the final of the Army tournament, after eliminating Van Vliet, defending champion.

Hediken and Robinson, Van Vliet, Strahan Seeded.

Another entrant will be Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson, semifinalist in the tournament last year and a frequenter of the local tournaments in 1930. Strahan, Van Vliet, Hediken and Robinson have been given the seeding honors.

The finals of the singles will be played Saturday, the 27th. Doubles play starts the following Monday and will last until either July 2 or 3.

Practically every branch of the service will be represented in the tournament.

Allison, Bell Reach Delaware Net Final

Wilmington, Del., June 19 (A.P.).—Wilmer Allison, of Texas, and Berkley Bell, formerly of Texas but now of New York, will meet tomorrow in the final round for the Delaware State grass court tennis championships. Bell late today eliminated Bryan M. Grant, jr., of the University of North Carolina, in the semifinal round, 5—7, 6—2, 6—2. Allison reached the finals with a 7—5, 6—4 win over Edward Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh.

Considine and Mitchell Meet in League Tennis

Marked by a meeting between the first and second ranking players of the District, Bob Considine and Dooly Mitchell, Henry Park and Montrose will clash today in the feature tennis engagement of the Interpark League. Other Park League matches will bring together Rock Creek and Taft and Potomac and Monument.

Matches will start at 2 o'clock. Henry meets Montrose at Potomac Park; Potomac plays Monument at Monument, and Rock Creek visits Taft.

The Suburban League will not be inactive today, all teams being slated to meet. Bureau of Standards, league leaders, will engage Wesley Heights, holders of last place, while Lakeview and Argyle make up the remainder of the day's activities.

Public Links Caddies Strike; Parley Held

Youngstown, June 19 (A.P.).—Public links caddies were on strike here today in defense of their rights.

A strike committee, advised by two agitators, met today with Park Superintendent Frank E. Hughes and probation officers to arbitrate a "wage cut" of 10 cents for nine holes and 25 cents on eighteen holes.

Picketing of the course became so enthusiastic yesterday that deputy sheriffs were called to "shoo" off the strikers.

Hughes said the boys objected to a sign stating the price for caddies, fixed since the course opened at 40 cents for nine holes, 75 cents for eighteen holes. He said the boys had been charging 50 cents and $1.

chance to grab the title in the 36-hole finale tomorrow.

By all the laws of real golf, Dudley deserved to pace the field tonight, as he was the only one in the entire field of 110 to break par on the two successive days. His cards were consistent as well as brilliant. He scored 35-34 yesterday to beat par by two shots; today he scored 36-34 to clip one stroke off perfect figures. He had his troubles today as he clicked off seven birdies, four of them in a row, coming home, while he went over par on six holes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

FROM EPILEPSY TO PELLAGRA.

DRS. WALKER AND WHEELER have found one way to stop epileptics from having convulsions. It may be that the finding has no practical value since the remedy is as bad as the disease, or worse. On the other hand, it may open up a way that could lead to a cure of some types of epilepsy, for what is called by that name is really a group of diseases.

Dr. Walker is the clinical director of the Milledgeville, Ga., State Hospital. He noticed that several cases of advanced epilepsy developed pellagra when they were kept on a ketogenic diet for a considerable time. They almost stopped having convulsions, but their pellagra became threatening. This observation seemed to prove that a ketogenic diet strictly adhered to would control the convulsions of epilepsy, provided it was pushed far enough to being pellagra. Based on this chance observation a number of bad epileptics were put on a very carefully controlled ketogenic diet, and this was kept up until they developed pellagra.

The diet consisted of:

Breakfast — Cornmeal, California black-eyed peas, lard, salt, brown gravy, consisting of flour, lard, water, salt and pepper; cane syrup, loaf bread and coffee without sugar or cream.

Dinner—Cornmeal, California black-eyed peas, lard, salt, brown gravy, cane syrup, corn bread.

Supper—Cornmeal, peas as above, lard, salt, brown gravy, cane syrup, loaf bread, coffee without sugar or cream.

In addition each patient was given ½ ounce cod liver oil, 4½ ounces tomato juice, 90 drops dilute muriatic acid, 45 grains of calcium carbonate, and 2 drops of syrup iodide of iron.

All of the patients developed cankers, sore tongue, and burning in the mouth. All but one developed the pellagra sunburn. Several developed diarrhea.

At the end of the experiment the pellagra was cured by giving yeast and changing the diet. Under this treatment the symptoms of pellagra disappeared promptly. Soon after the diet given above was established as the daily habit the frequency of convulsions began to drop. By the time pellagra was manifest convulsions were rare. These were all old epileptics with the habit well established and with considerable mental deterioration as a consequence. No drugs were given to control the attacks during the period of dietary treatment. When the diet was changed back and the pellagra was disappearing the convulsion habit returned.

At that stage the demonstration rested at the time the report was written.

STOCKS STILL LOSE DESPITE LATE RALLY

Rails Lead Further Slump on Market; Oil Issues Are Bullish.

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—Stocks lost a little more ground today, but the reaction was not as pronounced as that of the previous session. The poorest performance was given by the rails. Industrials declined reluctantly until the last hour, when a rally turned small losses into fractional gains. However, selling was renewed in the final dealings and the close was heavy.

Sales at 2:10 o'clock approximated 1,000,000 shares, but transactions in the last 50 minutes added only 100,000 shares to this volume and the day's turnover equaled yesterday's.

Strength of cotton, up $1.15 to $1.30 a bale, festured the commodities. Weather news from the Northwest was bullish and a similar interpretation was placed on the Canadian crop reports. Corn showed small gains.

Oils Are Bullish.

The oil shares developed a touch of bullishness inspired by the advance in California gasoline and crude oil prices. Wall street decided that this action probably meant the end of the disastrous price cutting war on the Coast and hoped the movement might spread eastward. Evidence that curtailment efforts in the new east Texas field are meeting with response offers encouragement.

Standard Oil of California surprised the market with an overnight rise of 3 points. Other Standards, as well as Union of California, Sinclair preferred and Shell Union preferred, also advanced, but were not particularly active.

Westinghouse mended to the extent of a point, and so did Case, U. S. Steel, American Can and American Telephone recovered unimportant losses during the afternoon rise, but closed with small losses. There was little change in most of the pivotal issues of the industrial and utility descriptions.

Rail Issues Lose.

Atchison and Union Pacific, down more than 3 each, were the heaviest active rails. New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, New Haven, Frisco, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific and Pennsylvania lost 1 to 2. There was little volume in any instance.

Retail trade appears to have been helped in some quarters, at least, by better evidence of price stability. Sears Roebuck business for the four weeks ended June 18 was off 5.3 per cent from 1930 on the basis of dollar volume, but prices, of course, have dropped substantially since the early summer of 1930 and the report was considered favorable.

Bradstreet's said retailers were feeling "the effects of seasonal slowness" in many centers, but that wholesale and jobbing lines, which have been lagging, appeared to be making "some progress upward." The shoe factories, according to Dun's, are busy, and hardware and machinery plants have experienced improvement.

Gold Stocks Increase.

The day's decrease in earmarked gold at the Federal Reserve Bank was $3,438,600. Since June 1 the gain to the country's gold stock as the result of releases and imports has been in the neighborhood of $100,000,000. So far, this large addition to our already enormous holdings has had no effect on bank credit.

A sharp decline in the Spanish peseta furnished the high light of the foreign exchange transactions. At its lowest this currency was off more than ½ of a cent, but there was a fair recovery later.

Dispatches from Madrid spoke of plans for a $12,000,000 credit for the Bank of Spain from the Bank of France. The German mark was moderately heavy, losing half a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 19 (A.P.).—Notwithstanding that wheat today established new low-price records, the market averaged higher after evidence accumulated that decisive sales in Canada was decline. Rains were light where a soaking was most needed, and crop prospects apparently had been but little changed in the main drought sections. There were further unfavorable iron reports from the Dakotas and Montana.

Wheat showed irregular, ranging from ¼ cent decline to ½ advance; corn, ¼ off to ¼ up; oats at ½ to ¾ gain, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents down.

Wheat was influenced by word of all-night downpours at some place in Saskatchewan drought territory, and as a result all deliveries promptly outdid yesterday's bottom quotations. However, most of the rain was light, and 24 hours later it was frequently reported to have been insubstantial. Alberta and northern Saskatchewan, the districts that have suffered least from drought. Southern Saskatchewan, western Manitoba and southeastern Alberta, which have been the center of the drought, were asserted to have received no moisture of consequence.

Firmness of wheat prices at the close followed reports of terrific dust storms in parts of Canada. At some places in fest of sand was reported to have drifted on railroad tracks overnight, and in some places to the fence tops. There were also advices that Australian and Argentine seeding operations had largely failed, and that Russian chartering of grain vessels was far below that of last year.

Corn advanced owing to lessening of pressure to sell and to industrial purchasing of cheaper quantities of corn to be taken out of storage here. Oats responded to corn strength.

Provisions sagged, influenced by the action of hog values.

BOND PRICES FIRM IN NARROW TRADING

Activity Develops Gains in Domestic Issues; Foreigns Are Irregular.

New York, June 19 (A.P.).—Bonds wavered back and forth today to close without a definite trend. With a few exceptions, net changes were fractional. The aggregate turnover of $10,170,000 in par value showed a good increase, however, over yesterday.

The irregularity of the price movement was most apparent among foreign obligations. Brazilian and Argentine issues were generally firm to higher. After the close it was announced that officials of the State of Sao Paulo, Brazil, had arranged for interest and amortization payments due on July 1 to be made. Creeping gains appeared in the issues of many borrowers with smaller amounts of bonds outstanding than these two countries.

Chilean obligations recorded net declines as high as 5 points, which occurred in the federal government 7s of 1942. German loans suffered a general decline also. The 5½s of 1965 of the national government was one of the most active issues on the whole list. United States Government loans showed an easy tone on a limited turnover.

Unusual activity developed in sporadic domestic corporate bonds. Armour 5½s of 1943 jumped 5 points to a new recent high. Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s of 1960 scored fractional gains and St. Paul adjustment 5s of 2000 closed 1½ points higher. Interborough refunding 5s and stamped 5s continued to appreciate. Public Service Electric & Gas 5s of 1971, Detroit Edison series D 5½s, Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s of 1951 and Rock Island refunding 4s of 1934 lost fractions. The foregoing group had one thing in common—their unusual activity.

Trading in most other issues was confined to a few small transactions. The trend among them was similarly irregular and the net changes were narrow.

In the movement of bonds of secondary standing some traders professed to discern a gradual broadening of demand, encouraged in part by the current high prices of gilt-edge issues. The future will disclose no accurate analysis.

A syndicate headed by Coffin & Burr is offering an additional issue of $15,016,000 of 4½ per cent series D general and refunding mortgage gold bonds of the Detroit Edison Co. at 103½ and interest. The issue matures on February 1, 1961. The proceeds will be used to reimburse the Detroit Edison Co. in part for expenditures made for additions to its plants.

MAN IS PROSTRATED AS MERCURY SOARS TO 94-DEGREE MARK

Summer Arrives in Capital Two Days Ahead of Its Fixed Schedule.

KIOSK THERMOMETER HITS 98; POOLS BENEFIT

Populace Perspires as Heat Sets Year's Record; No Relief Seen Today.

Summer arrived in Washington two days ahead of schedule yesterday, almanac and astronomical computations to the contrary.

Evidence—Temperature 94 degrees in the shade; one heat prostration, and 486,869 perspiring Capital residents.

It was the hottest day recorded this year at the observatory, said Weather Forcaster W. R. Stevens. The temperature was approached only on May 30, when the mercury climbed to 92 degrees.

Kiosk Registers 98.

And it was even warmer in downtown Washington. The kiosk at Pennsylvania avenue and E street northwest, registered 98, just 12 degress higher than the 33-year average for June 19.

Ambler H. Butler, 28 years old, of Warrenton, Va., was the one heat victim reported. He was overcome at the corner of Ninth street and Mount Vernon place northwest. Treated at Emergency Hospital, he afterward was dismissed.

One by-product of the hot, humid day was a rush to swimming pools, parks and waterside resorts in and near the Capital.

The day was an auspicious one for some 80 boys of Washington's Y. M. C. A. They journeyed to the Rhodes River, 14 miles from Annapolis, to officially open Camp Letts for the summer. Camp Director James C. Ingram was waiting for them, and so was the river. It didn't take them long to "take the plunge."

No Relief Seen Today.

No relief from the heat is in sight today, according to Forecaster Stevens. The mercury will hover around the same peak this afternoon, and westerly winds won't help much. Tomorrow there will be showers and slightly cooler weather.

Mr. Stevens opines that yesterday was not "abnormally hot," that he can remember June days when the red crept up above 100 long before the nineteenth of the month.

"But it isn't always the heat; it's the humidity," commented Mr. Stevens, and a reporter in a telephone booth at the other end of the line sighed out of sheer unison of thought. The humidity was at its highest, 60, at 8 a. m. yesterday and after falling to 41 at midday last night was steadily rising again.

Official arrival of the summer solstice, say astronemers, is not scheduled until 4:28 Monday morning.

POOLS, SWIMMING AND OTHERWISE, PROVE PRIME FAVORITES

Man Who Ran at Sight Of Police Car Wanted

Police of the Thirteenth Precinct are searching for a man who was so anxious to avoid passing the time of day with a policeman that he led Pvt. John W. Wessells a chase of several blocks and then abandoned the car he was driving.

Pvt. Wessells was patroling in the precinct scout car early yesterday morning when he approached a parked car at Twelfth and Fern streets northwest. When the driver sighted a blue uniform he set out at a rapid pace, and Wessells followed close behind. The chase led to Takoma avenue in Takoma Park, where the fleeing car turned suddenly into a driveway, smashing a window from the basement of a private residence and damaging the car. The driver fled on foot. Police could find nothing wrong with the car, except that it bore old tags.

Informers Absent, Cases Dismissed

Man and Woman Are Freed as U. S. Fails to Get Continuance.

Charges against a man and a woman were dropped in Police Court yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon because police informers were not in court to testify. Because of the absence of the informers, the Government sought a continuance of the case, but Judge McMahon directed that the charges be dropped.

Leroy Bedford, of Tenth street, near S street northwest, was thus freed of a gambling charge, and Geraldine Mitchell, of C street, near First street southwest, was exonerated of a nuisance charge.

Judge McMahon indicated in his ruling that it is the duty of the police to see that material witnesses be on hand when they were wanted. "Let the charges be dismissed," he said.

Two Firemen Advanced; One Ousted in Drinking

District Commissioners yesterday approved promotion of two firemen and discharge of a third. T. D. Lyon was raised from rank of sergeant to lieutenant, while C. R. Bassette was made a sergeant.

Recommendation of the Trial Board that Private P. C. Bateman, of No. 12 Engine Company, be dismissed for intoxication was adopted.

Policeman Fined $100 On Intoxication Charge

Private T. R. Woodson, of the First Precinct, was fined yesterday by the District Commissioners $100 for intoxication while on duty and conduct unbecoming an officer.

The Trial Board had sentenced him to dismissal, but had recommended mercy, as had Maj. Henry G. Pratt, police superintendent, because of the policeman's good record.

Mayer Heads Jewelers Division.

A. C. Mayer was elected treasurer of the jewelers division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association at a luncheon meeting held at Harvey's Restaurant, yesterday. Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the Washington Jewelers, presided.

THREE SCOUTS HURT AS CAR QUITS ROAD

Auto Settles in Ravine as Young Driver Avoids Hitting Truck.

Three Canton (Pa.) Boy Scouts en route to the scout jamboree at Rock Creek Park yesterday narrowly escaped death when the automobile in which they were riding left the road and fell into a 10-foot ravine.

The scouts told police they were riding on Wisconsin avenue when a truck in front of them made a sudden left turn into Oliver street at Somerset, Md.

In an effort to avoid collision with the truck, the driver, Glen Kilmer, 16 years old, swung his car to the right, but lost control. The car plunged down a 5-foot declivity to the bank of the ravine, jumped the 8-foot openings and struck the rising wall on the other side. It then bounced back to the ravine, settling on its side.

The Scouts were taken by the truck driver, whose name was not learned, to the office of Dr. E. G. Bauersfeld, at Bethesda. Kilmer was found to have a fractured rib, abrasions on the face, hand and body and shock; Arthur Mervin, 17, had a deep scratch on his face, but escaped other injury, and Philip Neal, 16, had a deep laceration on his scalp and severe shock. The youths were removed to the scout camp at Rock Creek Park by scout officials.

The car, owned by Scoutmaster James R. Davis, who had preceded the youths to the camp, was badly damaged.

Policeman Windsor C. Poole, of the Bethesda Substation, Montgomery County police, investigated the accident, but made no arrests.

Woman Slightly Hurt As Taxi Hits Truck

A young woman was slightly injured in a collision between a taxicab and a truck last night at Third street and Maryland avenue southwest. The driver of the truck was docketed on a charge of driving with defective brakes.

Miss Ruby Miller, 28 years old, of 820 Oates place northwest, a passenger in a taxicab operated by Daniel R. Boyer, 34 years old, of Third street southeast near E street, was treated at Emergency Hospital for bruises, received when the cab was struck by a truck said to have been operated by Alonzo J. Berger, 25 years old, of N street northwest near Eleventh street. The accident happened as Boyer attempted to turn into a filling station.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ALL ABOARD FOR THE SPECTRUM SPECIAL.

London, England—The Spectrum Special is the latest railroad innovation here. It is made up of railway carriages done in color schemes to suit every mood. Stenographers may choose a rosebud pink carriage, staid bankers a sedate buff and stock salesmen a brilliant gold. It is a well-known fact that a man's mood for the day may be influenced by the first color to impress him. The train is a great success.—News item.

THERE'S an idea for American railroad men. Travel is falling off. The crowded coach is an exception these days. Possibly it is because the colors are not appealing. One can imagine an emotional young lady calling up the information booth in this manner:

"Hello, what train leaves this morning for Toledo?"

"There's one at 10:07, ma'am."

"What color?"

"What colors do you like, ma'am?"

"Well, what colors can you offer?"

"The 10:07 has a peacock blue coach, a cherry red one, two parlor cars in deep purple, an orange and black diner and a number of cars in light gray with cream borders."

"No canary yellow?"

"I'm afraid not."

"I had my mind set on a canary yellow. On an afternoon train I don't mind the color, as my mood is all set, but on a morning trip I regard color as most important."

"We have a canary yellow coach on the 12:01, ma'am."

"That's too late."

* * * * *

"THERE'S a canary yellow on a 9 o'clock train, but it's going to Penobscot, Me. Would you mind going to Penobscot, lady?"

"I hadn't thought of ever going to Penobscot. Are you sure you haven't a yellow train going anywhere else?"

"Quite sure, lady. The yellow coach on this train is newly painted. I think you'll like it very much if you could only see your way clear to go to Penobscot instead of Toledo.

"Have you anything in the line of a carmine coach with white polka dots? That always makes me feel buoyant.

"Carmine with polka dots?"

"Yes."

"There's a carmine with polka dots on the 8:45 train to Oil City, Pa. It's just been redecorated."

"I suppose I might go to Oil City, Pa., if I can't get the color I want to any other city."

"I think you'll be very happy on that train, ma'am."

"Where did you say it went?"

"Oil City, lady."

"Oh, well, if I must I must!"

Lindy should get one, obviously, from Hopkins.

The American mayors have left France. Now the United States can begin the difficult task of living them down.

AN AMERICAN court has refused to compromise with a notorious racketeer, the prosecution has been so thorough that the racketeer has admitted his guilt on all charges and a prison term is certain. Now the country can believe in Santa Claus, good little fairies, golden rules, the law of right and wrong and strict justice to gunmen with Miami homes.

Mahatma Gandhi while in London will appear in his bare feet and loin cloth. This is the first intimation from the Indian leader that he contemplated spending the season in a hospital.

Rented Auto Use Leads To Arrest for Larceny

Because he had done much traveling while he was alleged to have been in possession of an automobile that he had rented here, Harry J. Biggs yesterday faced Judge John P. McMahon on a charge of grand larceny.

He was held under a $1,500 bond for the grand jury. According to police, Biggs drove the car to Salisbury, N. C., in August, 1929. He was arrested there, police charged, and served time in North Carolina. Upon his release he was arrested for the Washington authorities. Walter M. Miley, of Thirteenth street near H street northwest, was the complaining witness against Biggs.

Features in Tomorrow's Post

When Dr. Chao-chu Wu resigned recently as Chinese Minister to Washington, an able Chinese statesman departed. But at the legation Mr. Yung Kwai, counselor, remained, ready to serve a new minister as he served Dr. Wu and Dr. Wu Ting-Fang before him. The careers of these famous Chinese diplomats are traced in a splendidly written article by David Rankin Barbee, which will appear in tomorrow's Post.

The tabloid magazine will offer many attractive features and fiction stories, appealing to the discriminating reader. Among these is an article called "Far Places Call; Forests Beckon," in which descriptions of the National Parks and roads that lead to them are included.

Another is an article by Dr. William H. Welch, dean of American medical scientists, bearing the title "Don't Do as I Do; Do as I Say."

Of special interest to Washingtonians is a story called "When Uncle Sam Moves His Office," concerning the opening of the new Department of Commerce building.

"Ship's Magic" and "Going to Bed at Nine" are the two extra fine fiction yarns, sure to please young and old alike.

Woman Admits Thefts; Held for Grand Jury

Mrs. Dorothy M. Belodeau yesterday pleaded guilty in police court to a charge of taking $75 worth of clothing and a $50 pin from a rooming house on Pennsylvania avenue near Eleventh street northwest, where she had been staying.

Judge John P. McMahon ordered her held under $2,000 bond for action of the grand jury.

Man Is Held in Theft Of Lyon Village Auto

Accused of taking an automobile belonging to Carl B. Furr, of Lyon Village, Va., from a parking space in the down-town area, George Wesley McGaha was ordered held for action of the grand jury when he was arraigned before Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court yesterday.

McGaha is said to have driven the machine to Danville, Va. His bond was placed at $1,000.

GUNMAN TAKES $20 IN HOLDUP OF CAFE

Bandit Eats, Takes Money at Point of Gun; Flees as Customers Watch.

A daring robber quietly held up the manager of a crowded restaurant at 1905 Pennsylvania avenue northwest shortly before midnight last night and escaped with $20 before any of the customers realized that an act of banditry had been committed in front of them.

A young man about 22 years old and neatly dressed entered the place and ordered 45 cents worth of food. He ate his meal, but other diners, after the holdup, said he appeared to be highly nervous.

When he had finished he walked to the cash register and asked the night manager, Ray Smitherman, 18 years old, if he could change a $20 bill. Smitherman opened the cash register and there on top both he and the hold-up man saw a neat $20 bank note.

"Gimme that!" the man told Smitherman, and the restaurant man looked up to find himself covered by a blue-steel revolver. He handed over the bill and the hold-up man dashed out the door.

Smitherman vaulted over the counter and gave chase. Customers believed that some one had merely run off without paying his check and few of them saw the gun. Smitherman chased the man up Pennsylvania avenue for three blocks, but lost sight of him at I street. Police combed the neighborhood when they were called but failed to trace the gunman.

"One-Hoss Shay" Coasts to Crash

Trio of Youths Runs Into Trouble With Vehicle of Ancient Vintage.

The "one-hoss shay" of Southeast is more durable than the historic one which collapsed in every part, for this present day shay came out victor in a collision with an automobile, but it landed three youths in trouble.

A group of boys found the vehicle next to their baseball diamond in the 1600 block of Thirteenth street southeast. They began by pushing each other around in it, and then enlarging on the game they towed it to the top of a hill on Fourteenth street, and all hitched on, intending to coast to the bottom.

The shay got out of control, however, and crashed into a parked car at the foot of the hill. The boys ran, but an Eleventh precinct policeman later arrested three of them, and as punishment made them drag the shay to the station house. The boys were later released.

Woodcraft Fails Scout Who Lost His Way in City

Boy Scouts are trained to find their way around in the woods, and in fact tracking and trailing is one test for a second-class scout. However, for one scout at least, the training failed to work when it came to finding one's way about the city.

Scout George Little, 14 years old, of Troop 41, Hilton Village, Va., came to Washington as a member of the winning outfit of his district, taking part in the jamboree at Camp Goodwill, in Rock Creek Park.

Yesterday all of the scouts at camp visited the White House at 4:30 o'clock and had their pictures made with the President. Somehow, Scout Little wandered away from his companions for a moment, and when he began to look for them, they were gone. Scouts are self-reliant, and the boy told no one of his plight, but remembering the "general direction" of camp, he started out.

After wandering until 6:30 o'clock—just about mess time at camp—he decided he had better ask help after all. Pretty soon he found himself in front of a police station, the Eighth Precinct, and asked the desk sergeant where camp was. The police didn't know exactly, but detailed Pvt. Frank J. Knoble in a police scout car to find out—and Little joined his troopmates before dark.

DIPLOMAT UNABLE TO CALL SIMMONS LEGATION HIJACKER

Dr. Leiva Views Suspect and Says Build and Height Are That of Attacker.

DARKNESS PREVENTED SEEING FACE OF THIEF

Man Held in Probe Explains Scars; Envoy Claims He Bit Thug in Fight.

Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, Charge d'Affaires of the Legation of El Salvador, yesterday partially identified John J. Simmons, alias Simonds, 29 years old, as one of the men who attacked him during a liquor robbery in the legation.

The diplomat would not say positively that Simmons was the man, but said that his build and height were similar to that of one of his assailants. Dr. Leiva said it was so dark in the hallway of the legation that he was unable to see the features of the liquor thief.

Bit Finger of Assailant.

Dr. Leiva told police that he bit one of his assailant's fingers and believes he cut one of his eyes. Simmons has a scar on one of his fingers, which he says was caused by a cigarette burn. A scar near his eye, he says, has been there for a long time.

Simmons has been questioned by detectives regarding the liquor theft, the assault on Dr. Leiva and the killing of Jack Cunningham, police informer, whose death is believed to be an aftermath of the robbery of the legation. He denies complicity in the cases.

Simmons has been "out of town," according to Capt. Edward J. Kelly, since the search for suspects in the liquor case began.

Surprised Liquor Hijackers.

Dr. Leiva was attacked by liquor thieves whom he surprised in his home early on May 13. Cunningham was slain six days afterward in an alley near his home on I street near Fourteenth street northwest.

The link between the two cases is believed by police to be the gun which they have in their possession and which they think was used in both the legation case and the killing of Cunningham.

Woman Crash 'Victim' Is Held for Inquiry

Police last night sought relatives of a woman who was taken to Gallinger Hospital yesterday, claiming that she had been struck by a hit-and-run taxicab. She gave her name as Charlotte Ann Murphy, 34 years old, but could not give her address, and seemed equally hazy about details of the accident.

The woman was taken to the hospital by a taxidriver who left before police arrived. The woman was examined by physicians, who could find no trace of injury. She was taken to the Fifth Precinct Station, booked on a technical charge of investigation, and later taken to the Women's Bureau.

Two Men Take $124.94 From Woman on Street

Vacation dreams of Hattie Williams, colored, 228 Schoops alley northwest, fled yesterday on the fleet heels of a confidence man. She had just been to the bank to draw her savings, $124.94 in preparation for a longed-for trip to North Carolina.

A Negro dressed as a chauffeur accosted her. Then another approached and said he had just found an envelope containing a $100 bill and asked if Hattie could change it. She pulled out her vacation roll, she told police, and the chauffeur snatched it from her and disappeared.

JURIST PASSES

JUSTICE FREDERICK L. SIDDONS.

COLLEAGUES MOURN UNEXPECTED DEATH OF JUSTICE SIDDONS

District Supreme Court Branches Adjourn as Evidence of Respect.

FUNERAL SERVICE SET FOR MONDAY MORNING

Jurist, Stricken With Acute Indigestion, Expires Few Hours Later.

Funeral services for Associate Justice Frederick Lincoln Siddons, of the District Supreme Court, who died early yesterday morning at his home, 1924 Biltmore street, following an attack of acute indigestion, will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Connecticut avenue and Bancroft street northwest.

Justice Siddons presided over the court Thursday morning, but after lunch felt ill and went home. A physician was summoned and treatment provided temporary relief. He retired about 11:30, but shortly after midnight again became ill. Dr. William M. Sprigg was summoned, but before he arrived Justice Siddons expired. His wife was at his side.

His unexpected death brought expressions of profound sorrow from his companions of the bar and bench. All branches of the District Supreme Court adjourned until Tuesday out of respect.

Colleagues Pay Tribute.

Members of the bench and court attaches paid tribute to the justice as follows:

Chief Justice Wheat—Justice Siddons' death comes as a shock which leaves us unable adequately to speak of his life, character, long public services and distinguished attainments and accomplishments.

Justice Adkins—Only my grief exceeds my admiration for this great jurist whom I learned to regard highly as a lawyer.

Justice Cox—He was a man of most delightful personality and untiring industry. An excellent lawyer and a just judge.

Justice Proctor—This is one of the saddest days in the local court's history. He was a great man.

Justice Letts—Both bench and bar will miss his learned decisions on complicated legal questions.

Justice Bailey—He was a good friend, an honorable man and a gentlemanly judge.

"Have Sustained Great Loss."

Justice Luhring—We have sustained a great loss. He was a great lawyer and a still greater judge. Those of us whose privilege it was to associate with him will miss his wise and safe counsel. His presence adorned the bench.

Justice Siddons was born in London, England, came to Washington when he was 14 and has been a resident here ever since.

He was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in 1887 and was appointed to the bench in 1915. He attained prominence as presiding justice in the trial of Harry Sinclair for conspiracy to defraud the Government in the leasing of Teapot Dome.

Justice Siddons left very few unfinished cases. He recently instructed his secretary, Stuart Barnes, to urge lawyers to get before him briefs and other routine matters so that he could dispose of many pending cases.

Justice Siddons' first public office was that of District Commissioner, to which he was appointed by President Wilson in 1913.

He received most of his early education at home and received his bachelor and master's degrees from the old Columbian University, now George Washington, in 1887. After graduation he was employed in the Treasury Department for several years, later beginning private law practice.

He was chairman of the commission on public welfare legislation for the District of Columbia, a member of the American Bar Association, the Cosmos Club, the American Society of International Law, the International Law Association, Sigma Nu Phi Fraternity and the Masonic Order.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a son, Frederick P. H. Siddons, secretary of the American Security & Trust Co., and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Lasher, whose husband, George S. Lasher, is professor of journalism at Athens University, Ohio.

Bathing Held Dangerous in Creek in Park

Picnickers and others who go in swimming or wading in Rock Creek Park when the United States Park Police are not around are doing more harm to themselves than to the police, Capt. R. C. Montgomery, superintendent of park police, said yesterday in issuing an annual warning.

Rock Creek is polluted and has been condemned for bathing purposes by health authorities, Capt. Montgomery said, and consequently it is only for protection of the public that the regulation has been set up.

"We have no objection to picnicers appearing in Rock Creek Park in bathing suits or sun suits for children in order to take sun baths," Capt. Montgomery said, "but they are endangering their health when they go in the water."

Because of the few police that are available to patrol the park it is impossible to keep all persons out of the creek, he added. Many people apparently have the idea they can violate the regulation with impunity, just as they might a traffic rule, when no policeman is in sight, he said.

Rock Creek Park is the outlet for one sewage system in the District and is likewise polluted in Maryland. Several attempts have been made to remedy the evil, but so far nothing has been accomplished.

Police Phone Aids Seek Pay Increase

Operators Base Request on Skill Required and Hours on Duty.

Civilian employes of the Police Department who operate telephone switchboards and teletype machines have asked the classification board for higher ratings.

Their request is based on training required for the work. They say operators must be skilled in telephone work before they are employed and that at least a year's training is necessary for efficient police work.

They pointed out their hours are practically the same as those of the police, and that in other cities clerks in the communication system receive larger salaries for telephone work.

Child of Cartoonist Bitten by Blacksnake

The 1-year-old child of Percy Crosby, creator of the cartoon character of Skippy, was bitten by a huge blacksnake in the yard of the Crosby estate near McLean, Va., yesterday. The snake was killed by Mr. Crosby, who also gave first-aid treatment to the infant.

A physician was called and pronounced the child out of danger.

Policeman Faces Hit-Run Charge

J. W. Casey Is Suspended Pending Appearance in Court on Monday.

Following investigation of a leaving after colliding charge by Inspector Albert J. Headley yesterday, Policeman J. W. Casey, of the Fourth Precinct, was suspended from duty. He is to appear in Police Court Monday to answer the hit and run charge.

Casey is alleged to have been driver of the car which collided with one driven by Kirk Roth, of Harvey, Ill., Wednesday night at Florida avenue and Seventh street northwest. The policeman is alleged to have stopped for a moment and then to have driven on without making known his identity. He was captured after a chase by civilians and taken to the Ninth Precinct stationhouse.

The policeman failed to appear in Police Court the next day and his collateral was forfeited. He had been instructed to appear before the corporation counsel at the court, however, and will be given a hearing Monday.
